The Greatest City Accomplishment of '22

View of Main Street Front of the New High School Building.

New High School Building seen from the west end of Racine street bridge.

Progress at the new high school during 1922 was unbelievably good, especially during the last months of the year, and one would scarcely realize the work done there during the twelve months until informed that on January 1, 1922, not even all the concrete had been laid. When the appearance of the building then is compared with the finished appearance it now presents, inside and out, the year stands out as one of great achievement. Next year, with the school occupied, will be one of still greater achievement along educational lines.

All concrete except that to be used for the sky-light, had been laid the first of 1922. Concrete in the boiler rooms, gymnasium, fan room and some of the roof slabs were all poured this year. Brick work was started Jan. 31 and was completed only last week by a few men kept at work since a month ago, when work was finished on the general structure.

Work on the roof was started June 19 and finished July 27, records show, while the plasterers, who started work July 13, are still there, five men being at work in the basement. On March 1, the first steel for the building was received and used to start the auditorium work. Bids were received July 28 on furniture, most of which has now arrived, and is being installed.

Terazzo work started the latter part of September and will be completed in two weeks, the portions to be completed not interfering with general use of the building. The men to install marble came the first of December, and have yet a week's work. All tile work has been completed, the vestibules being done this past week.

Twenty days of hard work in the gymnasiums and swimming pools will see them all completed and ready for use. It is expected that school will be in session in the building by this time.

School Board Busy.

The big 1922 work of the board of education was directing the construction of the new high school. Taking care of other matters as rapidly as possible at the monthly and special meeting, the board members then turned their attention until late in the night, toward the buying of equipment and hearing reports of progress on the new building.

The board set a precedent, when in the fall, it re-elected Jesse Earle its president instead of following the usual rotation and electing Mrs. Fred Sutherland who made the nomination for re-election. Clerk of the board

Lydia Ziemann was also re-elected and Mr. Earle re-appointed the following committees. The first-named being chairmen:

Teachers—Mrs. Fred Sutherland, Charles Muggleton and O. A. Oestreich.

Building and Grounds—William J. Hemming, Mrs. David Holmes and George Croft.

Playgrounds—Mrs. Holmes, E. J. Haumerson and Hemming.

New high school—F. C. Grant, Muggleton and Croft.

TWO NEW PASTORS IN CITY IN 1922

Only two new pastors came to Janesville in 1922 in contrast to the preceding year when there were five changes in church pastorates. The Rev. Frederick F. Case came Oct. 1 from Minneapolis to succeed the Rev. Charles E. Coon as pastor of the Cargill Memorial Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Theodore Lepak arrived in the summer to assist Dean James F. Ryan in the absence of the Rev. Joseph Ryan, who went to Palestine and Rome for a visit, returning later in the year.

MORE than a glance backward is necessary to see all that has been accomplished in Janesville in the past year.

Nineteen Twenty Two will remain a year of achievement. Some startling things have taken place. There has been a revolution in the manner of city government. Janesville, in April, by an overwhelming majority declared in favor of city management under the laws of Wisconsin in reference to that form of municipal government. It was the second city in the state so to vote but this year Racine, Oshkosh, and a number of others are carrying on campaigns for this form of city control.

Then too we have watched all year for the High school to grow towards completion. It is an amazing building. Once it is done and opened to the public and for the purposes it is designed it will be appreciated for the immensity of the program which it involves. It adds to Janesville a gymnasium which cannot be equalled nearer than the University at Madison. It gives us an auditorium which is the equal of any in the state in a city anywhere nearly approaching the size of Janesville. It gives Janesville and vicinity a school building with the most modern and efficient facilities for teaching the children and giving to them every advantage in education within the scope of the high school course. The school will cost when completed in every way approximately $915,000. The final figures will vary but little from this sum.

These two great accomplishments in the civic life have been followed by a third. For a half century we have been talking about a city park. In the early days when the woods and fields were immediately at hand and there were no warning signs up about trespassing we had less need for a park. But as the city has grown and built in the park became an answer to a demand. The city planning commission in conjunction with the council completed the purchase of the 133 acres of property along the river, known as Riverside, for $25,000 and $15,000 has been paid upon the purchase.

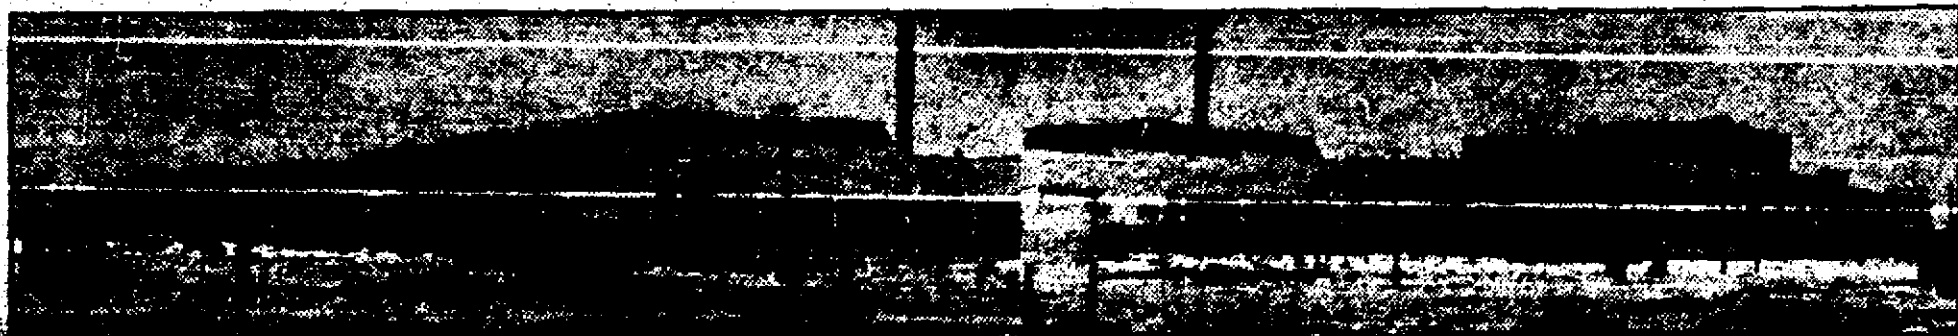

At the beginning of 1922 there was a heavy shadow over the city. It had been carried up to the seventh heaven when the General Motors corporation came to Janesville and entered upon an extensive building program and established in 1919 and 1920, the Samson Tractor Company. Between fifteen and twenty millions of dollars were spent in one way and another, it is estimated, in building up the Samson. At the close of 1920, throughout 1921 and a part of 1922 there was a lull in the business and some despondency in Janesville. For more than a year the tractor plant had either been idle or so nearly out of business that it no longer was counted as a large employer of labor.

But in the face of the depression which was general Janesville suffered no panic nor was there any deeply visible reaction. The city readjusted itself to the situation. Some excellent citizens who had become an integral part of the city life and its civic work were lost to us, but others have come. Throughout the summer there were rumors of changes and additions but Janesville has learned a lesson and so when the General Motors Company officially announced the coming of the Chevrolet assembly plant and the branch of the Fisher Body Corporation, both subsidiaries of the General Motors Corporation, there was no excitement and no fictitious boom as had followed the arrival of the Samson.

And on the first of January Janesville sees two new buildings added to the enormous group at the

Salvation Army Gets New Start Under Hanson

The Salvation Army had a complete change of corps officers in the fall of 1922, and the new commanding officer, Lieutenant Roy Hanson, has endeavored to put the work on an efficient basis. A large amount of clothing has been distributed and many emergency calls for food and fuel responded to. The drive conducted in October and November fell several hundred dollars short of the quota set as the amount needed to carry on the work the coming year, but it is hoped that additional contributions will be received from time to time. The Salvation Army was the beneficiary of successful potato and garment matinees given by the Myers theater. The Service Star Legion has assisted the Home League in the making over of garments to be given to needy persons. Baskets were furnished to 30 families at Christmas time.

Miss Cordella Stephenson, and Mrs. Ida Smiley and Ray Webb have remodeled their homes. A home was built by George Ostrander, occupied by William Barton, and a home was built by C. H. Francis.

The Indiana Condensery has made many improvements, fixing the race, adding floor space and doing much concrete work. It employs about 20 men and women.

The Albany Hardware Specialty Mfg. company is working 10 hours daily to fill back orders. It employs 10 men.

Much New Equipment Is Purchased for Schools by Parent-Teacher Ass'ns.

Parent-Teacher association work moved forward creditably in 1922. The most significant achievement was the formation of the Parent-Teacher association council composed of officers of all associations in the city including those of both public and parochial schools. The council meets bi-monthly to discuss topics of general interest and lay plans for cooperative effort. Miss Agnes Grant is president and Mrs. R. C. Hartman, secretary.

The canvass of the residence district in behalf of the Red Cross drive was conducted by the associations. Good Health week meetings were held under the auspices of the council, and a committee assisted in promoting the observance of Children's Book week.

Outstanding achievements and increased attendance at meetings are reported by each of the eight associations as follows:

Jackson School.

The Jackson is one of the smaller associations because the school itself is small, but this fact has not prevented the giving of entertainments the last Friday of each month which are well attended by the people of community. The sum of $200 has been raised toward the purchase of piano, leaving a balance of $70 to be provided. The board of education has equipped one of the school rooms with removable seats and desks, thus making the room available for entertainments, meetings and social affairs.

Officers are: Mrs. L. J. Cronin, president; Mrs. Ernest Rupnow, vice president; Mrs. John Viney, treasurer; Mrs. William Viney, chairman refreshment committee; Mrs. Fred Anderson, chairman entertainment committee; Miss Mildred Dearth, secretary.

Douglas-Lincoln

Patrons of the Douglas and Lincoln schools have taken much interest in the meetings and entertainments held on the last Tuesday of each month. The kindergarten room of the Douglas school is used as a rule, though occasionally meetings are held in the Lincoln building. The Halloween exhibit and party was one of the most successful affairs given during the year. The association purchased two dozen chairs, and a mimeograph and plans to get a set of reference books and a typewriter soon. A cupboard, stove, dishes and spoons have been received through donations. Money-making affairs included a cake sale and a benefit performance at the Apollo theater. Officers are: Mrs. J. A. Bates, president; Miss Abbie Atwood, vice president; Mrs. E. Barkley, secretary; Mrs. H. J. Manthel, treasurer; committee chairmen: program, Mrs. Larson; entertainment, Miss Erna Tonn; refreshments, Mrs. Paul Buggs; invitations, Misses Katherine Sheridan and Margaret Hill.

Adams

The Adams brought a number of out-of-town speakers to the city to address community meetings. The "Jolly Jester" health clown was secured in May and a performance arranged for all grade children of the city. Manager Charles Boutin donated the Myers theater for this affair.

School equipment secured by the association includes a filing cabinet, and scales for the use of the school nurse. The summer playground work was carried on most successfully under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Van Kirk. A wading pool was provided, an orchestra was conducted by Mrs. J. R. Nichols and Mrs. Bruce Stone. Sewing classes for girls were held during the summer ending with a fine exhibit of doll clothes. A progressive dinner party was given for the teachers before the close of school in June, and the usual reception was held in the fall. Mrs. J. I. Anthes was president during the first half of the year. In September the following officers were elected: Mrs. R. C. Hartman, president; Miss Sigrid Malmgren, vice president; Mrs. A. F. Wood, secretary; Mrs. A. W. Kalies, treasurer; Committee chairmen: Mrs. Floyd Bennison, finance; Mrs. A. R. Glancy, program; Mrs. Frances Grant, child welfare; Mrs. Percy Bolton; conference: Mrs. Howard Green, publicity; Mrs. Fred Marshe, refreshments.

St. Mary's

St. Mary's association has had some excellent meetings in which program features were a course of lectures on "The External of Religion" and a course of studies in good citizenship. Equipment purchased for the school includes a new gong, records for setting up exercises, supplementary readers, new chairs for primary grade, and full set of semi-contour maps. The association also contributed one-third of the cost of a piano for the school hall. In the interest of better English the association is offering a medal to the ninth grade pupil who does the best work during the year, and a banner to one of the other eight grades that merits such recognition. Largely attended affairs were given at Halloween and Christmas. Mrs. A. J. Petit was president during the first half of the year. Officers for 1922-23 are: Miss Agnes Grant, president; Mrs. Harry Olson, vice president; Mrs. Glen Snyder, secretary; Mrs. C. H. Meeley, treasurer; committee chairmen: Mrs. John Fitzgerald, program; Mrs. Antone Beakert, ways and means; Mrs. Edward Jerg, breakfast; Mrs. L. B. Glenn, relief; Mrs. Frank Crook, equipment; Mrs. W. E. Wilcox, social; Mrs. E. H. Connell, publicity.

Washington-Grant

The Washington-Grant association had excellent programs and good attendance during the year, at regular meetings on the first Tuesday of each month, alternating afternoons and evenings. One set of the World book was purchased for each building. Funds were raised by an entertainment in each building and through the collection and sale of old magazines and papers. Officers are as follows: Mrs. B. E. Bond, president; Mrs. O. W. Athon, vice president; Miss Miller, secretary; Mrs. Maurice Erickson, treasurer; committee chairmen: Mrs. Fred Sutherland, program; Mrs. George Bucholz, social; Mrs. Hugh Hemmingsway, welfare.

St. Patrick's

St. Patrick's association had well attended meetings the third Friday evening of each month during the school year. Equipment purchased included a phonograph on wheels which may be taken from room to room with ease, textbooks and supplementary supplies for geography classes. Meetings are held in the splendidly equipped school hall which has a seating capacity of 400. Motion picture equipment is available when desired. Officers are: Mrs. D. J. Luby, president; Mrs. W. H. McGuire, vice president; Miss Nellie Morris, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Hammel, treasurer.

Webster-Garfield

The Webster-Garfield association had a very successful year. Besides the regular monthly meetings, several social gatherings were held. Patty Hill blocks and a Schoenbut doll were purchased for the Webster school, and a sewing machine and four manual training work benches were provided for the Garfield children. Funds were raised by means of candy sales in the schools, food sales in downtown stores and voluntary offerings of members. Officers are: Mrs. Alva Maxfield, president; Miss Elizabeth Murray, vice president; Mrs. Peter Kelley, secretary-treasurer; Misses Roses Gagan and Nellie Morris, program committee.

Jefferson

One of the most interesting achievements of the Jefferson association was the purchase of motion picture equipment, which has been used extensively by both school and community. Funds were raised through a series of card parties and a dancing party at the Elks' hall, the use of which was donated. Fifty chairs were purchased for the kindergarten room, which is used extensively for community gatherings. Out-of-door meetings featuring motion pictures were held during the summer. Another novel affair was a school ground picnic which was largely attended. Particular attention was paid to the summer playground work under the direction of a committee composed of Mesdames G. F. Ehrlinger, D. W. Holmes, and W. T. Clarke. The Kiwanis championship pennant was won by the Jefferson school in the field meet held at the close of the playground season. Officers are: Mrs. A. M. Malmberg, president; Miss Ella Jacobson, vice president; Mrs. Oscar N. Nelson, secretary; Mrs. H. D. Murdock, treasurer.

Trailer Business Grows During '22

A 10 percent increase in gross business over 1921 is reported by the Highway Trailer company of Edgerton, manufacturers of two and four wheeled trailers of one to 10 ton capacity. This is approximately 50 percent of the normal, the company reports.

"The outlook for the coming 12 months is far more promising than 12 months ago," says E. T. Moorman, sales manager. "However, we believe normal conditions will not be reached for at least another year."

Export conditions are rapidly improving in the lines handled by the Highway Trailer people. Large quantities of their product have recently been sold to foreign countries, they state. Ordinarily, 50 percent of the output goes outside of the United States, but the high rate of exchange, increased duties and financial depression in foreign countries has affected such trade.

The Highway Trailer company is capitalized at $500,000. Its financial condition is given as excellent, due to being able to distribute its product in practically every civilized country throughout the world.

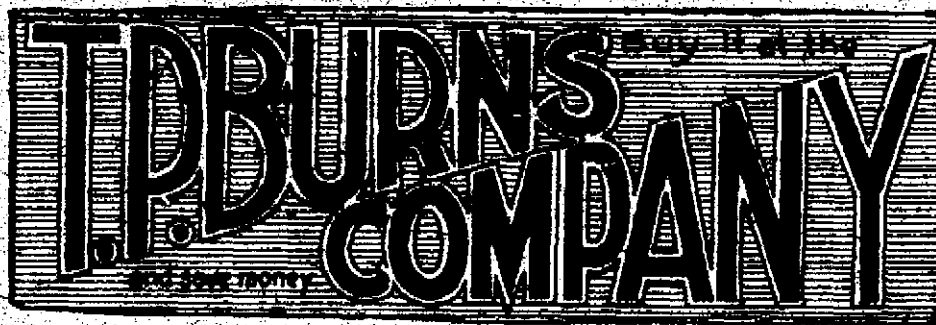

A total of 300,000 square feet of floor space is devoted to the manufacture of trailers and steel dump bodies. The company has been able to procure increased efficiency, despite a decrease of 15 to 20 percent in the number of employees.

Officers are: J. W. Menhall, president; E. C. Willson, vice president; A. McIntosh, treasurer, and E. Z. Menhall, secretary.

The association also contributed one-third of the cost of a piano for the school hall. In the interest of better English the association is offering a medal to the ninth grade pupil who does the best work during the year, and a banner to one of the other eight grades that merits such recognition. Largely attended, affairs were given at Halloween and Christmas. Mrs. A. J. Pettit was president during the first half of the year. Officers for 1922-23 are: Miss Agnes Grant, president; Mrs. Harry Olson, vice president; Mrs. Glen Snyder, secretary; Mrs. C. H. Meeley, treasurer; committee chairman; Mrs. John Fitzgerald, program; Mrs. Antone Benkert, ways and means; Mrs. Edward Jerg, breakfast; Mrs. J. B. Glenn, relief; Mrs. Frank Croak, equipment; Mrs. W. B. Wilcox, social; Mrs. E. H. Connell, publicity.

Washington-Grant

The Washington-Grant association had excellent programs and good attendance during the year, at regular meetings on the first Tuesday of each month, alternating afternoons and evenings. One set of the World book was purchased for each building. Funds were raised by an entertainment in each building and through the collection and sale of old magazines and papers. Officers are as follows: Mrs. E. E. Bond, president; Mrs. O. W. Athon, vice president; Miss Miller, secretary; Mrs. Maurice Erickson, treasurer; committee chairman; Mrs. Fred Sutherland, program; Mrs. George Bucholz, social; Mrs. Hugh Hemmingway, welfare.

St. Patrick's

St. Patrick's association had well attended meetings the third Friday evening of each month during the school year. Equipment purchased included a phonograph on wheels which may be taken from room to room with ease, textbooks and supplementary supplies for geography classes. Meetings are held in the splendidly equipped school hall which has a seating capacity of 400. Motion picture equipment is available when desired. Officers are: Mrs. D. J. Luby, president; Mrs. W. H. McGuire, vice president; Miss Nellie Morris, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Hammel, treasurer.

Webster-Garfield

The Webster-Garfield association had a very successful year. Besides the regular monthly meetings, several social gatherings were held. Patty Hill blocks and a Schoenhut doll were purchased for the Webster school, and a sewing machine and four manual training work benches were provided for the Garfield children. Funds were raised by means of candy sales in the schools, food sales in downtown stores and voluntary offerings of members. Officers are: Mrs. Alva Maxfield, president; Miss Elizabeth Murray, vice president; Mrs. Peter Kelley, secretary-treasurer; Misses Moses Gagan and Nellie Morris, program committee.

Jefferson

One of the most interesting achievements of the Jefferson association was the purchase of motion picture equipment which has been used extensively by both school and community. Funds were raised through a series of card parties and a dancing party at the Elks' hall, the use of which was donated. Fifty chairs were purchased for the kindergarten room, which is used extensively for community gatherings. Out-of-door meetings featuring motion pictures were held during the summer. Another novel affair was a school ground picnic which was largely attended. Particular attention was paid to the summer playground work under the direction of a committee composed of Mesdames G. P. Ehrlinger, D. W. Holmes, and W. T. Clarke. The Kiwanis championship pennant was won by the Jefferson school in the field meet held at the close of the playground season. Officers are: Mrs. A. M. Mullinberg, president; Mrs. Ella Jacobson, vice president; Mrs. Oscar H. Nelson, secretary; Mrs. H. D. Muddock, treasurer.

Trailer Business Grows During '22

A 10 percent increase in gross business over 1921 is reported by the Highway Trailer company of Edgerton, manufacturers of two and four wheeled trailers of one to 10 ton capacity. This is approximately 50 percent of the normal, the company reports.

"The outlook for the coming 12 months is far more promising than 12 months ago," says P. T. Moorman, sales manager. "However, we believe normal conditions will not be reached for at least another year."

Export conditions are rapidly improving in the lines handled by the Highway Trailer people. Large quantities of their product have recently been sold to foreign countries, they state. Ordinarily, 50 percent of the output goes outside of the United States, but the high rate of exchange, increased duties and financial depression in foreign countries has affected such trade.

The Highway Trailer company is capitalized at $500,000. Its financial condition is given as "excellent," due to being able to distribute its product in practically every civilized country throughout the world.

A total of 300,000 square feet of floor space is devoted to the manufacture of trailers and steel dump bodies. The company has been able to procure increased efficiency, despite a decrease of 15 to 20 percent in the number of employees.

Officers are: J. W. Menhall, president; B. C. Willson, vice president; A. McIntosh, treasurer, and E. Z. Menhall, secretary.

1922 Records Continued Progress Among Churches

The past year records considerable progress in the church life of the city, with tendency toward cooperation in community enterprises more in evidence than previously. The First Congregational and First Christian churches entertained their respective state conventions in October, and the state convention of King's Daughters was held here in the First Baptist church.

Cargill M. E. Church

Rev. Frederick F. Case became pastor of the Cargill M. E. church in October, succeeding C. E. Coon. An Intermediate Epworth League and a children's church have been organized, the latter meeting at the same hour as the morning preaching service and having an attendance of 100. Baptisms during the year totaled 31. Benevolences for the fiscal year amounted to $6,097, while around $9,000 was raised for local expenses. The church was redecorated at a cost of $500.

First Baptist

The inauguration of a weekly church day is one of 1922 achievements of the First Baptist church. The plan of setting aside one day for afternoon and evening meetings of different church groups, with a get-together supper and service in which all participate, has proved very successful. The moving picture programs have been continued with increasing success.

The International E. Y. P. U. convention at St. Paul was attended by 18 delegates from Janesville church. Six young people are enrolled in the Life Service League for ministers and missionaries. This church has its own missionary in China for whose support $2,400 is given annually. Benevolences total, $6,834 and local expenses $10,660. Rev. R. G. Pierson is pastor.

First Christian

All goals set at the beginning of the year were reached and some were exceeded by the First Christian church. Members received by statement and confession totaled 147. Sunday school attendance has greatly increased, the most noteworthy record being made by the Loyal Brothers class which more than tripled in attendance during the closing three months.

The sum of $467 was contributed to missions. Sunday school classrooms were redecorated and new equipment provided in some. Rev. Leland L. Marion is pastor.

First Presbyterian

The First Presbyterian church was redecorated throughout during the past summer and new furnaces were installed. A Young People's church has been organized with a membership of young people of high school age and a self-governing form of organization. Rev. J. A. Melrose is pastor.

Congregational

The year at the Congregational church has followed its usual course of varied activities, which have been carried on quite successfully. Efficient standards are being adopted in different departments and the church work and spirit are both on a high level. The splendid success of the state conference, when more than 300 delegates were entertained, was one of the outstanding achievements of the year made possible through the cordial cooperation of the whole community. The church has not experienced a large growth in membership, and has lost several families by removal from the city, but on the whole the year's record is satisfactory. The church auditorium has been used frequently by outside organizations for concerts and other community affairs. Rev. Frank J. Scribner is the pastor.

St. Peter's Lutheran

St. Peter's Lutheran church will celebrate its 20th anniversary in February, 1923. During the past year extensive interior repairs were made. The choir loft was enlarged to accommodate 32 persons, the chancel and aisles recarpeted with velvet brussels and a new twin furnace installed, the expense totaling $1,100. An auto garage was erected for the use of the pastor. The first mother and daughter banquet was held March 30 with 160 present, while 140 attended the father and son banquet, November 16. The fourth annual daily summer Bible school was held from June 19 to July 21, with an enrollment of 110 pupils. A junior choir of 20 voices has been trained to sing at vespers and also furnished Christmas music.

Week day religious education classes for children 12 to 15, have an enrollment of 75. Rev. G. J. Muller is pastor.

St. John's Ev. Lutheran

The year 1922 was a prosperous one for this church. New communicant members received during the year total 75. There were 25 confirmations and 17 baptisms. A new bell costing $1,100 was donated to the church by Herman Hein. The congregation contributed liberally to all benevolences and missionary work of the Synod. Rev. S. W. Fuchs is pastor.

United Lutheran activities of 1922 included the first annual Lutheran County Sunday school convention which was held in the First Lutheran church of Janesville. Eight schools were represented by 65 delegates. Two concerts were given in the First Congregational church under Lutheran auspices. St. Olaf band was brought here on May 7, and on November 24 the third annual Edward Rechin recital was given.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic

The work in St. Patrick's parish during 1922 was largely of a routine nature. The school building being new and the church and rectory having been remodeled in 1921, little in the way of material improvements was needed. Considerable new equipment has been provided, however. With complete facilities in the large new hall for meetings and entertainments of the religious, social, and benevolent organizations of the parish, the membership and activities of all societies have been greatly increased. Despite the financial depression of the last year, all expenses have been met, generous contributions made to missions, and $10,000 paid on the debt incurred in the erection of the new school. The number of families in the parish is constantly increasing. Baptisms for the year numbered 68, of this number 60 were infants and 8 adults.

Other Janesville churches that have a record of successful activities during the year are St. Mary's Roman Catholic, Trinity Episcopal, First Lutheran, St. Paul's German Lutheran and United Brethren.

Federation of Missions

The Federation of Missions represents the women's missionary groups of six churches. Three meetings are held each year. The Federation put on dollar day drive for the Union Christian colleges in the Orient in December, raising over $800 for this purpose. Through local and national cooperation of the women's missionary organizations a uniform course of mission study is being taken up by societies of the different denominations, the subject for 1922-23 being India. Mrs. George A. Jacobs is president and Mrs. G. W. Allen secretary of the local federation.

WATER SERVICES METERED IN 1922

Big Saving in Pumpage Results from Important Move.

Completion of the metering of all flat rate services was the big event in the city water department during 1922. This has resulted in a considerable reduction in pumping and a large decrease in coal used, although the meters have not been in service long enough as yet to obtain a definite comparison, Supt. H. A. Griffey reports.

There were 870 old services metered and 109 new services added during the year making about 4,200 metered services now connected to the system, said Mr. Griffey.

Records Are Improved.

"All stop or street shut-off boxes in the entire city have been definitely located, giving measurement to property lines and street corners, and the engineering department is now preparing a system of sectional maps on a large scale for the water department, showing the location of these boxes, also, locations and size of water mains, date when laid and location of fire hydrants. We will also have a card index of hydrants and stop-boxes showing exact location of each, enabling our service men to shut off water in the minimum length of time in case of broken pipes or fixtures in houses," said Mr. Griffey.

Mile of Mains Laid

There were 4,586 feet of 6 inch and 555 feet of 4 inch cast iron mains laid besides about 500 feet of 1 1/2 inch lead main stubs on side streets and five new hydrants added to the system during the year.

The new pumping engine erected and put in service in 1921 has proven to be a good investment as it is very economical in the use of coal and is large enough to deliver 12 to 15 fire streams at any pressure desired by the fire department.

Must Replace Boilers.

In 1921 the department employed Alvord, Burdick & Howson, consulting engineers of Chicago, who in conjunction with the fire underwriters association have prepared a plan for additions to plant, increasing water supply and extension to mains for the next 10 years.

The plant is now in good condition with exception of the boilers which having been in service for the last 20 years and also being too small for the new pumping engine, must be replaced within the next three years.

FOOTVILLE BUYS NEW FIRE TRUCK

Footville.—Buildings: home, Mrs. Ella Lacey; store and office building, E. R. Lowry; Hotel Canary, purchased by Mr. Wardell, remodeled with heating plant; barn by James Murphy.

Better first protection is possible with the purchase of a new fire truck and apparatus.

Some street improvements made and electric lights installed in many homes. Business shows improvement.

ROCK COUNTY HAS RECORD YEAR

Largest Class in 11 Years' History Graduated—Many Teaching.

There are several reasons why 1922 was the best in the 11 years of the Rock county teachers training school. In June the largest class in history was graduated and all but one are now teaching in rural schools. The 1923 class will not be as large but there will be enough to supply Rock county's demands.

Many public gatherings and extra curricular activities were held. An innovation was the 35 outside speakers. This idea will be repeated in 1923. Trips to factories and other institutions were taken.

Programs were presented during special occasions, such as educational week, Thanksgiving, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays.

What shows the importance of the training school is that out of 235 graduates, 100 are now teaching in Rock county, most of them in rural schools; several are teaching outside the county; 80 graduates are married; and 50 graduates have entered higher institutions of learning.

Much Extension Work

"During the 12-month period the training school has done much to serve those in the ranks, both graduates and under graduates," says Prin. Frank J. Lowth. "Professional and other books are being loaned continuously to rural teachers, scores of letters are answered, and many rural schools have been visited. More than 100 rural teachers were visited by Miss Ella Jacobson, supervisor of practice, and the principal in 1922. To do this they traveled 1,000 miles. Lantern slides and lectures were given in many schools. Eight thousand copies of monthly bulletins were mailed to teachers, school board members, and others. The bulletin is published jointly by Co. Supt. O. D. Antisdel and Prin. Lowth.

Model School Conducted

The model school, consisting of 30 pupils in the first three grades under the direction of Miss Jacobson, has afforded opportunity for practice by training-school students. Through the university extension division many films were shown through courtesy of the Jefferson Parent-Teachers association which allowed them the use of motion picture machine.

There were many social events including entertainments for the county board, mothers, mandatories and others. To help teachers who wish to raise their professional qualifications, the annual summer school was conducted June 19 to July 28 by Prin. Lowth and Misses Ella J. and Louise A. Jacobson. There was a good enrollment.

During the past year the school adopted a one-year course of study for high school graduates only. This course comprises reviews and methods in all the common branches of study, besides a full year of professional subjects, including observation and practice teaching.

The school has repeatedly received the commendation of the state department of education both from the inspectors and Supt. John J. Callahan. Rock county is proud of its training school which ranks with the best in the state.

Over $2,000,000 Turnover in '22
for Parker Pen

Addition of the Duofold Pen, which had a phenomenal sale all over the world; a great advertising campaign; and the addition of a metallic pencil in nickel, silver and gold—these things made the turnover of the Parker Pen company for 1922 in excess of $2,000,000.

The export business of the company has contributed considerably to the growth of the company during the year. Large selling agencies were placed in European and Asiatic countries, with the larger share of the new business coming from Asia.

The company employs 450 and pays $40,000 in wages each month, or $540,000 annually. It occupies 50,000 square feet of floor space. The authorized capital is $1,500,000.

For the coming year, the company says:

"The outlook seems good. We can see no specks on the horizon that look as though they might develop into a storm cloud. The period of readjustment through which all lines of business have been going for the last three or four years is gradually, but surely, coming to an end. As the end is approached, naturally all things considered, business will gradually grow better."

Officers are: George S. Parker, president and manager; W. F. Palmer, secretary and treasurer; Russell C. Parker, vice-president and production manager; H. L. Blackman, general sales manager; A. S. Parker, advertising manager and assistant treasurer; B. M. Palmer, collection manager.

Even when work is scarce you will find it everywhere.

WORK OF COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL

John J. Callahan, superintendent of public instruction for Wisconsin, writes as follows in regard to the Rock county teachers training school:

"You are to be congratulated upon several features in your county training school mentioned by the two inspectors from this office.

"A high standard of constructive service is being rendered by your faculty. This is manifested in the range of activities which reach out into the educational and community life of your county. Former students are followed up in their teaching work, conferences are held and help is given whenever possible.

"Special advantages are afforded to students. Provision has been made for a physical examination and gymnasium privileges are possible. Other cultured activities such as music trips, excursions and a literary society are afforded. The reading circle work is required.

"Your county bulletin aids all the teachers of the county.

"A one year course is maintained with adequate enrollment.

"The supervisors state that you have a very businesslike group of students and that they manifested an attitude of responsibility and resourcefulness that promises well for your county's future in education.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the service your county training school is rendering."

SCHOOL FOR BLIND IS LEADER IN U. S.

Many Activities Keep State Institution First in Progress.

Success marked the year 1922 at the Wisconsin school for the blind here.

Kindergarten and music buildings were painted both interior and exterior, as were the barns and sheds. A large amount of repairing was done to keep the institution up to the standard set by Super. J. J. Hoyer.

The average attendance was 122, an increase of 12 over the previous year. A development and improvement in the work has been more noticeable than the increase in enrollment. The music department, through whose work the institution is best known, was very active. Six public concerts were given by the orchestra under the leadership of Herbert Adams, and the chorus under Mrs. F. C. Hoyer. Three were given in Janesville and one at Beloit. The fame of the dance orchestras is spreading so the boys now have many engagements.

Second in Athletics

Competing with other schools for the blind in the United States, the Wisconsin institution placed second in the boys' and girls' field meets. Basketball has been played.

The chief social events of the year were the White Rose biennial and the Halloween masquerade dance. Saturday night dances were held. Other entertainment included programs by the Lincoln and White Rose literary societies and the appearance here for the Carroll and Lawrence college-gee clubs, a concert by Adams Buehl, Marquette university, and speeches by Dr. William Ganfield, Waukesha, and Bishop W. W. Webb, Milwaukee. Under the direction of Miss Theresa Duda, the advisor, many forms of entertainment was provided by the Girl Reserves. The W. S. B. now has two first Girl Reserves, Marjorie Hooper and Agnes Bercker; one second Girl Reserve, Marcella Calkins; four third Girl Reserves; and 16 Fourth Girl Reserves.

Is Leading School

Those competent to judge have declared that the Wisconsin school for the blind is second to none in the United States, on the basis of its literary standards. Two graduates are now studying at the state university, three are at Lawrence college, one each at Eau Claire and Whitewater normal and at the National Kindergarten college in Chicago. A member of the 1922 class will enter Marquette university next semester.

Perhaps the greatest advance made during the year was the admission of women to the summer school. Besides the 42 men enrolled, 18 women took courses in domestic science and taking many subjects taught men, reading, typewriting, basketry and weaving. Five tuners received certificates for player action, four for weaving and others were given certificates for proficiency in basket weaving, chair caning and hammock making.

The tenth triennial meeting of alumni was held. Included in the prominent speakers was Gov. J. J. Blaine. It was the first time the organization has ever heard the chief executive at one of their meetings.

TRAINING SCHOOL HAS RECORD YEAR

Largest Class in 11 Years' History Graduated—Many Teaching.

There are several reasons why 1922 was the best in the 11 years of the Rock county teachers training school. In June the largest class in history was graduated and all but one are now teaching in rural schools. The 1923 class will not be as large but there will be enough to supply Rock county's demands.

Many public gatherings and extra-curricular activities were held. An innovation was the 35 outside speakers. This idea will be repeated in 1923. Trips to factories and other institutions were taken.

Programs were presented during special occasions, such as educational week, Thanksgiving, Washington's and Lincoln's Birthdays.

What shows the importance of the training school is that out of 235 graduates, 100 are now teaching in Rock county, most of them in rural schools; several are teaching outside the county; 80 graduates are married; and 50 graduates have entered higher institutions of learning.

Much Extension Work

"During the 12-month period the training school has done much to serve those in the ranks," both graduates and under graduates," says Prin. Frank J. Lowth. "Professional and other books are being loaned continuously to rural teachers, scores of letters are answered, and many rural schools have been visited. More than 100 rural teachers were visited by Miss Ella Jacobson, supervisor of practice, and the principal in 1922. To do this they traveled 1,000 miles. Lantern slides and lectures were given in many schools.

Eight thousand copies of monthly bulletins were mailed to teachers, school board members, and others. The bulletin is published jointly by Co. Supt. O. D. Antisder and Prin. Lowth.

Model School Conducted

The model school, consisting of 30 pupils in the first three grades under the direction of Miss Jacobson, has afforded opportunity for practice by training school students.

Through the university extension division many films were shown through courtesy of the Jefferson Parent-Teachers association which allowed them the use of motion picture machine.

There were many social events including entertainments for the county board, mothers, landladies and others.

To help teachers who wish to raise their professional qualifications, the annual summer school was conducted June 19 to July 28 by Prin. Lowth and Misses Ella J. and Louise A. Jacobson. There was a good enrollment.

During the past year the school adopted a one-year course of study for high school graduates only. This course comprises reviews and methods in all the common branches of study, besides a full year of professional subjects, including observation and practice teaching.

The school has repeatedly received the commendation of the state department of education both from the inspectors and Supt. John J. Callahan. Rock county is proud of its training school which ranks with the best in the state.

Over $2,000,000 Turnover in '22 for Parker Pen

Addition of the Duofold Pen, which had a phenomenal sale all over the world; a great advertising campaign; and the addition of a metallic pencil in nickel, silver and gold—these things made the turnover of the Parker Pen company for 1922 in excess of $2,000,000.

The export business of the company has contributed considerably to the growth of the company during the year. Large selling agencies were placed in European and Asiatic countries, with the larger share of the new business coming from Asia.

For the coming year, the company says: "The outlook seems good. We can see no specks on the horizon that look as though they might develop into a storm cloud. The period of readjustment through which all lines of business have been going for the last three or four years is gradually, but surely, coming to an end. As the end is approached, naturally all things considered, business will gradually grow better."

Officers are: George S. Parker, president and manager; W. F. Palmer, secretary and treasurer; Russell C. Parker, vice-president and production manager; H. L. Blackman, general sales manager; K. S. Parker, advertising manager and assistant treasurer; B. M. Palmer, collection manager.

Even when work is scarce you will find it everywhere.

CALLAHAN LAUDS WORK OF COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL

John J. Callahan, superintendent of public instruction for Wisconsin, writes as follows in regard to the Rock county teachers training school:

"You are to be congratulated upon several features in your county training school mentioned by the two inspectors from this office.

"A high standard of constructive service is being rendered by your faculty. This is manifested in the range of activities which reach out into the educational and community life of your county. Former students are followed up in their teaching work, conferences are held and help is given whenever possible.

"Special advantages are afforded to students. Provision has been made for a physical examination and gymnasium privileges are possible. Other cultured activities such as music trips, excursions and a literary society are afforded. The reading circle work is required.

"Your county bulletin aids all the teachers of the county.

"A one-year course is maintained with adequate enrollment.

"The supervisors state that you have a very businesslike group of students and that they manifested an attitude of responsibility and resourcefulness that promises well for your county's future in education.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the service your county training school is rendering."

SCHOOL FOR BLIND IS LEADER IN U. S.

Many Activities Keep State Institution First in Progress.

Success marked the year 1922 at the Wisconsin school for the blind here.

Kindergarten and music buildings were painted both interior and exterior, as were the barns and sheds. A large amount of repainting was done to keep the institution up to the standard set by Supt. J. T. Hooper.

The average attendance was 122, an increase of 12 over the previous year. A development and improvement in the work has been more noticeable than the increase in enrollment. The music department, through whose work the institution is best known, was very active. Six public concerts were given by the orchestra under the leadership of Herbert Adams, and the chorus under Mrs. F. C. Hoyer. Three were given in Janesville and one at Beloit. The fame of the dance orchestras is spreading so the boys now have many engagements.

Second in Athletics

Competing with other schools for the blind in the United States, the Wisconsin institution placed second in the boys' and girls' field meets. Basketball has been played.

The chief social events of the year were the White Rose biennial and the Halloween masquerade dance. Saturday night dances were held. Other entertainment included programs by the Lincoln and White Rose literary societies and the appearance here for the Carroll and Lawrence college glee clubs, a concert by Adams Buell, Marquette university, and speeches by Dr. William Ganfield, Waukesha, and Bishop W. 1923 to Bring Radical Change in School System

The local public schools have since their inception been organized upon an eight-four basis; that is eight years of elementary schooling and four years of high school," said Supt. F. O. Holt. "A radical change will come to Janesville in its school organization at the mid-year when the elementary school will be organized for the first six years and the junior high school will take care of the seventh, eighth and ninth years and the senior high school organization will prevail in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth years. Both junior and senior high school will be housed in the new high school building.

"During the first semester of 1922-23 the school enrollment has been about the same as for the year previous. There have been in the public schools 222 children of kindergarten age, 336 children have been enrolled in the first grade, 216 in the second, 210 in the third, 220 in the fourth, 225 in the fifth, 221 in the sixth, 184 in the seventh and 257 in the eighth, making a total enrollment of 2,091. In the high school the enrollment has been in the ninth grade 226, tenth grade 205, eleventh 149, twelfth 133, making a total enrollment of 713 and in all of the schools 2,804.

Adopting Standard Text-Books

"During the past four or five years the teachers of the city grades have been working on courses of study by committees which have been the fundamental basis upon which the teaching has been conducted. Courses of study have been worked out under the general supervision of the grade supervisor, Miss Bertha M. Rogers. Committees have always been at work upon the selection of text books under Miss Rogers' supervision, the text book to correspond with the courses as worked out. During 1922 a final determination was made upon a speller that is to be used, the book picked being the Horn-Ashbaugh Spelling book. For the English work in the grades a text book also was finally determined upon and the Pearson Kirchwey text is to be the basic text for this particular branch of the curriculum. In the elementary grades while the general work is under the supervision of Miss Rogers, the work in art is under the special supervision of Miss Helen Halner and the work in music under the special supervision of Miss Herdis Hanson.

"The enrollment in the various elementary grades is heavy, being larger than is advisable for the highest type of work. It is going to be in certain grades possible to relieve the congestion the second semester, however, when the seventh and eighth grades are removed and available rooms will be had for the unusual numbers now accommodated in single grades.

"In the high school building the same disadvantages have been confronted during the first semester as have prevailed for several years. The high school has been under the administration of a new principal this year, W. W. Brown. The course of study has not been changed materially but the grading system and the school day have been rather fundamentally changed. In the high school there has been a particular stress placed upon higher scholarship with a grading system that gives more credit to effort and attitude than ordinarily is given. When the high school is transferred to the new building the school day will be shortened, the school period lengthened and the possibility of a higher grade of work decidedly increased. It is hoped that things may so materialize that the new building will be entered at the opening of the second semester.

"The teaching force in the graded schools has changed but little this year, there being but five new teachers in the entire group. In the high school the turn-over was greater, about 30 percent. The same standards have been maintained with regard to qualifications and experience and the same salary schedule prevails as existed in the city schools before. Janesville's salaries are among the best salaries of the state and because of the salaries paid it is possible to compete favorably with the cities of the state that are given credit for having the best school systems."

$61,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE IN 1922

One of Most Disastrous Years Since Bridge Blaze of 1913.

FIRE RECORD
	Alarms	Damage
1922	238	$61,000
1921	254	14,000
1920	216	34,000
1919	187	15,585

Fire played havoc in Janesville in 1922, causing an estimated damage of $61,000, more than four times greater than that of the preceding year and almost twice as large as the figure for 1920. Most of the loss was covered by insurance.

One of the six big blazes of the year cost a human life—Ole B. Bronson, artificial limb manufacturer, having been burned in the fire at West Side Odd Fellows' building, April 21.

There were 238 alarms, four more than in 1921, and the greatest number in the four years of Cornelius J. Chief Murphy reports some 1,500 Murphy's regime as chief. Of the total alarms, 162 were stills for aid in the city; 11 for aid in the country; 62 box alarms, of which 24 were false, and three calls for the lung-motor.

$45,000 Loss in 7 Fires
Nearly 75 per cent of the total damage for the year was caused by seven fires, the biggest one being that at the J. A. Strimble garage when 25 automobiles were destroyed and nine were damaged.

- The seven big fires were:
- April 21—7 p. m., West Side I. O. O. F. building.
 - October 24—10:15 p. m., Bower City Millwork company.
 - November 28—3:40 a. m., J. A. Strimble garage.
 - November 29—4:30 p. m., Bower City Millwork company.
 - December 3—8:20 a. m., Gray's Pop factory.
 - December 4—2:20 p. m., Otto A. Oestreich residence, 1115 Vista avenue.
 - December 8—4:40 p. m., C. Ed. Moss Grocer company.

The four most disastrous fires came all in one week. By efficient work, the fire department succeeded remarkably well in keeping down the loss.

Most Alarms in January
The most alarms were in January, 31. Calls in the other months were recorded as follows: February, 26; March, 28; April, 12; May, 15; June, 6; July, 15; August, 11; September, 10; October, 29; November, 14 and December, 30.

Some 25,000 feet of two and one-half inch hose was laid during the year and 5,000 feet of chemical hose. Close to 1,000 gallons of chemicals were used. Inspections, with fire prevention conditions fairly good. City Electrician V. F. Moore has been keeping the fire alarm telegraph system in working order by ringing in a different box every noon, while formerly the noon alarms were always rung in from No. 1 station.

New Car Added
The trucks traveled more than 300 miles during the year. The biggest addition to the fire department equipment was a new Oldsmobile roadster for the chief, to replace the Buick which had seen 12 years' active service. This is now used as a work car. The department has approximately 7,500 feet of hose on hand now. Other equipment consists of: four motor trucks, one 60-foot aerial ladder, two steam fire engines, one team of horses.

There were only a few changes in personnel of the department in 1922, the following who were on duty a year ago, having left the service during the year: John Minnick, Dell Corvett, Robert Oliver, Herman Winters. The four new men added were: Raymond-Quigley, Elmer Grytdahl, John Regan and Verne Bickle.

Following are the 23 on the department at the beginning of 1923:

Officers—Con. J. Murphy, chief; C. C. Ryan, assistant chief; Fred Jungblutt, mechanic; V. F. Moore, electrician; John Aldrich and John Harder, captains.

Drivers—James Shortney, Frank Murphy, Sam Pinnow, Peter Wisozki, Arthur Kapka, Elmer Grytdahl.

Hosemen—Erick Graf, George Warner, Herbert Planery, Verne Bickle, David Baxter, Raymond Quigley, John Regan.

Teamsters—Dennis Casey, James Casey, William Drafahl.

1922 Sees Many Improvements in Theaters, Shows

Changes in management and in policy of theaters here in 1922 resulted in a better class of attractions, which patrons appreciated and showed by their attendance. Theater managers have kept up with the time more than ever. Those saying that new productions cannot be seen here have no longer occasion to complain, while added features, such as prologues, news reels and special features have been added to the programs. Especially in the last four months was this improvement noticeable and this augurs well for the coming year. Theatrical management was the changing hands of the property, it being taken over by the Community Theater company of Milwaukee with C. A. Goetz here as manager. Immediately after changing hands, and as a result of it, work on redecorating the theater began. This work has now been completed, the last step being the purchasing of an orange curtain, pulling from the sides, and a blue back drop. The lobby and auditorium was all done over in bright blues, oranges and reds, with gold trimming.

The Apollo management made its theater still more up-to-date by the installation of a new ventilating fan, changing the air every few minutes and insuring perfect comfort in summer and winter. The policy of handling pictures was also changed somewhat, so that the management now has more opportunity for branching out.

The Myers theater had been redecorated in Sept. 1921, when the present management assumed control. Little needed be done to make it an up-to-date theater. However, early in May, a new Bartola pipe-organ, costing several thousand, was installed, and has proven popular since. A contract signed by Manager Charles Boutin brought the 41 greatest Paramount pictures to that theater, some of them still being seen there. Vaudeville was discontinued during the summer months. A number of excellent road shows were seen during the early months of 1922, and again when the theatrical season had reopened in the fall.

The Majestic theater, under management of Mrs. Ben Smith, had a successful year with several extra features in addition to the usual western pictures.

12 Federal Cases Before Cunningham

Twelve cases were reviewed during 1922 by United States Court Commissioner Robert J. Cunningham who closed his second year in that capacity. Eight were for violation of the liquor laws, two receiving stolen property, one for forgery and one for violation of the Mann act.

Three of the liquor cases involved Indians from Wisconsin reservations. Only four of the 12 cases were from Rock county, the others being from various counties in the western federal district.

Bonds ranged from $500 to $5,000. In the case of Ivan Raymond Franklin whose real name is Raymond Fuson, charged with forging the name of his wife to a United States government check, his bonds of $2,000 were about to be forfeited

Gas Company to Spend $20,000 in Purifying Product

As 1922 closed, the New Gas Light company with confidence in the future development of Janesville, was looking forward to further expansion in 1923 and was constructing apparatus for purification of the larger amount of gas which will be needed with the city's growth.

Under the management of I. F. Wortendyke, one of the oldest men in the gas business in Wisconsin, one and one-quarter miles of main were laid during the year to care for new buildings and keep ahead of permanent paving. Pavement construction on Ringold street would have been held up when the gas company ran out of four inch pipe but installed six inch pipe at considerable additional expense that the work might continue.

Thirty-six hundred places in Janesville use gas. The average consumption is about 210,000 to 215,000 cubic feet and on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday it runs higher. The heaviest day is Monday when about 260,000 is used. The plant's capacity is 500,000.

The machinery installed by the gas company nearly two years ago is working perfectly and gives Janesville a modern and thoroughly equipped plant which compares favorably with any in the state.

The railroad commission is very conservative but a recent report of an inspector stated that the plant was in good condition with an absence in the gas of sulphurated hydrogen, which means an absence of deleterious substances.

Janesville persons for the first time had an opportunity in 1922 of purchasing preferred stock of the New Gas Light company when a $100,000 issue was floated. Ninety percent of the stock was sold in Janesville. The stock bears eight percent interest.

The purification machinery for the gas, installation of which was started in 1922 with cost between $15,000 and $20,000. The Gas company, Mr. Wortendyke explained, believes in preparedness and will be ready when more gas is needed in the spring with families moving into Janesville.

Eight thousand feet of cast iron pipe have been purchased for construction of mains in 1923.

Twenty-two persons are employed by the company.

The Optical Shop

On May 1st, 1895, we first opened our place of business in Janesville and since that date our doors have been open every business day. The growth of our business made change of location necessary and in 1911 we built our present quarters, giving us ample room. This structure is built of plum colored vitreous brick, is about one hundred feet long and has two floors and a basement. The building is located at 60 South Main street, next to the Carnegie Library, and directly across the street from the county court house. After removing to this building we installed optical machinery which enables us to make a large per cent of our lenses and do other optical work. We are in position to do optical work quickly and accurately. The space we have enables us to carry a very large stock of optical goods.

We import direct from Europe some lines which are made in only a limited way in this country—such as field glasses and artificial eyes.

Glasses are fitted by J. P. Thorne, M. D., oculist, and W. E. Arnold, registered optometrist.

1922 Sees Many Improvements in Theaters, Shows

Changes in management and in policy of theaters here in 1922 resulted in a better class of attractions, which patrons appreciated, and showed by their attendance. Theater managers have kept up with the tide more than ever. Those saying that new productions cannot be seen here have no longer occasion to complain, while added features, such as prologues, news reels and special features have been added to the programs. Especially in the last four months was this improvement noticeable and this augurs well for the coming year. Chief in the theater changes was the changing hands of the Beverly, it being taken over by the Community Theaters company of Milwaukee with C. J. Goetz here as manager. Immediately after changing hands, and as a result of it, work on redecorating the theater began. This work has now been completed, the last step being the purchasing of an orange curtain, pulling from the sides, and a blue back drop. The lobby and auditorium was all done over in bright blues, oranges and reds, with gold trimming.

The Apollo management made its theater still more up-to-date by the installation of a new ventilating fan, changing the air every few minutes and insuring perfect comfort in summer and winter. The policy of handling pictures was also changed somewhat, so that the management now has more opportunity for branching out.

The Myers theater had been redecorated in Sept. 1922, when the present management assumed control. Little needed be done to make it an up-to-date theater. However, early in May, a new Bartola pipe-organ, costing several thousand, was installed, and has proven popular since. A contract signed by Manager Charles Boutin brought the 41 greatest Paramount pictures to that theater, some of them still being seen there. Vaudeville was discontinued during the summer months. A number of excellent road shows were seen during the early months of 1922, and again when the theatrical season had reopened in the fall.

The Majestic theater, under management of Mrs. Ben Smith, had a successful year with several extra features in addition to the usual western pictures.

12 Federal Cases Before Cunningham

Twelve cases were reviewed during 1922 by United States Court Commissioner Robert J. Cunningham who closed his second year in that capacity. Eight were for violation of the liquor laws, two for receiving stolen property, one for forgery and one for violation of the Mann act.

Three of the liquor cases involved Indians from Wisconsin reservations. Only four of the 12 cases were from Rock county, the others being from various counties in the western federal district.

Bonds ranged from $500 to $5,000. In the case of Ivan Raymond Franklin whose real name is Raymond Fuson, charged with forging the name of his wife to a United States government check, his bonds of $2,000 were about to be forfeited

As 1922 closed, the New Gas Light company with confidence in the future development of Janesville, was looking forward to further expansion in 1923 and was constructing apparatus for purification of the larger amount of gas which will be needed with the city's growth.

Under the management of T. F. Wortendyke, one of the oldest men in the gas business in Wisconsin, one and one-quarter miles of main were laid during the year to care for new buildings and keep ahead of permanent paving. Paving construction on Ringold street would have been held up when the gas company ran out of four inch pipe but installed six inch pipe at considerable additional expense that the work might continue.

Thirty-six hundred places in Janesville use gas. The average consumption is about 310,000 to 315,000 cubic feet and on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday it runs higher. The heaviest day is Monday when about 350,000 is used. The plant's capacity is 500,000.

The machinery installed by the gas company nearly two years ago is working perfectly and gives Janesville a modern and thoroughly equipped plant which compares favorably with any in the state.

The railroad commission is very conservative but a recent report of an inspector stated that the plant was in good condition with an absence in the gas of sulphurated hydrogen, which means an absence of deleterious substances.

Janesville persons for the first time had an opportunity in 1922 of purchasing preferred stock of the New Gas Light company when a $100,000 issue was floated. Ninety percent of the stock was sold in Janesville. The stock bears eight percent interest.

The purification machinery for the gas, installation of which was started in 1922 will cost between $15,000 and $20,000. The Gas company, Mr. Wortendyke explained, believes in preparedness and will be ready when more gas is needed in the spring with families moving into Janesville.

Eight thousand feet of cast iron pipe have been purchased for construction of mains in 1923.

Twenty-two persons are employed by the company.

The Optical Shop

On May 1st, 1895, we first opened our place of business in Janesville and since that date our doors have been open every business day. The growth of our business made change of location necessary and in 1911 we built our present quarters, giving us ample room. This structure is built of plum colored vitreous brick, is about one hundred feet long and has two floors and a basement. The building is located at 60 South Main street, next to the Carnegie Library, and directly across the street from the county court house. After removing to this building we installed optical machinery which enables us to make a large per cent of our lenses and do other optical work. We are in position to do optical work quickly and accurately. The space we have enables us to carry a very large stock of optical goods.

We import direct from Europe some lines which are made in only a limited way in this country—such as field glasses and artificial eyes.

Glasses are fitted by J. P. Thorne, M. D., oculist, and W. E. Arnold, registered optometrist.

MERCY HOSPITAL IN 1922

Patients	1,354
Operations	323
Births	140
Deaths	62

Mercy hospital has entered its 15th year of service, demonstrating to the people of Janesville that it is one of the most essential public institutions. Every day the citizens of this city and surrounding towns are coming to know, some by bitter experience, how vital it is to the community.

Comparing the records of 1922 with 1921, the number of patients has greatly decreased. Last year's total was 1,510. This decrease has put the Sisters of Mercy who conduct the hospital, in grave financial straits. According to Mother Alphonsus, the present debt is $175,000, the interest only of which can be paid, due to the large expense of running the institution. The hospital is now in a financial straits and is unable to maintain the present standard of service. The hospital is now in a Clinic Is Success

A successful all day clinic was conducted at the hospital in October, which 134 doctors from all parts of the state attended. Many operations were performed and treatment given free by the physicians. Half rates were given patients who received attention at the hospital during the clinic. This made it possible for many to have treatment and operations performed who could not have afforded to otherwise.

Dr. Mix, Northwestern Medical school, Chicago, gave two addresses during the day and diagnosed cases as he lectured. Wives of physicians were entertained at noon at the Country club while the doctors were served lunch at the hospital. In the evening a banquet was held at the Colonial club.

35 in Nurses' Course

Miss Rose Golden, Louisville hospital, Ky., came to this city and assumed charge of the nurses' training school at the hospital, Sept. 20.
Thirty-five young women are now in training at the hospital, taking the regular three years' course. A class of five was graduated Dec. 5 at St.
Patrick's hall and another larger class will be graduated the first part of the year, 1923.

Considerable painting and renovating has been done in the past year, although no extensive improvements have been added such as were planned in 1921.

DANCE PAVILION ON KOSHKONONG SHORES

Newville.—Erection of the Maple Beach dance pavilion at a cost of ing here. Henry Pierce built a and the following built cottages at "Koshkonong Retreat": Sidney Mabson, Fred Gray, Randall Thompson and Fay Richardson. A machine shed was built by George Richardson. A cider press and apple storage building was erected by F. B. Sherman at a cost of $1,000. Improvements were made at the schoolhouse to the amount of $250.

Deaths in the neighborhood were:
Mrs. Charles Brown, 49, Jan. 5; Norman Maas, 1 month, Feb. 26; Ruth Richardson, 25, March 21, and Mrs.
Betty Pierce, 73, in May.

20 BLOCK CONCRETE PROGRAM IN 1922

Many Other Improvements Reported by City Engineering Department.

Twenty blocks of reinforced concrete paving were added to the city in 1922, while one-quarter mile of paving was laid in Oak Hill cemetery, according to the records of the engineering department.

Many other activities for the year are reported by Mr. Kerch in the following statement of work:

"In comparison with the past several years, 1922 brought forth the initiation of comparatively little new construction work, due chiefly to the policy of economy adopted by the mayor and common council, and was given over largely to the completion of various large projects started the previous year, chief among which being the construction of the $100,000 Eastern avenue outlet sewer, on which work was started in July of 1921, but upon which comparatively little progress had been made due to the insufficient equipment, lack of organization and hindrances from water. Upon demand from the board of public works, more and better equipment was installed by the contractor, making it possible to increase the speed from 943 feet of pipe laid in the first six months to 2,428 feet in the last six months. This project is now about three-fourths complete, 4272 feet of the total 5931 feet being finished. This outlet sewer is designed to ultimately care for the sewerage south of Rock river and to provide for the future development of the city to the east and north of the limits of the present system, and to care for the objectionable sewerage conditions existing in the Spring Brook territory at the present time.

1.83 Miles of Paving

"The past year marked the largest concrete paving program in the history of the city, a total of 1.83 miles or the equivalent of about 29 blocks being laid. The work on Racine, Fremont, Carrington, Blackhawk and Clark streets, in the vicinity of the first project and completed by the Modern Housing corporation, was laid under contract with the Gund-Graham company of Freeport, Ill. The Hayes-Fountain-Hayes company of this city, made their debut as paving contractors with the awarding of the work of paving Ringold street from Racine street to Ruger avenue and South Second street, amounting to about

1.2 miles. This company also made extensive improvements for the owners of Parkwood addition, in laying sidewalks, curb and gutter, and concrete paving, under the supervision of this office. Plans were prepared and proposals received for paving two blocks on North First street, but owing to delaying in obtaining water and gas pipes for the underground work, this paving was postponed to 1923. This office also supervised the laying of 1394 lineal feet of concrete paving in Oak Hill cemetery, the work being done under contract with Ely and Bennett of this city.

Big Storm Sewer Job

"Part of the contracts with Frank J. Smith, Washington, D. C., for sewers, was left over for completion this year, to which were added the construction of quite a number of small lateral sewers. Plans were prepared for a much needed storm sewer on Prospect avenue from Bluff street to Milton avenue, which has been laid by the forces of the street department.

"In addition to preparing plans, specifications and special assessment rolls of the various improvements mentioned, special assessments were prepared for all street oiling, plans and assessment rolls prepared for about one mile of water main extensions, plans were prepared for the proposed extension of the ornamental lighting system, map accompanying the zoning ordinance, prepared plans and grades given for the usual amount of sidewalk and curb and gutter work, located and recorded all stop-boxes of the water system completed, which are now being recorded by the department. A valuable addition to the records of the office was made this year when about two hundred note-books and records belonging to Edward Ruger, former city engineer, were turned over to the department, and classified and indexed for the use of the public.

"No regular building inspector having been appointed for the past year, the duties of the building department were assumed by this office, with the assistance of the plumbing inspector, and all necessary permits issued and inspections made, in addition to looking after the administration of the new zoning ordinance. Numerous surveys were made for the present and future needs of the city, such as the survey of all the streets in Smith's addition, locating and monumenting street lines and running levels over the same, for the purpose of obtaining profiles and grades. Surveys of portions of Rock river were also made for the purpose of establishing boundary lines, and other work of a similar character. Fifty-five private surveys were also made during the year, resulting in revenues to the city treasurer of fees amounting to $1,000.

Fence Company Optimistic for 1923 Business

Optimism for 1923 business is expressed by A. J. Harris, general manager of the Janesville Fence & Post company, who believes that the farmer is feeling better, due to higher prices for his produce, and that this will have its effect on retailers' business the coming year.

"While our business in 1922 was very little more on actual shipments than in 1921, we have booked a considerable amount of business booked for 1923 that we had at this time last year for 1922," said Mr. Harris. "These shipments will not move until January, February and March."

Several new series of fences for which there seems to be a call have been added to the Janesville line for 1923 and the metal sign division is getting out more attractive designs.

"Competition was very keen and aggressive during 1922 on our line and it has been a buyers' market," explained Mr. Harris. "Due to the railroad and coal strikes, steel production was greatly reduced the last half of the year and the manufacturing trade had difficulty in securing supplies in many lines of steel.

It is our opinion that retailers and consumers will get the effect of this a few months later, as stocks are light and it has been the policy of the retailer to lay out for immediate requirements, the past two years.

Big Increase in Cotton Business

During the last year, the business of the Rock River Cotton company was approximately 50 percent in excess of 1921, Thomas O. Howe, treasurer, says and adds:

"However, this is far from what we were doing during the peak of our trade some years since. Yet it is revival from the dullness in the last two or three years previous to the present season.

"We have not added to the number of employees, although during the peak season of our operations we did have considerable extra help for a short time, possibly three months."

An increase in business during 1923 is expected by the cotton company, which says "conditions are becoming somewhat normal in our line."

Officers of the company are, F. H. Howe, president; Charles Murgleton, vice president; and T. O. Howe, treasurer.

What the Chamber of Commerce Means

BY OSCAR N. NELSON

To explain the value of a Chamber of Commerce to the people who never come into direct contact with its activities, is a task that is none too easy. The only question to compare with it is to ask someone who is familiar with its workings, how a community can get along without one.

A Chamber of Commerce properly conducted is a community clearing house. To the Chamber of Commerce comes the man who needs work; the working girl who needs herself out of employment; the business man or housewife who is in need of help; the family who must find a new home; the owner who has a house for rent; the stranger who seeks a room; the landlord who has a room for rent; the out of town man or woman who is contemplating moving to Janesville; the resident who is planning a business or vacation trip.

In a day's work questions of all kinds are asked of the Chamber of Commerce. The day this article was written the following questions were asked and answered:

"What was the price of potatoes at this time in 1929?"

"How many seats are there in the Myers theater?"

"Is the river safe to skate on?"

"What is the difference between graded and ungraded honey?"

In addition to the above questions, there are the every day questions, "What will the Chamber of Commerce plant start production?" "What is the weather prediction for tomorrow?"

"What is the first morning train to Chicago?"

"Have you any commutation books?"

"What time does the Milwaukee bus leave?"

"Does the interurban come to the Myers House corner or must we go to the Corn Exchange?"

Quoting rates, tracing lost or delayed shipments, routing trips, giving credit ratings, listing rooms, apartments and houses, checking and auditing expense bills is all a part of the day's routine.

Diverting charity cases into the proper channels, lending assistance to projects launched by the churches, institutions and organizations of the city, being alive to every opportunity to further the interests of the city, lending aid to our neighbor, the farmer, whenever possible; ever ready to take the initiative to supply some urgent need in the community; a thousand and one things that space will not permit enumerating.

This day, when to the vast majority of Janesville residents it appears that there are few idle people in the community, there were 14 applicants for work, five of which were supplied. In many instances, where it was apparent that the need of a job was particularly urgent, the manager has personally taken the applicant out and secured for him the necessary work.

"What does the Chamber of Commerce do?" and "What good is it to a community?" are two questions asked every day in the year and rarely satisfactorily answered. Possibly the above activities of a Chamber of Commerce could be daily listed in our newspaper or shouted from the housetops, but if this came to pass the efficiency of the institution would soon be destroyed for the reason that the publicity attached would deter the poverty stricken from asking for help; the unemployed from asking for assistance in securing employment; the home-seeker from asking for available houses.

Many people labor under the impression that the Chamber of Commerce serves only the person who is a member. That impression should be corrected whenever possible, for it is far from the truth. The Chamber of Commerce is as stated before, the community clearing house—conducted for the people of the community whether a member or not—willing and ready to serve the needs of every one who needs its service.

We have but one brand of courtesy and that is accorded to every person who steps across our threshold. The question of whether or not you are a member is never asked and never thought of. The aim of the Chamber of Commerce is to aid you, if possible. Avail yourself of the service that is yours for the asking.

In addition to the activities cited above the manager of a Chamber of Commerce must keep familiar with the changes made in railroad schedules and ratings and proposed legislation that no time will be lost when a fight must be staged to avoid discrimination against the city and community, and ready to take advantage of an opportunity when it presents itself to further our interests.

Since the present manager took charge, the Chamber of Commerce has assisted in every way possible to make conventions held here successful and aims to lend its aid in planning convention programs for the coming year and then carrying them out to a successful conclusion. Janesville has never had its share of state conventions and hereafter will always be found in the field bidding for them.

Perhaps the biggest celebration ever staged in Janesville was the recent fall festival with the slogan, "Leave your pocketbook at home." It was unique and brought much favorable advertising to the city.

This celebration was staged by the business interests of Janesville through the Chamber of Commerce who took the full responsibility of making it a success.

Months were spent in perfecting the organization that had charge of the festival plans and the wonderful success of the undertaking proved the wisdom of the plan of organization followed.

A football game was staged at the fair grounds on Thanksgiving day for the purpose of providing entertainment for the people of Janesville, and was well patronized in spite of disagreeable weather conditions.

The Chamber is now at work on several very important projects, among them being the formation of a plan for financing the home builder, uniting the charitable organizations into one body with a paid secretary to investigate and handle worthy cases, and investigating the possibilities of the community chest idea.

Much constructive work has been planned for the coming year and every effort is being put forth by the manager and his assistants to sell the Chamber of Commerce to the people of Janesville and sell the city of Janesville to the world.

The officers, directors and committees of the Chamber of Commerce are as follows:

What the Chamber of Commerce Means

BY OSCAR N. NELSON

To explain the value of a Chamber of Commerce to the people who never come into direct contact with its activities, is a task that is none too easy. The only question to compare with it is to ask someone who is familiar with its workings, how a community can get along without one.

A Chamber of Commerce properly conducted is a community clearing house. To the Chamber of Commerce comes the man who needs work; the working girl who finds herself out of employment; the business man or housewife who is in need of help; the family who must find a new home; the owner who has a house for rent; the stranger who seeks a room; the landlord who has a room for rent; the out of town man or woman who is contemplating moving to Janesville; the resident who is planning a business or vacation trip.

In a day's work questions of all kinds are asked of the Chamber of Commerce. The day this article was written the following questions were asked and answered:

"What was the price of potatoes at this time in 1920?"

"How many seats are there in the Myers theater?"

"Is the river safe to skate on?"

"What is the difference between graded and ungraded honey?"

In addition to the above questions, there are the every day questions, as: "When will the Chevrolet plant start production?" "What is the weather prediction for tomorrow?"

"What is the first morning train to Chicago?"

"Have you any commutation books?"

"What time does the Milwaukee bus leave?"

"Does the interurban come to the Myers House corner or must we go to the Corn Exchange?"

Quoting rates, tracing lost or delayed shipments, routing trips, giving credit ratings, listing rooms, apartments and houses, checking and

auditing expense bills is all a part of the day's routine.

Diverting charity cases into the proper channels, lending assistance to projects launched by the churches, institutions and organizations of the city, being alive to every opportunity to further the interests of the city, lending aid to our neighbor, the farmer, whenever possible; ever ready to take the initiative to supply some urgent need in the community; a thousand and one things that space will not permit enumerating.

This day, when to the vast majority of Janesville residents it appears that there are few idle people in the community, there were 14 applicants for work, five of which were supplied. In many instances, where it was apparent that the need of a job was particularly urgent, the manager has personally taken the applicant out and secured for him the necessary work.

"What does the Chamber of Commerce do?" and "What good is it to a community?" are two questions asked every day in the year and rarely satisfactorily answered. Possibly the above activities of a Chamber of Commerce could be daily listed in our newspaper or shouted from the housetops, but if this came to pass the efficiency of the institution would soon be destroyed for the reason that the publicity attached would deter the poverty stricken from asking for help; the unemployed from asking for assistance in securing employment; the home-seeker from asking for available houses.

Many people labor under the impression that the Chamber of Commerce serves only the person who is a member. That impression should be corrected whenever possible, for it is far from the truth. The Chamber of Commerce is, as stated before, the community clearing house—conducted for the people of the community whether a member or not—willing and ready to serve the needs of every one who needs its service.

We have but one brand of courtesy and that is accorded to every person who steps across our threshold. The question of whether or not you are a member is never asked and never thought of. The aim of the Chamber of Commerce is to aid you, if possible. Avail yourself of the service that is yours for the asking.

In addition to the activities cited above the manager of a Chamber of Commerce must keep familiar with the changes made in railroad schedules and ratings and proposed legislation that no time will be lost when a fight must be staged to avoid discrimination against the city and community, and ready to take advantage of an opportunity when it presents itself to further our interests.

Since the present manager took charge, the Chamber of Commerce has assisted in every way possible to make conventions held here successful and aims to lend its aid in planning convention programs for the coming year and then carrying them out to a successful conclusion. Janesville has never had its share of state conventions and hereafter will always be found in the field bidding for them.

Perhaps the biggest celebration ever staged in Janesville was the recent fall festival with the slogan, "Leave your pocketbook at home." It was unique and brought much favorable advertising to the city.

This celebration was staged by the business interests of Janesville through the Chamber of Commerce who took the full responsibility of making it a success.

Months were spent in perfecting the organization that had charge of the festival plans and the wonderful success of the undertaking proved the wisdom of the plan of organization followed.

A football game was staged at the fair grounds on Thanksgiving day for the purpose of providing entertainment for the people of Janesville, and was well patronized in spite of disagreeable weather conditions.

The Chamber is now at work on several very important projects, among them being the formation of a plan for financing the home builder, uniting the charitable organizations into one body with a paid secretary to investigate and handle worthy cases, and investigating the possibilities of the community chest idea.

Much constructive work has been planned for the coming year and every effort is being put forth by the manager and his assistants to sell the Chamber of Commerce to the people of Janesville and sell the city of Janesville to the world.

President: H. S. Lovejoy; vice president, R. E. Wisner; second vice president, Ralph J. Kamps; treasurer, Harry S. Haggart; manager, Oscar N. Nelson; traffic manager, L. G. Lockwood; office manager, Meris J. Crow.

Directors—Leo H. Atwood, James S. Elfeld, H. S. Haggart, F. O. Holt, J. K. Jensen, R. J. Kamps, H. S. Lovejoy, L. C. Levy, Fred L. Smith, Charles P. Tooton, R. E. Wisner, P. J. E. Wood.

Steering Committee—L. A. Markham, chairman; Stephen Bolles, A. J. Haebe, Harold J. Dane, W. T. Clarke, E. J. Leach, Walter R. Kohler, Robert F. Buggs, Henry Solomon.

Finance Committee—H. S. Haggart, Louis C. Levy, Fred L. Smith.

Railroad Committee—J. K. Jensen, P. J. E. Wood, R. E. Wisner.

Traffic Regulation—R. F. Buggs, chairman; R. G. Cunningham, J. G. Bridges, J. J. Dulin.

Added.

After being in charge of several different officers, Janesville's cavalry troop, known to Wisconsin national guard headquarters as Headquarters Troop, 53rd cavalry brigade, entered a new era on June 27, 1922, with the appointment of Gilman H. Stordock, Beloit, as captain. Capt. Stordock left the captaincy of the Headquarters Co. First Infantry of Beloit, to take charge of the Janesville troop and has been marvellously successful in moulding an organization which is a credit to Janesville.

At the end of the year the troop had 60 members and during the year enlisted quite a few men to fill the ranks depleted through removals. Under Capt. Stordock's direction the cavalry's new armory at East Milwaukee and North Bluff street, was furnished.

The troop has 23 horses and all were used at the annual encampment at Camp Douglas in August when the troop helped carry off the honors in drilling, field meet and camp sanitation as a part of the Second Squadron of the First Provisional regiment.

Capt. Stordock added to Janesville's fame by attaching the 1922 rifle championship of the Wisconsin national guard. Stordock placed sixth in the pistol shoot.

A $3,000 radio transmitting and receiving set for field work was received and made use of on various occasions.

Janesville troop secured much publicity through activities after the close of camp when they participated in the Elks and American Legion conventions at Beloit and gave exhibitions at Charley Bluff and Bluff View Park, Brodhead. On every occasion when asked, they assisted in local affairs and with the Tank Corps helped in policing the streets during the Harvest Festival.

Present officers are Capt. Stordock and Second Lieut. Ernest Dactweiler. The latter was commissioned Nov. 13. With the resignation in the spring of Capt. Ed. Duthie, Robert Conway was commissioned captain March 23 and resigned two months later. Ervin J. Sartell resigned as second lieutenant July 1. Charles P. Conway signed as second lieutenant, March 22. Capt. W. T. Haldemon, U. S. Army, senior instructor of cadets for Wisconsin, became located here July 1.

Tanks Continue Only in One State

Still scintillating under the role of the only tank corps of the Wisconsin national guard, the Janesville Tanks officially known as the Thirty Second Division Tank company, experienced a pleasing year in 1922, participating in many events, and establishing a good record at the annual encampment.

The members have acquired a great deal more knowledge of tanks and tank warfare. The outfit is the only unit of the service that is a working artillery, being equipped with cannon, machine guns, rifles and pistols. The full complement of equipment, although not all concentrated in Janesville, is worth nearly a million dollars. It includes 26 tanks, 26 seven ton trucks, six three to five ton trucks, three one ton trucks, one five passenger motorcar, and two motorcycles. An artillery repair truck, worth $50,000, is furnished when in the field. Besides there are trailers and wireless apparatus, besides personal equipment.

The two national guard companies mean a lot to Janesville. The tank company alone has meant $27,890 in pay to the 473 different men who have been on the rolls. Army rental of $6,100 has been paid and $3,600 to the fair association.

At present there are 84 men and five officers. The officers are: Capt. work being as follows: Ralph Haldemon, captain, commanding; First Lieut. A. Ponaas and Second Lieut. John Thiele, infantry drill, and Second Lieut. Henry Arndt, supply and mess.

The armory was redecorated during the year and classes conducted one night each week in radio telephony, telegraphy, machine gun and 37-millimetre guns.

The tank corps was the only company to take a drum corps to Camp Douglas which officiated as a regimental band for the provisional regiment.

The organization takes pride in the fact that inspection officers have praised its efficiency and military.

WATCH FOR OUR

COUNTY SCHOOLS REPORT PROGRESS

Many Improvements Were Made in Buildings and Grounds.

The year 1922 was one of good progress in the schools of Rock county, according to County Supt. O. D. Antisdel, who says:

"Most of the districts under my supervision have made some changes and improvements. A number of schools were painted outside, some re-shingled, and many redecorated, so that dirty, dingy walls are an exception. Wells have been put on several school grounds, sinks, bubblers or coolers added, new window shades are common, several new stoves have been installed, ventilation improved in several buildings, new modern outbuildings erected or old ones repaired and painted, flag poles erected and new flags purchased. Several organs and phonographs have been purchased and there are few schools without a musical instrument. Considerable more attention is being given to good music and a music memory contest has been started to create greater interest in this very important part of education.

Spirit Is Progressive.

"Much really creditable teaching has been observed and the general tone and spirit of the school work is harmonious and progressive.

"School societies organized in nearly every school were helpful in teaching practical civics. Warm lunches were served in many schools. New outfits for this purpose were purchased during the fall. A number of schools published papers.

"The County Teachers' association held its annual meeting at the Janesville high school, March 11, and the fall rally was held there September 30. Several teachers' meetings have been held at the teachers' training school. The training school also had a helpful six weeks' summer session.

"The school graduated in June its largest class, nearly 30.

County Contest Held.

"The annual township contests in spelling, arithmetic and writing were held last May and the county contest in June. Miss Ele. or Reese of District 4, town of Union, won the county contest and represented us at the state fair contest. There were 173 eighth grade graduates from the rural schools and 46 from the state graded schools, the largest number we have had in a year. Most of these graduates have gone on to high school. High school enrollments during the fall are the largest ever.

"The annual school board convention and teachers' institute was held July 7.

"The exhibits from the schools for the fairs were the best ever, there being more than 1,000 entries at Janesville and several hundred at Evansville.

"A striking feature at Janesville was the township booths. Schools are already preparing for 1923 fairs.

"Many teachers and pupils were active in the boys' and girls club work, and some won great honors in state and national exhibits. They have also been very helpful in soil surveys. Over 100 pupils have been keeping the state farm account books.

"Another fine indication of the increased interest in rural activities is the greater number of community clubs and meetings; the schools usually having an active part in them.

"During the spring all schools were visited at least once by the supervisors or superintendent. In the last four months all but seven of our schools have been visited, 50 of them twice. We have also helped with over thirty day and evening programs.

"Other important lines of work connected with the schools have been play and athletic contests, which J. K. Arnot and the teachers carried out, the Gazette Good Times club and community work organized by Mrs. Florence Slown Hyde, considerable Red Cross work, and hundreds of local programs of varied nature. Some schools have had very good exhibits of their school work and of vegetables, fruit, potatoes, corn, etc., shown by the children.

"For the rural libraries we selected 1,770 books with a value of $1,406.67. They are paid for from money withheld from the taxes according to Wisconsin laws by the county treasurer, 20 cents per year now for each child of school age.

"During the past year nine districts have closed their schools and transported the pupils to adjoining schools.

"Our two new supervising teachers, Misses Louise A. Jacobson and Anna A. Olson, have worked faithfully. Teachers and school board members have cordially aided in all our work. Some new things have been tried out with good success, but we have also striven to secure improved work in the old and fundamental studies, only making the methods of presenting them more practical and up-to-date. Children are taught more and more to learn by careful observation and by actually doing the things they are learning. They study health by careful observation and by actually doing the things they are learning. They study health by careful observation and by actually doing the things they are learning. They study health by careful observation and by actually doing the things they are learning.

29 MILES OF NEW HIGHWAYS BUILT

15½ Miles of Concrete Added by County in Banner Year
of 1922.

During 1922 Rock county made a rapid advance in its road building program.

There was built in 1922 within the county, 13.5 miles of gravel, 15.5 miles of concrete and 2.5 miles of important gravel highways were resurfaced.

The program for 1923 includes 21½ miles of gravel road construction and the completion of the Janesville-Evansville road, highway 10, concrete construction, and also five miles out of Janesville west on the relocated route 20. In the event legislative funds are provided to meet the federal aid the Beloit-Clinton road, highway 61, will be extended to the Walworth county line. There will be also the usual amount of gravel construction and reconstruction work. As fast as the roads are built they are taken over by the county for maintenance.

140 Miles on State System.

At the present time there are about 140 miles in the state trunk line system and 183 miles in the county trunk system. The entire 322 miles were marked in 1922.

Each year the county patrol system is improved and extended by the county equipment of nine trucks, each manned by two men, or teams and the tractors. The spring holes that developed in the roads last spring due to the abnormal weather conditions have been rebuilt and improved. Many miles of roads were made wider to assure more safe traveling conditions. No effort was spared by the county to provide good detours around concrete roads under construction. The maintenance organization is added to and improved as the opportunity presents and as the traffic increases.

Concrete Work Cheaper.

The county succeeded in bringing the cost of concrete construction by day labor and county owned equipment to $20,000 per mile this year, which would be even more reduced if cement had arrived in sufficient quantity. The county at present is charging $4,000 per mile into soil or segs, raise and judge stock and numerous other practical things of value.

"These are some of the numberless activities of our schools for the year 1922 and our outlook for 1923 is ever Upward and Forward."

the road costs for concrete to pay for the equipment. By the end of next year the equipment will be about charged off and paved for after which the costs per mile can be reduced to around $18,000 per mile or less, according to Commissioner of Highways, Charles E. Moore.

In addition to the concrete paving force there was organized last year a bridge and culvert crew under a skilled foreman. This crew did first class work in culvert and bridge work and saved considerable money for the county.

"The traffic on our highways has been increased enormously in the last 10 years due to the multiplication of automobiles, trucks and auto busses. If the good road movement is to continue, part of the expense must be taken from the general taxpayer and placed upon those who use the roads the most. To that end I hope the legislative bill as recommended by the county board's association, will be passed," advised Commissioner Moore.

ANNUAL REVIEW AND DAILY RECORD

Samson location and promise of cars being assembled and bodies for them made here as soon as the necessary machinery can be installed. As the industry expands so will Janesville, soundly and substantially. The day of speculation is over. There is no other feeling than that of confidence in the new plants erected. They will add to the trading power of Janesville. We have a population of close to 20,000 within the city. In and about the city within riding distance for shopping purposes are living a few over 150,000 people. Everything that makes Janesville more attractive will tend to bring more people here to trade. It follows as does the day the night, the better the city the more shoppers.

And that is another reason why the Chamber of Commerce has meant so much for Janesville. It was half moribund for a year. It came forth rejuvenated and under new management has proved to be a potent force for good to the city—and that means to every man, woman and child in and around Janesville. The Harvest Festival was an earnest of what the Chamber can do and what more it will do towards uniting the people of city and country and calling attention to Janesville as a paramountly superior place in which to do business.

These are the high points in Janesville in the past year. There have been scores of others in all walks and branches of life and civic and industrial activity. The Gazette presents as many as can be contained in a volume of this size. It tells its story in facts and figures.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN ARRESTS SEEN

Traffic and Prohibition Violations Cause 75 Per Cent of Cases.

RECORD OF ARRESTS
1922.....476	1918.....972
1921.....456	1917.....761
1920.....317	1916.....780
1919.....869	1915.....753

Arrests made by the police department under Chief Charles Newman in 1922 totaled 476, or 20 more than the preceding year, the increase being due to the arterial highway ordinance which took effect in December. Had it not been for this legislation the number of arrests would have shown a decline.

As it stands, the figure represents a falling-off of 40 to 50 percent from pre-prohibition days, although it does show a slight increase in prohibition violations over 1921. There were 104 arrests for intoxication in the year just closed compared to 88 the previous year. In addition, 10 were arrested for driving while intoxicated, 16 for possession of liquor and 8 for transporting it, making a total of 138 arrests due to prohibition violations. This is a little more than one-fourth of the total number taken into custody.

There were some 200 arrests for speeding, parking and other traffic violations.

The year was unique in that there were practically no changes in the personnel of the police department, George Porter succeeding Clinton Case as motorcycle patrolman in May. Miss Margaret Kavanaugh resigning April 8 as policewoman and Walter Freese being released as patrolman when the force was cut to the chief and 15 men.

In April, the salary of the chief of police was increased from $2,100 to $2,400, while a new office of assistant chief was created for Thomas Morrissey with a salary of $1,800. There were no other salary changes.

The patrol-ambulance was given a complete over-hauling and repainted and a separate stall was built for it in the city garage.

The mushroom lights added to the downtown district during the year aided police in regulating traffic.

Five Cars Recovered

Of 19 automobiles reported stolen in 1922, six were recovered. Of the 13 not recovered, 12 were Fords.

The cars not recovered were as follows: George Hammes, Ford sedan, Jan. 25; Don Korst, Ford coupe, March 18; C. L. Thompson, J. C. Stukins, Ford coupes, March 26; Robert Lester, Ford touring, April 18; C. R. Van Gilder, Ford touring, June 17; Siever Larsen, Ford touring, August 10; E. F. Teubert, Ford coupe, Sept. 25; William Flock, Ford touring, Oct. 13; O. T. Naatz, Ford touring, Oct. 14; John Aldrich, Chevrolet coupe, Nov. 24; Harry Luman, Ford roadster, Dec. 9.

Cars reported stolen from the following were located by police: John Osgood, George Sennett, Walter McKuen, Walter Guyott, Rollo Lawrenz, and R. F. Rashid.

No Store Robberies.

Outside of automobile thefts, there were no great losses from burglary or larceny, but there were many cases of petty larceny, most of which were the taking of accessories from automobiles. Several arrests for larceny, burglary and forgery, were made and a number were committed to Waupun, Green Bay reformatory and industrial schools.

Some 1,000 "hoppers" at the city lock-up were given free breakfasts, 25 ambulance calls were answered, and many other miscellaneous services were performed by the police.

June Biggest Month.

June was the biggest month of the year for arrests, 83, while December was second with 59. The records for other months: January, 11; February, 25; March, 33; April, 34; May, 45; June, 83; July, 42; August, 31; September, 31; October, 43; November, 27; December, 59.

Of the 476 arrested, 345 were taken to court and 128 discharged.

The department at the end of the year was composed of 13 men and the chief, as follows: Chief, Charles Newman; assistant chief, Thomas Morrissey; captain, Peter D. Champion; sergeant, Charles Handy; night driver, William Ford; motorcycle patrolman, George Porter; patrolmen, Charles Dickinson, Charles Harmon, James Ward, Con O'Leary, Patrick Stein, Leo Lennartz, August Sarstad, William Saxby.

Arrests were made during the year as follows:

Porter, 87; Stein, 62; Lennartz, 54; Case, 33; Newman, 25; Champion, 33; Handy, 27; Saxby, 24; Sarstad, 19; Ward, 21; O'Leary, 16; Dickinson, 12; Morrissey, 26; Ford, 27; Harmon, 19; and Smith, 1.

BOWER CITY BAND HAS ACTIVE YEAR

The Bower City band had an active year, playing 10 summer concerts, several pavement dances and at Flag day and Memorial day services. The band played at the Wisconsin State Fair, the Janesville fair and during the Harvest Festival. Four tones was director and F. J. Sartell, manager. One big improvement was the purchase of a portable bandstand.

Kiwanis Club Has Big Year in Civic Work

With the installation of its new officers, the Kiwanis club closed its books on the most active year since its organization. Since receiving its charter two years ago the Kiwanis club has never been idle. Hardly has one big task been completed than another project has been started.

This fact alone has been a powerful factor in the club's success, and has developed a spirit of co-operation seldom found in an organization. Starting out with an enthusiasm that carried them through the first year of its existence at top speed, the club was expected to falter, but the end of the second year finds Kiwanis stronger and more enthusiastic than ever before.

The officers of the club during the past year were: Oscar N. Nelson, president; Harry S. Haggart, vice-president; J. Merwin Beck, treasurer, and Leo H. Alwood, secretary. Harry S. Haggart will lead the club the coming year, with Walter H. Kohler, vice-president; J. M. Beck, treasurer, and Rex N. Jacobs, as secretary.

The following worth-while achievements are credited to Kiwanis in the year just ended:

Conducted an Easter egg hunt in the Court House park for the grade school children in which nearly three thousand youngsters participated.

Awarded cups in boys' and girls' swimming meet and sent swimming team to state tournament at Milwaukee.

Awarded pennants and championship banner in playgrounds contest.

Held picnic for playground children at Yost's park.

Sponsored Edgerton Kiwanis club and sent fifty-seven members to charter presentation.

Established a service for the underprivileged children of the city and raised one thousand dollars through a three night theatrical performance to finance it.

Took twenty-four members of high school football squad to Wisconsin-Illinois game at Madison.

Played Santa Claus to seventy-four Janesville children.

Threw the full strength of the club into campaigns for funds for local institutions and welfare organizations.

In addition to its efforts along civic lines the club did much to strengthen itself through educating its own members in the teachings of Kiwanis. As a result of this work the local club is recognized as the best Kiwanis club in the district and found at the international convention at Toronto that it had few superiors in the country.

In the international attendance contest the club finished seventh, and with Scranton, Pa., and Davenport, Ia., received honorable mention in the efficiency contest.

At the international convention, each state was given the honor of sending a young lady to represent the state in a tableau in recognition of the wonderful record made by the Janesville club, the Wisconsin district conferred the honor of choosing the young lady to represent Wisconsin upon the local club, and Miss Alice Connell of Janesville was sent to Toronto as Wisconsin's representative.

The Kiwanis club shows no signs of faltering and much good work will be done by this organization the coming year under the leadership of Harry Haggart.

County Finishes Year With Over $250,000 on Hand

Rock county finished the year 1922 with a gross cash balance of $252,393.91, showing the tendency of the supervisors "not to spend public money simply because it is in the treasury."

The gross receipts reported by County Treasurer Arthur M. Church last year amounted to $1,641,636.95 including the balance on hand, January 1, 1922. The disbursements amounted to $1,398,222.01. The budget passed for 1922 amounted to $716,998.98 and the amount to be raised for 1923 shows a slight decrease due to the fact no provisions have been established by the state to raise money within the counties by direct taxation.

The total receipts from the register of deeds office for abstract fees amounted to $3,156.32 and the fees from the register of deeds, $5,653.89. There was $30,379 paid out to 115 women under the provisions of the mothers' pension law and the inheritance tax brought in a revenue of $40,585.47.

Lakotas Acquire Permanent Home

The year just closed was the most eventful in the 14 years' history of the Lakota club, being marked by the purchase of the Dr. George W. 127 12 office and residence, 61 South Jackson street, for a clubhouse. The club took possession, Oct. 1, incorporating the Lakota Home association as the holding company. The annual Halloween and Christmas dancing parties were proclaimed the most successful ever held. The club captured first in the inter-club cribbage tournament in the spring and late in the year organized an eight-team bowling league. Four picnics were held in the summer, and a roller skating party in the spring. The club had a float in the Janesville parade. Reno Koch was president during 1922, while Benjamin Kuhlew heads the club for the first half of 1923.

COUNTY SCHOOLS REPORT PROGRESS

Many Improvements Were
Made in Buildings and Grounds.

The year 1922 was one of good progress in the schools of Rock county, according to County Supt. O. D. Antisdel, who says:

"Most of the districts under my supervision have made some changes and improvements. A number of schools were painted outside, some re-shingled, and many redecorated, so that dirty, dingy walls are an exception. Wells have been put on several school grounds, sinks, bubblers or coolers added, new window shades are common, several new stores have been installed, ventilation improved in several buildings, new modern outbuildings erected or old ones repaired and painted, flag poles erected and new flags purchased. Several organs and phonographs have been purchased and there are few schools without a musical instrument. Considerable more attention is being given to good music and a music memory contest has been started to create greater interest in this very important part of education.

Spirit Is Progressive.

"Much really creditable teaching has been observed and the general tone and spirit of the school work is harmonious and progressive.

"School societies organized in nearly every school were helpful in teaching practical civics. Warm lunches were served in many schools. New outfits for this purpose were purchased during the fall. A number of schools published papers.

"The County Teachers' association held its annual meeting at the Janesville high school, March 11, and the fall rally was held there September 30. Several teachers' meetings have been held at the teachers' training school. The training school also had a helpful six weeks' summer session.

"The school graduated in June its largest class, nearly 30.

County Contest Held.

"The annual township contests in spelling, arithmetic and writing were held last May and the county contest in June. Miss Ele. Lee Reese of District 4, town of Union, won the county contest and represented us at the state fair contest. There were 173 eighth grade graduates from the rural schools and 46 from the state graded schools, the largest number we have had in a year. Most of these graduates have gone on to high school. High school enrollments during the fall are the largest ever.

"The annual school board convention and teachers' institute was held July 7.

"The exhibits from the schools for the fairs were the best ever, there being more than 1,000 entries at Janesville and several hundred at Evansville.

"A striking feature at Janesville was the township booths. Schools are already preparing for 1923 fairs.

"Many teachers and pupils were active in the boys' and girls club work and some won great honors in state and national exhibits. They have also been very helpful in soil surveys. Over 100 pupils have been keeping the state farm account books.

"Another fine indication of the increased interest in rural activities is the greater number of community clubs and meetings, the schools usually having an active part in them.

"During the spring all schools were visited at least once by the supervisors or superintendent. In the last four months all but seven of our schools have been visited, 50 of them twice. We have also helped with over thirty day and evening programs.

"Other important lines of work connected with the schools have been play and athletic contests, which J. K. Arnot and the teachers carried out, the Gazette Good Times club and community work organized by Mrs. Florence Slown Hyde, considerable Red Cross work, and hundreds of local programs of varied nature. Some schools have had very good exhibits of their school work and of vegetables, fruit, potatoes, corn, etc., shown by the children.

"For the rural libraries we selected 1,770 books with a value of $1,406.67. They are paid for from money withheld from the taxes according to Wisconsin laws by the county treasurer, 20 cents per year now for each child of school age.

"During the past year nine districts have closed their schools and transported the pupils to adjoining schools.

"Our two new supervising teachers, Misses Louise A. Jacobson and Anna A. Olson, have worked faithfully. Teachers and school board members have cordially aided in all our work. Some new things have been tried out with good success, but we have also striven to secure improved work in the old and fundamental studies, only making the methods of presenting them more practical and up-to-date. Children are taught more and more to learn about. They study health by careful observation and by actually doing the things they are learning about, conduct societies, school district and town meetings, test milk,

15 1/2 Miles of Concrete Added
by County in Banner Year
of 1922.

During 1922 Rock county made a rapid advance in its road building program.

There was built in 1922 within the county, 13.5 miles of gravel, 15.5 miles of concrete and 22.5 miles of important gravel highways were resurfaced.

The program for 1923 includes 21.5 miles of gravel road construction and the completion of the Janesville-Evansville road, highway 10, concrete construction, and also five miles out of Janesville west on the relocated route 20. In the event legislative funds are provided to meet the federal aid the Deloit-Clinton road, highway 61, will be extended to the Walworth county line. There will be also the usual amount of gravel construction and reconstruction work. As fast as the roads are built, they are taken over by the county for maintenance.

140 Miles on State System.

At the present time there are about 140 miles in the state trunk line system and 182 miles in the county trunk system. The entire 322 miles were marked in 1922.

Each year the county patrol system is improved and extended by the county equipment of nine trucks, each manned by two men, or teams and the tractors. The spring holes that developed in the roads last spring due to the abnormal weather conditions have been rebuilt and improved. Many miles of roads were made wider to assure more safe traveling conditions. No effort was spared by the county to provide good detours around concrete roads under construction. The maintenance organization is added to and improved as the opportunity presents and as the traffic increases.

Concrete Work Cheaper.

The county succeeded in bringing the cost of concrete construction by day labor and county owned equipment to $28,000 per mile this year, which would be even more reduced if cement had arrived in sufficient quantity. The county at present is charging $1,000 per mile into soil or seeds, raise and fudge stock and numerous other practical things of value.

"These are some of the numberless activities of our schools for the year 1922 and our outlook for 1923 is ever Upward and Forward."

the road costs for concrete to pay for the equipment. By the end of next year the equipment will be about charged off and paid for after which the costs per mile can be reduced to around $15,000 per mile or less, according to Commissioner of Highways, Charles E. Moore.

In addition to the concrete paving force there was organized last year a bridge and culvert crew under a skilled foreman. This crew did first class work in culvert and bridge work and saved considerable money for the county.

"The traffic on our highways has been increased enormously in the last 10 years due to the multiplication of automobiles, trucks and auto busses. If the good road movement is to continue, part of the expense must be taken from the general taxpayer and placed upon those who use the roads the most. To that end I hope the legislative bill as recommended by the county board's association, will be passed," advised Commissioner Moore.

Samson location and promise of cars being assembled and beggars for them made here as soon as the necessary machinery can be installed. As the industry expands so will Janesville, soundly and substantially. The day of speculation is over. There is no other feeling than that of confidence in the new plants erected. They will add to the trading power of Janesville. We have a population of close to 20,000 within the city. In and about the city within riding distance for shopping purposes are living a few over 150,000 people. Everything that makes Janesville more attractive will tend to bring more people here to trade. It follows as does the day the night, the better the city the more shoppers. And that is another reason why the Chamber of Commerce has meant so much for Janesville. It was half moribund for a year. It came forth rejuvenated and under new management has proved to be a potent force for good to the city—and that means to every man, woman and child in and around Janesville. The Harvest Festival was an earnest of what the Chamber can do and what more it will do towards uniting the people of city and country and calling attention to Janesville as a preeminently superior place in which to do business.

These are the high points in Janesville in the past year. There have been scores of others in all walks and branches of life and civic and industrial activity. The Gazette presents as many as can be contained in a volume of this size. It tells its story in facts and figures.

YEAR SEES FIRST CAMP FOR GIRLS

Rotardale and Many Other Projects Carried Out by Y. W.

The year 1922 records much progress in the work of the Janesville Y. M. C. A. Among the new enterprises launched were the camp season at Rotardale, the week-end outing cottage at Hiawatha Springs, physical education classes for children and the organization of the Athletic association. The athletic field was also procured and put in condition for use during the past year.

The full budget of $9,000 was raised in the drive held in March, and in a quiet canvass made during December over $500 was given by members for the 1923 assurance fund of the National association to assure support of the work in other countries and in the leading ports of the world.

Girl Reserve Work Success

The Council of Girls' agencies was organized and plans developed for the administration of community girls' work under the provisions of the Allen Perry Lovejoy trust fund. All departments of the association work have enlarged in attendance and scope of activities. The Girl Reserve work is being carried out on a larger scale than in many associations that are several years older. One of the outstanding developments in this connection is the deep interest manifested by the 20 advisers, who have formed a training class which has had an average attendance of 15.

Many Service Enterprises.

The association rooms were used by outside groups and organizations much more than during the first year of their existence. A spirit of democracy and friendliness is noticeable in that girls and young women are coming more and more to meet on an equal footing regardless of economic status.

Community service enterprises were numerous. The association maintained a rest room at the fair and a day nursery during the harvest festival. Girl Reserve groups provided Thanksgiving baskets for a number of families, and did a number of worthwhile things at Christmas time to give joy to others.

Sugar Co. Reports Better Prices

Business of the Rock County Sugar company was somewhat lighter during the last year than in 1921, says a report by J. G. Barriage, auditor. However, he points out that this was offset partially by better prices being received for finished products, which will be a benefit to the farmer, who will receive a bonus of not less than $2 a ton for his beets.

The company expects to operate in the same territory in 1923 as in the past. This takes in the Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha districts in Wisconsin and from Chicago to Belvidere in Illinois.

The factory of the Rock County Sugar company was established in Janesville in 1908. It has a floor space of 75,000 square feet. The capacity of the beet shed is 25,000 tons. An average of beets sliced a year runs around 30,000 tons, making a finished product of sugar of 8,000,000 pounds, 1,800 tons of molasses and 1,700 tons of beet pulp.

Officers of the company are: Capt. James Davidson, president; James E. Davidson, secretary and treasurer, both of Bay City, Mich.; P. H. Marks, factory superintendent; J. G. Barriage, auditor and acting manager, and S. C. Sorenson, agriculturalist.

Landmark Burned at Avalon, Feb. 27

Avalon. — New buildings, George Scott home, $2000 built to replace old home, built in 1815 and a landmark, burned Feb. 27; concrete silos erected on Otto Drager, Gilbert Larson and George Dodge farms; a 40-cattle and 8-horse barn built on Gilbert Larson farm; new barn at Smithton, built by John Smith, 36x96 ft., stable room for 36 cows and six horses, cost $4,000.

Armour Grain company sold elevator to Johnson and DeLong, DeLong in February and A. M. Kokenbrot sold mill and residence to Mr. DeLong and moved to Sharon to engage in milling business with C. E. McCarthy, Janesville.

Fires—Scott home, in February, Tom Kuss house and Gilbert Larson stock barn and silo, May 22; barn and outbuildings on J. W. McArthur farm Aug. 21.

Most important events — Farm Bureau picnic at Carvers Rocks, June 16, with attendance of 1,500 to 2,000 persons; purchase by community club of piano for school house and $5,000 worth of road improvements, including one mile built by county and three by town.

Body of Peter Peterson was found in a back pasture May 22, having fallen 40 feet from the top of a windmill.

160,000 TELEGRAPH MESSAGES HANDLED IN CITY IN 1922

One hundred and sixty thousand messages, enough for each person in Janesville to receive and send seven, were handled by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies during 1922. This is an increase over last year.

About 72,000 words of press matter was handled by the Western Union.

Machinery was installed by the Western Union making possible the handling of four messages each way on a single wire by squad operation. There are 70 clocks in Janesville furnished by naval observatory time through the master clock in the Western Union.

In charge of the Postal is Miss Harriet McLaughlin.

TRADE SCHOOL IS DOING BIG WORK

Institution Better Equipped Today for Practical Teachings.

Progress of the night and vocational schools here during 1922 was in harmony with that of every ten years that the schools have been conducted, and the year just closed will be marked down with preceding ones as years in which a great deal was done for those unable to attend school in the daytime, or too old to wish to, as well as for those younger people who do not yet realize the value of school.

Supt. J. M. Dorrans, director of vocational education here, regards the year with much approval, it being his belief that it has been more successful than preceding ones. He has had hearty cooperation with all members of the local board of industrial education, E. L. Wilcox, president; A. E. Badger, P. O. Holt, secretary; V. P. Richardson and J. L. Wilcox. Mr. Dorrans says:

Work More Practical

"The year 1922 has been more successful and profitable than the past years. While the enrollment at this time is a little higher than it was last year, the real point of congratulation is the fact that we are better equipped today to turn out students in the practical branches of industry and commercial work than at any time previous in the history of the school.

"At the present time the work of the vocational school consists of all-day classes for boys and girls; half day classes for boys and girls; part time classes, which means eight hours per week, and classes for those who are beyond school age.

"At the present time in our commercial department we offer business training in bookkeeping, typing, shorthand, business English, business arithmetic, spelling, penmanship, and calculating for all students.

"In our industrial work for boys we offer machine shop work, auto mechanics and wood work, in addition to the academic work.

"The home arts department offers sewing, cooking, dressmaking, and household management, in addition to academic work.

"Because of the large enrollment in our commercial department, it was necessary to add a new teacher to it last fall.

"The work of apprenticeship on the part of the school is also a phase of work which is receiving more attention. There is an increasing demand for trained mechanics, and the school is cooperating with the industrial commission to this end.

Rehabilitation Is Started

"The work of rehabilitation of the industrially handicapped is also a new phase which is handled by a committee with the director of the school as secretary. This phase of work is possible of great development. The committee on this work consists of the Rev. Henry Williams, Mrs. F. E. Clark, Miss Alice Glenn, LeRoy Horn, J. M. Dorrans, Dr. T. J. Snodgrass, and E. L. Smith. The members of the committee are earnest in their endeavors to be of the greatest help to this community in this work.

"The work of our evening school this year is very encouraging. There have been very few withdrawals, and those withdrawals were caused mainly by departure from the city. The evening school is cooperating with the Mercy hospital in the training of nurses by offering courses in chemistry for the nurses in training.

"A new departure of the commercial department is for the school to supply a girl to take the place of one who attends the commercial department at another her day in school. In this way the girl in the commercial department gets an insight into real office work before the extreme demands of a position are made upon her. It also is helpful to the employer."

SLIGHT INCREASE IN ARRESTS SEEN

Traffic and Prohibition Violations—Cause 75 Per Cent of Cases.

RECORD OF ARRESTS
1922.....476	1918.....972
1921.....456	1917.....761
1920.....317	1916.....780
1919.....869	1915.....753

Arrests made by the police department under Chief Charles Newman in 1922 totaled 476, or 20 more than the preceding year, the increase being due to the arterial highway ordinance which took effect in December. Had it not been for this legislation the number of arrests would have shown a decline.

As it stands, the figure represents a falling-off of 40 to 50 percent from pre-prohibition days, although it does show a slight increase in prohibition violations over 1921. There were 104 arrests for intoxication in the year just closed compared to 88 the previous year. In addition, 10 were arrested for driving while intoxicated, 16 for possession of liquor and 8 for transporting it, making a total of 138 arrests due to prohibition violations. This is a little more than one-fourth of the total number taken into custody.

There were some 200 arrests for speeding, parking and other traffic violations.

The year was unique in that there were practically no changes in the personnel of the police department, George Porter, succeeding Clinton Case as motorcycle patrolman in May, Miss Margaret Kavanagh resigning April 8 as policewoman and Walter Proce being released as patrolman when the force was cut to the chief and 15 men.

In April, the salary of the chief of police was increased from $2,100 to $2,400, while a new office of assistant chief was created for Thomas Morrissey, with a salary of $1,800. There were no other salary changes.

The patrol ambulance was given a complete over-hauling and repainted and a separate stall was built for it in the city garage.

The mushroom lights added to the downtown district during the year aided police in regulating traffic.

Five Cars Recovered

Of 19 automobiles reported stolen in 1922, six were recovered. Of the 13 not recovered, 12 were Fords.

The cars not recovered were as follows: George Hammes, Ford sedan, Jan. 25; Don Koest, Ford coupe, March 9; John G. Macy, Ford coupe, March 18; C. L. Thompson, J. C. Stukins, Ford coupes, March 25; Robert Lester, Ford touring, April 18; C. R. Van Galder, Ford touring, June 17; Siever Larsen, Ford touring, August 10; E. F. Deubert, Ford coupe, Sept. 28; William Flock, Ford touring, Oct. 13; O. T. Naatz, Ford touring, Oct. 14; John Aldrich, Chevrolet coupe, Nov. 24; Harry Luman, Ford roadster, Dec. 9.

Cars reported stolen from the following were located by police: John Osgood, George Schmitt, Walter McKuen, Walter Guyott, Rollo Lawrenz, and R. F. Rashid.

No Store Robberies

Outside of automobile thefts, there were no great losses from burglary or larceny, but there were many cases of petty larceny, most of which were the taking of accessories from automobiles. Several arrests for larceny, burglary and forgery, were made and a number were committed to Waupun, Green Bay reformatory and industrial schools.

Some 1,500 "noppers" at the city lock-up were given free breakfasts, 25 ambulance calls were answered, and many other miscellaneous services were performed by the police.

BOWER CITY BAND

HAS ACTIVE YEAR

The Bower City band had an active year, playing 16 summer concerts, several pavement dances and at Flag day and Memorial day services. The band played at the Wisconsin State Fair, the Janesville fair and during the Harvest Festival. Burr Tolles was director and E. J. Sartell, manager. One big improvement was the purchase of a portable bandstand.

Kiwanis Club Has Big Year in Civic Work

With the installation of its new officers, the Kiwanis club closed its books on the most active year since its organization. Since receiving its charter two years ago the Kiwanis club has never been idle. Hardly has one big task been completed than another project has been started.

This fact alone has been a powerful factor in the club's success, and has developed a spirit of co-operation seldom found in an organization. Starting out with an enthusiasm that carried them through the first year of its existence at top speed, the club was expected to falter, but the end of the second year finds Kiwanis stronger and more enthusiastic than ever before.

The officers of the club during the past year were: Oscar N. Nelson, president; Harry S. Haggart, vice-president; J. Merwin Beck, treasurer, and Leo H. Atwood, secretary. Harry S. Haggart will lead the club the coming year, with Walter R. Kohler, vice-president; J. M. Beck, treasurer, and Rex N. Jacobs, as secretary.

The following worth-while achievements are credited to Kiwanis in the year just ended:

Conducted an Easter egg hunt in the Court House park for the grade school children in which nearly three thousand youngsters participated.

Awarded cups in boys' and girls' swimming meet and sent swimming team to state tournament at Milwaukee.

Awarded pennants and championship banner in playgrounds contest.

Held picnic for playground children at Yost's park.

Sponsored Edgerton Kiwanis club and sent fifty-seven members to charter presentation.

Established a service for the underprivileged children of the city and raised one thousand dollars through a three night theatrical performance to finance it.

Took twenty-four members of high school football squad to Wisconsin-Indiana game at Madison.

Played Santa Claus to seventy-four Janesville children.

Threw the full strength of the club into campaign for funds for local institutions and welfare organizations.

In addition to its efforts along civic lines the club did much to strengthen itself through educating its own members in the teachings of Kiwanis. As a result of this work the local club is recognized as the best Kiwanis club in the district and found at the international convention at Toronto that it had few superiors in the country.

In the international attendance contest the club finished seventh, and with Scranton, Pa., and Davenport, Ia., received honorable mention in the efficiency contest.

At the international convention, each state was given the honor of sending a young lady to represent the state in a tableau in recognition of the wonderful record made by the Janesville club, the Wisconsin district conferred the honor of choosing the young lady to represent Wisconsin upon the local club, and Miss Alice Connell of Janesville was sent to Toronto as Wisconsin's representative.

The Kiwanis club shows no signs of faltering and much good work will be done by this organization the coming year under the leadership of Harry Haggart.

County Finishes Year With Over $250,000 on Hand

Rock county finished the year 1922 with a gross cash balance of $252,393.91, showing the tendency of the supervisors "not to spend public money simply because it is in the treasury."

The gross receipts reported by County Treasurer Arthur M. Church last year amounted to $1,641,636.95 including the balance on hand, January 1, 1922. The disbursements amounted to $1,398,222.01. The budget passed for 1922 amounted to $716,998.98 and the amount to be raised for 1923 shows a slight decrease due to the fact no provisions have been established by the state to raise money within the counties by direct taxation.

The total receipts from the register of deeds office for abstract fees amounted to $2,459.32 and the fees from the register of deeds, $6,653.89. There was $30,370 paid out to 115 women under the provisions of the mothers' pension law and the inheritance tax brought in a revenue of $60,585.47.

Lakotas Acquire Permanent Home

The year just closed was the most eventful in the 14 years' history of the Lakota club, being marked by the purchase of the Dr. George W. Piffard office and residence, 61 South Jackson street, for a clubhouse. The club took possession, Oct. 1, incorporating the Lakota Home association as the holding company. The annual Halloween and Christmas dancing parties were acclaimed the most successful ever held. The club captured first in the inter-club cribbage tournament in the spring and late in the year organized an eight-team bowling league. Four picnics were held in the summer, and a roller skating party in the spring. The club had a float in the Harvest Festival parade. Reno Koch was president during 1922, while Benjamin Kuhlow heads the club for the first half of 1923.

PROPERTY SALES SHOWS INCREASE OVER 1921 MARK

While not coming up to the peak mark set during 1920, the number of instruments filed in the office of the Rock county register of deeds during 1922 was a decided increase over the number filed in 1921. The total number of papers filed during the last year according to a statement prepared by F. P. Smiley, register of deeds, was 5,579; the number in 1921, 5,157; and in 1920, the "boom year" for real estate dealers, 9,294. Inspection of the real estate papers shows that the "speculation" element has departed in property transactions. There are little or no "wild-cat" option practices. Rather business in property has steadied down to a more normal and sane basis.

Rotardale and Many Other Projects Carried Out by Y. W.

The year 1922 records much progress in the work of the Janesville Y. M. C. A. Among the new enterprises launched were the camp season at Rotardale, the week-end outing cottage at Hiawatha Springs, physical education classes for children and the organization of the Athletic association. The athletic field was also procured and put in condition for use during the past year.

The full budget of $9,000 was raised in the drive held in March, and in a quiet canvass made during December over $200 was given by members for the 1923 assurance fund of the National association to assure support of the work in other countries and in the leading ports of the world.

Girl Reserve Work Success

The Council of Girls' agencies was organized and plans developed for the administration of community girls' work under the provisions of the Allen Perry Lovejoy trust fund. All departments of the association work have enlarged in attendance and scope of activities. The Girl Reserve work is being carried out on a larger scale than in many associations that are several years older. One of the outstanding developments in this connection is the deep interest manifested by the 20 advisers, who have formed a training class which has had an average attendance of 18.

Many Service Enterprises

The association rooms were used by outside groups and organizations much more than during the first year of their existence. A spirit of democracy and friendliness is noticeable in that girls and young women are coming more and more to meet on an equal footing regardless of economic status.

Community service enterprises were numerous. The association maintained a rest room at the fair and a day nursery during the harvest festival. Girl Reserve groups provided Thanksgiving baskets for a number of families, and did a number of worthwhile things at Christmas time to give joy to others.

Sugar Co. Reports Better Prices

Business of the Rock County Sugar company was somewhat lighter during the last year than in 1921, says a report by J. C. Barriage, auditor. However, he points out that this was offset partially by better prices being received for finished products, which will be a benefit to the farmer, who will receive a bonus of not less than $2 a ton for his beets.

The company expects to operate in the same territory in 1923 as in the past. This takes in the Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha districts in Wisconsin and from Chicago to Belvidere in Illinois.

The factory of the Rock County Sugar company was established in Janesville in 1903. It has a floor space of 75,000 square feet. The capacity of the beet shed is 25,000 tons. An average of beets sliced a year runs around 36,000 tons, making a finished product of sugar of 8,000,000 pounds, 1,800 tons of molasses and 1,700 tons of beet pulp.

Officers of the company are: Capt. James Davidson, president; James E. Davidson, secretary and treasurer, both of Bay City, Mich.; F. H. Marks, factory superintendent; J. C. Barriage, auditor and acting manager; and S. C. Sorenson, agriculturalist.

Armour Grain company sold elevator to Johnson and DeLong. Darien in February and A. M. Rokenbrodt sold mill and residence to Mr. DeLong and moved to Sharon to engage in milling business with C. E. McCarthy, Janesville.

Fires—Scott home, in February, Tom Kass house and Gilbert Larson stock barn and silo, May 22; barn and outbuildings on J. W. McArthur farm Aug. 21.

Most important events — Farm Bureau picnic at Carvers Rocks, June 15, with attendance of 1,500 to 2,000 persons; purchase by community club of piano for school house and $5,000 worth of road improvements, including one mile built by county and three by town.

Body of Peter Peterson was found in a back pasture May 22, having fallen 40 feet from the top of a windmill.

160,000 TELEGRAPH MESSAGES HANDLED IN CITY IN 1922

One hundred and sixty thousand messages, enough for each person in Janesville to receive and send seven, were handled by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies during 1922. This is an increase over last year.

About 72,000 words of press matter was handled by the Western Union.

Machinery was installed by the Western Union, making possible the handling of four messages each way on a single wire by squad operation.

There are 70 clocks in Janesville furnished by naval observatory time through the master clock in the Western Union.

In charge of the Postal is Miss Harriet McLaughlin.

TRADE SCHOOL IS DOING BIG WORK

Institution Better Equipped Today for Practical Teachings.

Progress of the night and vocational schools here during 1922 was in harmony with that of every ten years that the schools have been conducted, and the year just closed will be marked down with preceding ones as years in which a great deal was done for those unable to attend school in the daytime, or too old to wish to, as well as for those younger people who do not yet realize the value of school.

Supt. J. M. Dorrans, director of vocational education here, regards the year with much approval, it being his belief that it has been more successful than preceding ones. He has had hearty cooperation with all members of the local board of industrial education. F. L. Wilcox, president; A. B. Badger, F. O. Holt, secretary; W. B. Richardson and J. L. Wilcox. Mr. Dorrans says:

Work More Practical

"I regard 1922 as being more successful and profitable than the past years. While the enrollment at this time is a little higher than it was last year, the real point of congratulation is the fact that we are better equipped today to turn out students in the practical branches of industry and commercial work than at any time previous in the history of the school.

"At the present time the work of the vocational school consists of all-day classes for boys and girls; half day classes for boys and girls; part time classes, which means eight hours per week, and classes for those who are beyond school age.

"At the present time in our commercial department we offer business training in bookkeeping, typing, shorthand, business English, business arithmetic, spelling, penmanship, and calculating for all students.

"In our industrial work for boys we offer machine shop work, auto mechanics and wood work, in addition to the academic work.

"The home arts department offers sewing, cooking, dressmaking, and household management, in addition to academic work.

"Because of the large enrollment in our commercial department, it was necessary to add a new teacher to it last fall.

"The work of apprenticeship on the part of the school is also a phase of work which is receiving more attention because of the increasing demand for trained mechanics, and the school is cooperating with the industrial commission to this end.

Rehabilitation Is Started

"The work of rehabilitation of the industrially handicapped is also a new phase which is handled by a committee with the director of the school as secretary. This phase of work is possible of great development. The committee on this work consists of the Rev. Henry Willmann, Mrs. F. E. Clark, Miss Alice Glenn, LeRoy Horn, J. M. Dorrans, Dr. T. J. Snodgrass, and F. L. Smith. The members of the committee are earnest in their endeavors to be of the greatest help to this community in this work.

"The work of our evening school this year is very encouraging. There have been very few withdrawals, and those withdrawals were caused mainly by departure from the city. The evening school is cooperating with the Mercy hospital in the training of nurses by offering courses in chemistry for the nurses in training.

"A new departure of the commercial department is for the school to supply a girl to take the place of one who attends the commercial department during her day in school. In this way the girl in the commercial department gets an insight into real office work before the extreme demands of a position are made upon her. It also is helpful to the employer."

Janesville put through a $557,000 building program in 1922 compared to $1,200,000 in 1921.

Thus figure of over a half-million is exclusive of construction work of the Chevrolet Motor and Fisher Body companies in Spring Brook which will be around $500,000.

The dropping-off over the preceding year does not necessarily represent a general slump in building activities because included in the building estimate for 1921 was $700,000 for the new high school, while only $300,000 is included for this project in the 1922 figures. The new building was figured in 1921 at $700,000 whereas the past year showed the cost will be nearer $200,000.

Perhaps a clearer comparison of the two years can be made by including the figures for the new high school. In this case, 1922 shows a decrease of only $150,000 from the record of the preceding year, as follows:

52 New Houses Added

Records of the building inspectors' department show 52 new house building permits, with a valuation of $210,000, in the past year compared to a record for 1921 of 92 houses and $330,000. This is a decrease of 40 houses and $110,000.

There is no question but what, had the Chevrolet taken over the Samson No. 1 plant earlier in the year, 1922 would greatly have exceeded the preceding year in the number of houses built. This is borne out by the greatly increased activity after the Chevrolet announcement had been made. For nine months of the year, the monthly average of new houses started was between three and four whereas after the Chevrolet company's action in moving into Janesville, the house building permits jumped to 15 in October and 7 in November.

1923 Outlook Bright

The outlook for 1923 is bright. When construction took such a boom in the late fall of 1922 there is every indication that it will continue as heavy if not greater in the coming spring and summer.

Another encouraging feature is that practically all of the houses erected during 1922 and 1921 were built by individuals whereas in the preceding year of 1920, when house building corporations were active, 325 new homes were recorded.

The largest single building project during 1922, aside from the new high school and General Motors activities, was the beautiful $25,000 addition to the Wisconsin telephone company's exchange. The extra room became necessary with the consolidation of the two phone companies and construction was started in the spring of 1922. Another costly construction job was that of the Standard Oil company in putting up a $10,000 garage and storage house at its new site in Spring Brook. In addition there were a number of other business and residential projects.

A $13,000 four-apartment house was started for Mrs. Luebke at the corner of South Academy and Pleasant streets.

90 New Garages

In addition to dwelling and other larger construction jobs, 90 new private garages were added during 1922, and 123 alterations and alterations improvements.

The total number of building permits for the year was 235 with 465 inspections and $700 collected in fees; compared to the 1921 record of 431 permits, 640 inspections and $600 in fees.

The building permits for 1922 tell the story, as follows: 52 dwellings, 2 stores, 90 garages, 4 shops, factories and warehouses, 112 additions and alterations, 46 equipment and heating, 2 excavation, 7 billboard's, 7 gasoline tanks, 3 moving, 1 wrecking and 10 miscellaneous.

October Biggest Month

The most permits were issued during October, 69, while May was the second largest month with 46. The record of permits per month and values, follows:

	Permits	Value
January	6	$50,400
February	12	92,000
March	20	11,000
April	37	24,465
May	46	34,100
June	24	8,700
July	22	14,237
August	19	18,425

September	32	30,200
October	69	84,975
November	35	47,000
December	12	32,498

365 $355,000

Many important remodeling jobs were completed during 1922, these costing $1,000 or over being, as follows:

While not coming up to the peak mark set during 1920, the number of instruments filed in the office of the Rock county register of deeds during 1922 was a decided increase over the number filed in 1921.

The total number of papers filed during the last year according to a statement prepared by F. P. Smiley, register of deeds, was 5,579; the number in 1921, 5,157; and in 1920, the "boom year" for real estate dealers, 9,294.

Inspection of the real estate papers shows that the "speculation" element has departed in property transactions. There are little or no "wild-cat" option practices. Rather business in property has steadied down to a more normal and sane basis.

Carrying 620,000 passengers with a total mileage of 323,685, the Janesville Traction company experienced a good year of business in 1922—an average of 1,690 passengers and 900 miles per day.

The best month of business was May when 58,706 passengers were carried which is about 4,000 higher than the average month's business, estimated at 51,600.

Many repairs were made in maintaining the lines in first class shape. Capt. Charles W. Murray said. The worst job was the rebuilding of the track on South Main from Milwaukee

Great Amount of Good Is Done by Public Nurses

Much attention was given to welfare work in the interest of pre-school age children by county and city public health nurses, during 1922. Conferences were held in the spring in Janesville and Milton, with an aggregate attendance of 119 children. The child welfare special sent out by the state board of health was in the county three weeks, making stops in 10 different rural centers, and examining 421 children.

During the summer, Miss Anna Luetscher, county nurse, did follow-up work in the homes, visiting 104 families.

Tuberculosis clinics were held at Edgerton and in Janesville during the year, the county nurse assisting at each. Exhibits were held at the fairs in Janesville and Evansville, 99 infants having been examined at the Janesville fair. The county nurse cooperated in the observance of Good Health week in October, sending program suggestions to all rural teachers, and delivering a number of talks before community groups. Miss Luetscher promoted interest in and assisted at the two health conferences conducted at the city hall in Janesville in November and December under the auspices of the state bureau of child welfare and the federal government under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner maternity act.

Contagion Is Traced

Much time was given in the fall to tracing down contagion, three children in different schools having been at the peeling stage of scarlet fever when the disease was discovered.

Pupils of 75 rural schools and one village school were given general physical examinations during the year, and 43 schools were visited in response to emergency calls from teachers. It is impossible for the county nurse to visit all schools for physical examination work during the year but she responds to emergency calls in cases of contagion or where the health of the pupils demands special attention as reported by the teachers.

Miss Luetscher gives considerable time to community educational work and in this connection delivered 27 talks before clubs and public gatherings during the year. It is also the duty of the county nurse to make investigations concerning dependent and delinquent children in the rural districts. Infant layettes for needy cases were provided the county nurse by the home economics classes in the high schools of Orfordville, Evansville, Clinton and Milton, and by the Rural Community Club of North Johnstown.

For Red Cross in the rural schools, dental care and glasses were provided for a number of children whose parents were unable to meet this expense.

Work of City Nurse

Miss Hulda Andreas, city nurse, assisted at child welfare conferences and at the tuberculosis clinic in Janesville. She assisted in the health booth at the Janesville fair. During the period from February 9 to December 20, Miss Andreas made 1,280 home calls, giving some bedside care in each instance. Cases in which care was given included: 17 tuberculosis patients; 19 prenatal care; 31 maternity care; 7 pneumonia; 7 post operative cases; 52 colds; and 53 cases representing a variety of diseases. Cases referred to Mercy hospital, 8; cases for which county aid was obtained, 20; cases for which aid was obtained from Kiwanis clinic, 7.

Record Business for Hough Plant

Business materially larger than in any previous year of their history is reported by the Hough Shade corporation, 1923-1924 McKee boulevard. The company employs 125 persons and uses 60,000 square feet of floor space.

During 1922, a separate department was organized as the industrial shade division. The product is a wood slat shade and equipment especially adapted for buildings which utilize steel sash and is known as Ra-Tox Industrial Shade.

Already the new shade division is beginning to take on a considerable volume of business, says A. C. Hough, president. This is true especially where LeRoy J. Steffen, formerly of Milwaukee, has established efficient representation. Many of the largest manufacturing establishments in the county are equipping their plants with this new line, which is covered by many new patents.

During the past year, the Hough Shade company has installed considerable new equipment. At present, work is progressing on five new machines which are expected to be in operation by April 1.

Commenting on the financial side of the concern, Mr. Hough says:

"We have an actual investment of over $300,000 in the business. Our payroll is in excess of $125,000 a year. We hope our business the coming season will be larger than even last season, which was our banner season up to date."

Officers of the A. C. Hough Shade company are: President, A. C. Hough; Vice President, Charles H. Steffen; Secretary, George H. Steffen; Treasurer, Charles H. Steffen.

$225,000 SPENT ON PHONE SERVICE

Extensive Development Follows Consolidation of Two Companies.

What was the most extensive development of the telephone business in Janesville in the last decade, took place in the year just closed with the consolidation of the Rock County Telephone company with the Wisconsin Telephone company on East Milwaukee street and a large part of the consolidation work in underground and aerial cables completed.

A total of $225,000 has thus far been appropriated to cover cost of changes and improvements necessary in connection with the merger. This is divided as follows:

Removal Rock County	$15,000
Changing substation	19,750
Consolidation aerial and underground lines	78,000
New local switchboard	65,000
Long distance board	8,900
Building addition	28,000
New Addition Completed

Construction of a 12-foot addition to the building to conform with the style of architecture of the main part was nearly completed as the year closed. The building is one of the finest in the city. Harry Summers is the contractor.

Additional facilities will be afforded when the addition is ready for occupancy. There will be a cafeteria, a larger rest room and locker room, and more office space will be afforded for the district manager and an office for the district traffic supervisor.

With 4,700 patrons, the Wisconsin Telephone company here employs 60 operators, 12 in the commercial department and 12 in the plant, or a total of 84 employees. A great improvement during the year was the installation of nine additional positions on the local switchboard, giving 20 positions, at a cost of $65,000 and four on the long distance, at a cost of $8,900. Ten operators now sit at the long distance board.

Facilities for Subscribers

All Rock County phones have been taken out and the standard equipment of the Bell lines installed and a large percentage of those who had wall phones now have desk, because no difference is made in the charge by the Bell. Alley type of construction is being used by the Wisconsin company. The Rock used the Electric company's poles to a large extent. Nine and three-fourths miles of aerial cable, three miles of underground cable, 156 poles, 132 miles twisted pair wire and 40 miles of iron wire of the Rock county system must be removed because of duplication. Lightning and electrical protection has been afforded to former Rock county subscribers.

A large crew is now at work on the aerial and underground work throughout the city and have been for many months. The Rock office was closed August 8 when cables were switched into the Milwaukee street office.

New Traffic Supervisor

No important changes were effected in the personnel during the year. H. E. Roberts came to Janesville as district traffic supervisor. His work will tend toward even further betterment of service through introduction of up-to-the-minute switchboard methods. He is a University of Wisconsin graduate and has been with the telephone company for several years.

W. N. Cash, district manager, continues in that capacity. Mr. Cash has had much experience in consolidation of telephone plants during his 22 years' service, which have been of great value in making the work here run smoothly. Miss Anna M. Hedberg is chief operator and Elmer L. Higgins, manager.

Raymond Shade Sales Boosted

Business for Raymond Shade has never before is reported for 1922 by the Raymond Shade corporation. "We have had some of the best export business, but the largest increase was in our domestic business," the report says.

"We are constantly endeavoring to increase the volume and diversity of our export business and to keep up in the most desirable ways our sales in the domestic market. We are also endeavoring to increase our sales in the foreign market and also to increase our sales in the domestic market."

Janesville put through a $555,000 building program in 1922 compared to $1,200,000 in 1921.

This figure of over a half-million is exclusive of construction work of the Chevrolet Motor and Fisher Body companies in Spring Brook which will be around $500,000.

The dropping-off over the preceding year does not necessarily represent a general slump in building activities because included in the building estimate for 1921 was $700,000 for the new high school, while only $200,000 is included for this project in the 1922 figures. The new building was figured in 1921 at $700,000 whereas the past year showed the cost will be nearer $900,000.

Perhaps a clearer comparison of the two years can be shown by excluding the figures for the new high school. In this case, 1922 shows a decrease of only $150,000 from the record of the preceding year, as follows:

Records of the building inspector's department show 52 new house building permits, with a valuation of $210,040, in the past year compared to a record for 1921 of 93 houses and $330,000. This is a decrease of 40 houses and $110,000.

There is no question but what, had the Chevrolet taken over the Samson No. 1 plant earlier in the year, 1922 would greatly have exceeded the preceding year in the number of houses built. This is borne out by the greatly increased activity after the Chevrolet announcement had been made. For nine months of the year, the monthly average of new houses started was between three and four whereas after the Chevrolet company's action in moving into Janesville, the house building permits jumped to 15 in October and 7 in November.

1923 Outlook Bright

The outlook for 1923 is bright. When construction took such a boom in the late fall of 1922, there is every indication that it will continue as heavy if not greater in the coming spring and summer.

Another encouraging feature is that practically all of the houses erected during 1922 and 1921 were built by individuals whereas in the preceding year of 1920, when house building corporations were active, 325 new homes were recorded.

The largest single building project during 1922, aside from the new high school and General Motors activities, was the beautiful $25,000 addition to the Wisconsin Telephone company's exchange. The extra room became necessary with the consolidation of the two phone companies and construction was started in the spring of 1922. Another costly construction job was that of the Standard Oil company in putting up a $10,000 garage and storage house at its new site in Spring Brook. In addition there were a number of other business and establishments erected. A $13,000 four-apartment house was started for Mrs. Luebke at the corner of South Academy and Pleasant streets.

90 New Garages

In addition to dwelling and other larger construction jobs, 90 new private garages were added during 1922, and 120 additions and alteration improvements.

The total number of building permits for the year was 336 with 465 inspections and $700 collected in fees; compared to the 1921 record of 431 permits, 640 inspections and $600 in fees.

The building permits for 1922 tell the story, as follows: 52 dwellings, 2 stores, 90 garages, 4 shops, factories and warehouses, 112 additions and alterations, 46 equipment and heating, 2 excavation, 7 billboards, 7 gasoline tanks, 3 moving, 1 wrecking and 10 miscellaneous.

October Biggest Month

The most permits were issued during October, 69, while May was the second largest month with 45. The record of permits per month and values, follows:

	Permits	Value

45 Accidental Deaths in County Keep Coroner Busy

Coroner Lynn Whaley, Janesville, has a busy year investigating nearly all of the 45 cases of deaths from other than natural causes and holding nine inquests, about the same number as last year. The number of inquests held gives no fair indication of the amount of work involved in this office, for each case is investigated and inquests held if the facts warrant. There were 35 deaths last year investigated by the coroner.

Inquests were held at Janesville in the death of Eugene Kuntz, 20, killed by an automobile April 28; John Slack, of Beloit, who died May 20 at Mercy hospital and resulted in Nick Pappas, being held for manslaughter at Edgerton in the death of Charles Reuterskiold, killed March 11, in an automobile accident.

The six inquests in Beloit were in the death of Frank Barden, who committed suicide April 25, shooting his wife, Pearl, who died the 27th; Arthur O'Donnell, Janesville, killed by Beloit street car, May 13; Joseph Rosenthal, killed July 16 in auto accident October 15 and Andrew Garrigan, shoe dealer, killed in automobile accident.

In only one instance were verdicts returned, in which it was stated that there was cause for criminal action and that was the shooting of Slack, for which Pappas is now serving a year in the penitentiary.

The chronological history of cases to which the attention of Coroner Whaley was given during year, with cause of death is as follows:

QUIET YEAR IN JUSTICE COURT IS GOOD SIGN

A flourishing year for the justice court here, presided over by Justice Charles Lange, would mean that the year had been a poor one for business, and therefore the report coming from Mr. Lange that 1922 was a quiet 12 months as far as judgments were concerned should be received with gladness.

Approximately 500 cases were entered Judge Lange reports. Of these but 150 went to judgment, the others being dismissed with the exception of 15, which actually went to trial. This is a great contrast to the number a few years ago, when there was a case almost daily. Most of the judgments were on store accounts, the majority being bills over which there was no dispute, but which the store-keepers preferred to have a judgment on rather than have them stand as accounts, less easily collected. All were on Rock county people, Judge Lange's authority extending only to the county limits, although many were brought by outside concerns. All county cities and towns were represented.

This total, both of 500 and 150, was about the same or a little less than in 1921, and while the last few months saw many less cases than the first few, this condition always exists, as storekeepers and others usually straighten up accounts and start suits in January and February.

Marriages amounted to but two during the entire year, this decrease being due to the fact that the law was changed but a few years ago so that the usual license was required and the justice could not issue a special permit. Five and ten years ago, there was an average of 25 marriages per year.

Notices were served on but six owners of tubercular cattle, this work now being handled mainly by the state department.

Aug. 8.—Francis Vall, 5, Janesville, killed by automobile.

12.—Florence Freyer, 10, Beloit, killed by auto-truck.

22.—James Cavanaugh, 27, Beloit, motorcycle-street car crash.

Sept. 17.—Clayton C. Murdock, 26, Brodhead, drowning, Lake Koshkonong.

26.—Leary Pautsch, 9 mos. Janesville, burned to death.

26.—Theodore M. Calkins, 26, Beloit, burns, kerosene lamp.

27.—Lawrence Onsgard, 20, Orfordville, suicide, shotgun.

Oct. 15.—Rachel Robinson, 61, Beloit, struck by automobile.

Oct. 15.—Gladys Plankey, 16, and sister, Beatrice, 7, Beloit, kerosene lamp explosion.

20.—August Carlson, 45, Beloit, shock from falling in river.

27.—Arthur Zessin, South Haven, auto accident at Edgerton.

Nov. 4.—Olive Cox, 60, Beloit, asphyxiated.

12.—Blanche Bacon, 30, Beloit, killed in auto accident.

16.—William O'Hara, 39, Janesville, asphyxiated.

23.—John H. Spersrud, 51, Magnolia, hung himself.

27.—Everett Ransom, 62, Janesville, drowned, Rock river.

Dec. 10.—Ed Heiden, 46, Shopiere, suicide, shotgun.

24.—Mrs. Bridget Plunkett, 80, Footville, burned to death.

RED CROSS DOES WONDERFUL WORK

Humanity Everywhere Is Benefitted—Nurse Important Here.

The Rock County chapter, American Red Cross, has a notable record of home service work for the year 1922, and has also responded liberally in times of disaster and emergency through the national organization. The sum of $346.69 was contributed by the 11 branches of the chapter to the Mississippi Valley flood victims in May, and the sum of $375 was given for Grecian relief in November. A committee composed of Mrs. F. C. Grant, Misses Sara Richardson and Gertrude Cobb also collected clothing for the Greek refugees.

Miss Hattie Alden, secretary in charge of the Rock County chapter, in the federal building, devotes much time to correspondence and investigations in connection with compensation claims and other interests of ex-service men. During 1922, 23 original claims were prepared by Miss Alden. Letters written relative to these claims and in connection with other interests of ex-service men totaled 908. This phase of the work also involved 309 interviews and 64 calls outside the office. Emergency relief was given in a large number of instances to ex-service men and their families throughout the county and transient ex-service men were aided in various ways.

Work of Janesville Nurse
The work of Miss Alice Glenn, school nurse, is supported by the Janesville branch. In addition to her regular work, Miss Glenn gave four health talks to outside groups; made arrangements for four persons to be received as patients at the Jefferson tuberculosis sanatorium; secured food and clothing for families in need; visited the blind residents of the city and secured a pension in one instance; served on Industrial rehabilitation committee; assisted at the infant welfare clinic in March and the T. B. clinic in April, doing follow-up work in connection with each; had a booth at Janesville fair and assisted during harvest festival. Miss Glenn also accompanied three patients to the Jefferson sanatorium and returned children to Sparta.

2,700 Children Examined
Children examined totaled 2,764. Number having defective teeth were, 1,205; defective tonsils, 118; defective vision, 55; defective speech, 5; defective hearing, 4. Teeth defects were corrected in 224 cases; tonsils in 57; and vision in 51. Arrangements were made whereby physicians removed tonsils free or for a nominal charge in 14 cases. Total number of calls were 735. Throats were inspected for symptoms of contagion at several schools from time to time.

Great Amount of Good Is Done by Public Nurses

Much attention was given to welfare work in the interest of pre-school age children by county and city public health nurses, during 1922. Conferences were held in the spring in Janesville and Milton, with an aggregate attendance of 119 children. The child welfare specialist sent out by the state board of health was in the county three weeks, making stops in 10 different rural centers, and examining 421 children.

During the summer, Miss Anna Luetscher, county nurse, did follow-up work in the homes, visiting 104 families.

Tuberculosis clinics were held at Edgerton and in Janesville during the year, the county nurse assisting at each. Exhibits were held at the fairs in Janesville and Evansville, 99 infants having been examined at the Janesville fair. The county nurse cooperated in the observance of Good Health week in October, sending program suggestions to all rural teachers, and delivering a number of talks before community groups. Miss Luetscher promoted interest in and assisted at the two health conferences conducted at the City Hall in Janesville in November and December under the auspices of the state bureau of child welfare and the federal government under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner maternity act.

Contagion Is Traced

Pupils of 75 rural schools and one village school were given general physical examinations during the year, and 43 schools were visited in response to emergency calls from teachers. It is impossible for the county nurse to visit all schools for physical examination work during the year but she responds to emergency calls in cases of contagion or where the health of the pupils demands special attention as reported by the teachers.

Miss Luetscher gives considerable time to community educational work and in this connection delivered 27 talks before clubs and public gatherings during the year. It is also the duty of the county nurse to make investigations concerning dependent and delinquent children in the rural districts. Infant layettes for needy cases were provided the county nurse by the home economics classes in the high schools of Orfordville, Evansville, Clinton and Milton, and by the Rural Community Club of North Johnstown. Through funds provided by the Junior Red Cross in the rural schools, dental care and glasses were provided for a number of children whose parents were unable to meet this expense.

Work of City Nurse

Miss Hulda Andreas, city nurse, assisted at child welfare conferences and at the tuberculosis clinic in Janesville. She assisted in the health booth at the Janesville fair. During the period from February 9 to December 20, Miss Andreas made 1,280 home calls, giving some bedside care in each instance. Cases in which care was given included: 17 tuberculosis patients; 19 prenatal care; 31 maternity care; 7 pneumonia; 7 post operative cases; 52 colds; and 53 cases representing a variety of diseases. Cases referred to Mercy hospital, 8; cases for which county aid was obtained, 20; cases for which aid was obtained from Kiwanis clinic, 7.

Record Business for Hough Plant

Business materially larger than in any previous year of their history is reported by the Hough Shade corporation, 1023-1059 McKee - boulevard. The company employs 125 persons and used 60,000 square feet of floor space.

During 1922, an entirely new and separate department was organized as the industrial shade division. The product is a wood slat shade and equipment especially adapted for buildings which utilize steel sash and is known as Ra-Tox Industrial Shade.

Already the new shade division is beginning to take on a considerable volume of business, says A. C. Hough, president. This is true especially where LeRoy J. Steffen, formerly of Milwaukee, has established efficient representation. Many of the largest manufacturing establishments in the country are equipping their plants with this new line, which is covered by many new patents.

During the past year, the Hough Shade company has installed considerable new equipment. At present, work in progressing on further new machines which are expected to be in operation by April 1.

Commenting on the financial side of the concern, Mr. Hough says:

"We have an actual investment of over $300,000 in the business. Our payroll is in excess of $125,000 a year. We hope our business the coming season will be larger than even last season, which was our banner season up to date."

Officers are: Axel C. Hough, president and general manager; George H. King, vice president; Charles H.

$225,000 SPENT ON PHONE SERVICE

Extensive Development Follows Consolidation of Two Companies.

What was the most extensive development of the telephone business in Janesville in the last decade, took place in the year just closed with the consolidation of the Rock County Telephone company with the Wisconsin Telephone company on East Milwaukee street and a large part of the consolidation work in underground and aerial cables completed. A total of $225,000 has thus far been appropriated to cover cost of changes and improvements necessary in connection with the merger. This is divided as follows:

Removal Rock County	$15,000
Changing substation	19,750
Consolidation aerial and underground lines	78,000
New local switchboard	65,000
Long distance board	8,000
Building addition	38,000
New Addition Completed

Construction of a 42-foot addition to the building to conform with the style of architecture of the main part was nearly completed as the year closed. The building is one of the finest in the city. Harry Summers is the contractor.

Additional facilities will be afforded when the addition is ready for occupancy. There will be a cafeteria, a larger rest room and locker room, and more office space will be afforded for the district manager and an office for the district traffic supervisor.

With 4,700 patrons, the Wisconsin Telephone company here employs 60 operators, 12 in the commercial department and 12 in the plant, or a total of 84 employees. A great improvement during the year was the installation of nine additional positions on the local switchboard, giving 20 positions, at a cost of $65,000 and four on the long distance, at a cost of $8,000. Ten operators now sit at the long distance board.

Facilities for Subscribers

All Rock County phones have been taken out and the standard equipment of the Bell lines installed and a large percentage of those who had wall phones now have desk, because no difference is made in the rental charge by the Bell. Alley type of construction is being used by the Wisconsin company. The Rock used the Electric company's poles to a large extent. Nine and three-tenths miles of aerial cable, three miles of underground cable, 156 poles, 132 miles twisted pair wire and 40 miles of iron wire of the Rock county system must be removed because of duplication. Lightning and electrical protection has been afforded to former Rock county subscribers.

A large crew is now at work on the aerial and underground work throughout the city and have been for many months. The Rock office was closed August 9 when cables were switched into the Milwaukee street office.

New Traffic Supervisor

No important changes were effected in the personnel during the year. H. E. Roberts came to Janesville as district traffic supervisor. His work will tend toward even further betterment of service through introduction of up-to-the-minute switchboard methods. He is a University of Wisconsin graduate and has been with the telephone company for several years.

W. N. Cash, district manager, continues in that capacity. Mr. Cash has had much experience in consolidation of telephone plants during his 22 years' service which have been of great value in making the work here run smoothly. Miss Anna M. Keating is chief operator and Elmer E. Huggins, wire chief.

Raymond Shade Sales Boosted

Business 50 percent greater than ever before is reported for 1922 by the Raymond Porch Shade company.

"We have had some increase in export business, but the largest increase was in our domestic business," the firm reports.

"We are constantly endeavoring to increase the efficiency and durability of Coolmor porch shades and to make them in the most desirable colors and styles. We began this year to advertise Coolmor porch shades in national periodicals and also utilize various other forms of effective advertising."

Officers are Edward R. Fletcher, president; Raymond B. Fletcher, vice president and Joseph E. Farnsworth, treasurer and manager.

Beltz, vice president, Lyons, N. Y.; Robert M. Bostwick, treasurer; Albert E. Bingham, secretary; A. P. Wieland, sales manager Vudor porch shade department; and L. J. Steffen, sales manager, Ra-Tox industrial shade department.

Park Purchase, Zoning Ordinance, Greatest of Council's Achievements

Purchase of Riverside park for $15,000 for use of the entire community and passage of the zoning and arterial highway ordinances stand out as the biggest things accomplished by the city council in 1922, a year marked by the overthrow of the council form of government in favor of the city manager plan. While many other important pieces of legislation were put through, these three projects may be said to hold first rank for their far-reaching effects, the first two matters marking as they do a new epoch in the history of Janesville.

Acquisition by the city of the beautiful 133-acre Riverside park tract with one and one-half miles of river frontage, was voted by the council in December, with Mayor T. E. Welsh casting the deciding ballot. It came as a result of months of work by the city plan commission. The zoning ordinance, adopted May 29, was also a city plan commission forward movement, worked upon for more than a year.

3 New Cars Bought.

Among the many other important matters completed by the council in 1922, the following should be listed:

Tourist camp at North Washington street and Magnolia avenue established through $500 appropriation from council.

Bought automobile roadster for fire chief, 500 feet of hose for fire department and 500 feet for street department.

Saved $13,700 for city on approval for re-assessment which finally resulted in compromise with county.

Put through the construction of more than one mile of concrete paving besides other highway improvement work and the laying of sewer and water mains. Appropriated $30,000 extra for use of school board in equipping new high school.

Fixed value of New Gas Light company, for rate-making purposes, at $495,000.

Bought seven new mushroom traffic lights, voted for the installation of 62 new ornamental lights in 18" and installed many ordinary street lights.

Bought four lots in Second ward for $1,000 for use as city gravel pit.

Elected water works board composed of Harry Haggart, Joseph M. Connors, Amos Heiberg, Edward Kemmerer and Charles Ehler.

Adopted $633,000 city budget for 1923.

River Cleaned Up.

Through a money appropriation by the council, the banks of Rock river were cleaned up and beautified by the cutting and trimming of trees.

Other activities were: Election of Mrs. Mollie M. Anderson as visiting nurse to succeed Mrs. Emma Harvey Hayes, who resigned Feb. 1, 1922; put visiting nurse under jurisdiction of health officer; again awarded garbage collection contract to Alvan Maxfield; installed bubbler fountain on Center avenue; Improved Corn Exchange park; dispensed with spring registration; sent officials to various conventions; ordered Goose Island clean-up; fought for new viaduct over North Franklin street; reduced rate of interest on $70,000 school bond issue; acquired land free for extending Highland avenue from Washington street to the O. & N. W. tracks; gave $500 toward band concerts in parks; and $200 for Jackson street bathing beach.

Mayor Makes Appointments.

Mayor Welsh made several appointments during the year, as follows: Harry Garbutt and Joseph M. Connors, reappointed to board of health for three-year terms; Francis C. Grant, reappointed to city plan commission for three years; T. P. Burns to five-year term on police and fire commission; C. W. Seuniger, as second ward constable; and Merton Miller, as Second ward constable.

From January to April, the council was composed of the following 14 men: John C. Hallow and L. D. Horn, First ward; Louis Kerstel, W. W. Menzies, Second; A. J. Gibbons, J. K. Jensen, Third; J. J. Sheridan, George L. Traver, Fourth; J. J. Dulin, E. F. Kelly, Fifth; C. J. Smith, E. H. Ransom, Sixth; Walter Helms, L. J. Cronin.

Kerstel and Traver were defeated for re-election and Helms and Smith did not run again, so four new faces were seen in the council: Alva Hommens, Thomas J. Spohn, Maurice L. Weirick and Glenn Gardiner. Hommens resigned Oct. 30 and George H. Esser was elected by the council as his successor.

12 Ordinances Passed.

Twelve ordinances were passed by the council in 1922, as follows:

Feb. 6—Salary ordinance giving several increases and reductions.

Feb. 6—Salary ordinance for police and fire departments.

Feb. 6—Ordinance exempting funeral directors' cars from taxicab licenses and reducing the license fee on taxicabs and drivers.

Feb. 6—Requiring $50 license from busses operating within city and $25 for inter-city busses.

Feb. 20—Overhauling salary ordinances passed Feb. 6 and providing increases as follows: For city attorney, $600; health officer, $600; fire chief, $300; police chief, $300; 11 firemen, $120.

Apr. 3—Providing 200 feet of parking space for doctors' cars only on North and South Main streets.

May 22—Zoning ordinance, creating two residence and two business districts and one industrial district.

Sept. 11—Reducing rate of interest on $70,000 high school bond issue from 5 1/2 percent to 4 1/2 percent.

Sept. 18—Providing for board of five commissioners to manage water department, in accordance with general law.

Oct. 16—Providing special $10,000 sinking fund for retirement of principal and early maturities on high school bond issue.

Oct. 16—Creating 10 arterial highways and providing that traffic must stop at 18 intersections.

Nov. 23—Extending second business district on Western avenue west as far as Stone street.

At the last meeting, in December two new ordinances were introduced, requiring parallel parking on all but two blocks in the city and making the running over of fire hose a violation.

QUIET YEAR IN JUSTICE COURT IS GOOD SIGN

A flourishing year for the justice court here, presided over by Justice Charles Lange, would mean that the year had been a poor one for business, and therefore the report coming from Mr. Lange that 1922 was a quiet 12 months as far as judgments were concerned should be received with gladness.

Approximately 500 cases were started, Judge Lange reports. Of these but 150 went to judgment, the others being dismissed with the exception of 15, which actually went to trial. This is a great contrast to the number a few years ago, when there was a case almost daily. Most of the judgments were on store accounts, the majority being bills over which there was no dispute, but which the store-keepers preferred to have a judgment on rather than have them stand as accounts, less easily collected. All were on Rock county people. Judge Lange's authority extending only to the county limits, although many were brought by outside concerns. All county cities and towns were represented.

This total, both of 500 and 150, was about the same or a little less than in 1921, and while the last few months saw many less cases than the first few, this condition always exists, as storekeepers and others usually straighten up accounts and start suits in January and February. Marriages amounted to but two during the entire year, this decrease being due to the fact that the law was changed but a few years ago so that the usual license was required and the justice could not issue a special permit. Five and ten years ago, there was an average of 25 marriages per year.

RED CROSS DOES WONDERFUL WORK

Humanity Everywhere Is Benefitted—Nurse Important Here.

The Rock County chapter, American Red Cross, has a notable record of home service work for the year 1922, and has also responded liberally in times of disaster and emergency through the national organization. The sum of $346.69 was contributed by the 11 branches of the chapter to the Mississippi Valley flood victims in May, and the sum of $375 was given for Grecian relief in November. A committee composed of Mrs. E. C. Grant, Misses Sara Richardson and Gertrude Cobb also collected clothing for the Greek refugees.

Miss Hattie Alden, secretary in charge of Red Cross headquarters in the federal building, devotes much time to correspondence and investigations in connection with compensation claims and other interests of ex-service men. During 1922, 28 original claims were prepared by Miss Alden. Letters written relative to these claims and in connection with other interests of ex-service men totaled 903. This phase of the work also involved 309 interviews and 64 calls outside the office. Emergency relief was given in a large number of instances to ex-service men and their families throughout the county and transient ex-service men were aided in various ways.

Work of Janesville Nurse
The work of Miss Alice Glenn, school nurse, is supported by the Janesville branch. In addition to her regular work, Miss Glenn gave four health talks to outside groups; made arrangements for four persons to be received as patients at the Jefferson tuberculosis sanatorium; secured food and clothing for families in need; visited the blind residents of the city and secured a pension in one instance; served on industrial rehabilitation committee; assisted at the infant welfare clinic in March and the T. B. clinic in April; doing follow-up work in connection with each; had a booth at Janesville fair and assisted during harvest festival. Miss Glenn also accompanied three patients to the Jefferson sanatorium and took three children to Sparta.

2,700 Children Examined
Children examined totaled 2,764. Number having defective teeth were, 1,205; defective tonsils, 113; defective vision, 55; defective speech, 6; defective hearing, 4. Teeth defects were corrected in 334 cases; tonsils in 57; and vision in 51. Arrangements were made, whereby physicians removed tonsils free or for a nominal charge in 14 cases. Total number of calls were 735. Throats were inspected for symptoms of contagion at several schools from time to time.

2,400 Inspections Reported for '22 by Dr. Woodworth

Dr. Leigh Woodworth, for two years sanitary inspector for the city of Janesville, was active in 1922 in encouraging cleaner, more healthful conditions by rigid inspection of all stores and places handling food for sale. Considerable time was spent by the sanitary inspector in river clean-up which was conducted during the spring. In this, trees along the river bank were trimmed and the debris on the shore line moved.

He assisted the health officers in taking cultures of the nose and throat of children in the Adams school in the effort to detect diphtheria carriers. Inspections at the fair grounds were made by Dr. Woodworth to see that the food and grounds were in sanitary condition.

Under Dr. Woodworth the milk ordinance enforced in the city.

The report of this department for the year is as follows: Total number of inspections, 2,008; alley inspections, 330; complaints investigated, 241; interviews in regards to sanitation, 347; notices sent out, 264; quarantined cases, 11; cases in court for sanitary charges, 2; samples of water taken for analysis, 8; samples of ice for analysis, 2.

MARRIAGES SHOW DECREASE; DEAN RYAN SETS RECORD

Rev. Dean James F. Ryan, St. Patrick's church, is hailed as the "marrying parson" for 1922 with 15 marriages to his credit. For the preceding two years, Rev. Charles M. Olson, St. Mary's church, held the title, but in 1922 his record was 12. Statistics show that the "marrying business" has not been as prolific this past year as in 1921 and 1920 when Father Olson had 29 and 32 marriages respectively.

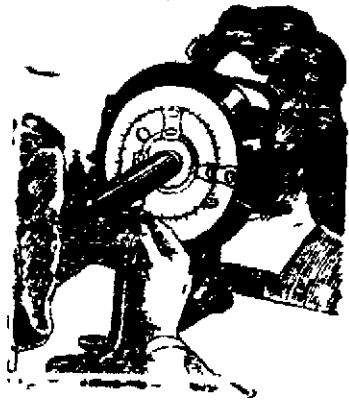

In most all churches marriages have been fewer than in the past two years. Even in the county the number of marriages has decreased.

Rev. Joseph Ryan, St. Patrick's church performed one marriage during the year and Rev. Francis Finnegan assistant at St. Mary's church performed eight marriages. Father Joseph was assistant to Dean Ryan.

Rev. S. W. Fuchs, St. John's Lutheran church has 10 marriages to his credit with the Rev. R. G. Pierson, First Baptist church, coming next with 9.

Others are as follows: Rev. Frank J. Scribner, Congregational and Rev. E. A. L. Treu, St. Paul's Lutheran; 8; Pastor G. J. Muller, St. Peter's Lutheran and Rev. Henry Willmann, Trinity Episcopal; 7; Rev. J. A. Melrose, Presbyterian; 6; Rev. Leland Marion, First Christian; 5; Rev. T. C. Thorson, First Lutheran; 2; Rev. F. P. Case, Cargill Methodist; 2.

No statement could be obtained from Rev. Herwin Reop, pastor of United Brethren church, who was only appointed as permanent pastor a short time ago. Records at the Methodist church were incomplete due to the fact that the Rev. Charles Coon left no statement of the number of marriages which he had. For several months the Rev. T. C. Thorson, First Lutheran church was ill and those of his church who married had Rev. E. A. L. Treu or Dr. L. M. Christensen, Oxfordville, perform the ceremonies. Rev. Father Olson performed one marriage at St. Mary's church during the year, that of his niece, Miss Esther Campion and Biddel Gunn.

BUILDERS HARDWARE

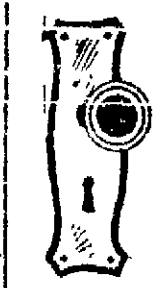

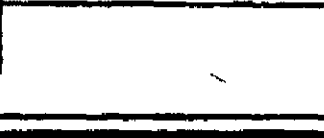

A well built home is not only more attractive, but it will last longer and cost less to keep in good condition. HARDWARE is one of the most important items that go into a house—on it depends how well the house will hold together, how well the doors and windows operate, in addition to the part it plays in making a home beautiful. You will have no regrets if you use YALE & TOWNE Hardware in your building.

Purchase of Riverside park for $25,000 for use of the entire community and passage of the zoning and arterial highway ordinances stand out as the biggest things accomplished by the city council in 1922, a year marked by the overthrow of the council form of government in favor of the city manager plan. While many other important pieces of legislation were put through, these three projects may be said to hold first rank for their far-reaching effects, the first two matters marking as they do a new epoch in the history of Janesville.

Acquisition by the city of the beautiful 135-acre Riverside park tract with one and one-half miles of river frontage, was voted by the council in December, with Mayor T. E. Welsh casting the deciding ballot. It came as a result of months of work by the city plan commission. The zoning ordinance, adopted May 29, was also a city plan commission forward movement, worked upon for more than a year.

3 New Cars Bought.

Among the many other important matters completed by the council in 1922, the following should be listed:

Tourist camp at North Washington street and Magnolia avenue established through $500 appropriation from council.

Bought Oldsmobile roadster for fire chief, 500 feet of hose for fire department and 500 feet for street department.

Saved $13,700 for city on approval for re-assessment which finally resulted in compromise with county.

Put through the construction of more than one mile of concrete paving besides other highway improvement work and the laying of sewer and water mains.

Appropriated $30,000 extra for use of school board in equipping new high school.

Fixed value of New Gas Light company, for rate-making purposes, at $405,000.

Bought seven new mushroom traffic lights, voted for the installation of 62 new ornamental lights in 1922, and installed many ordinary street lights.

Bought four lots in Second ward for $1,000 for use as city gravel pit.

Elected water works board composed of Harry Haggart, Joseph M. Connors, Amos Rehberg, Edward Kemmerer and Charles Eller.

Adopted $633,000 city budget for 1923.

River Cleaned Up.

Through money appropriated by the council, the banks of Rock river were cleaned up and beautified by the cutting and trimming of trees.

Other activities were: Election of Miss Hulda M. Andreas as visiting nurse to succeed Mrs. Emma Harvey Hayes, who resigned Feb. 1, 1922; put visiting nurse under jurisdiction of health officer; again awarded garbage collection contract to Alvan Maxfield; installed bubbler fountain on Center avenue; improved Corn Exchange park; dispensed with spring registration; sent officials to various conventions; ordered Goose Island clean-up; fought for new viaduct over North Franklin street; reduced rate of interest on $70,000 school bond issue; acquired land free for extending Highland avenue, from Washington street to the C. & N. W. tracks; gave $800 toward band concerts in parks; and $300 for Jackson street bathing beach.

Mayor Makes Appointments.

Mayor Welsh made several appointments during the year, as follows: Harry Garbutt and Joseph M. Connors, reappointed to board of health for three-year terms; Francis C. Grant, reappointed to city plan commission for three years; T. P. Burns to five-year term on police and fire commission; C. W. Spidmore, as first ward constable; and Merlon Miller, as Second ward constable.

From January to April, the council was composed of the following 14 men: John C. Harlow and L. D. Horn, First ward; Louis Kerstel, W. W. Menzies, Second; A. J. Gibbons, J. K. Jensen, Third; J. J. Sheridan, George L. Traver, Fourth; J. J. Dulin, E. T. Kelly, Fifth; C. J. Smith, E. H. Ransom, Sixth; Walter Helms, L. J. Cronin.

Kerstel and Traver were defeated for re-election and Helms and Smith did not run again, so four new faces were seen in the council: Alva Hemmings, Thomas J. Spohn, Maurice L. Weirick and Glenn Gardiner. Hemmings resigned Oct. 30 and George M. Egger was elected by the council as his successor.

12 Ordinances Passed.

Twelve ordinances were passed by the council in 1922, as follows:

Feb. 6—Salary ordinance giving several increases and reductions.

Feb. 6—Salary ordinance for police and fire departments.

Feb. 6—Ordinance exempting funeral directors' cars from taxicab licenses and reducing the license fee on taxicabs and drivers.

Service—

I feel constrained to make what Elbert Hubbard used to call "A little Preachment," and take for my text, "Service."

I often wonder if people, when they light a gas burner, think what it means to have this convenience always at their command. Day and night, summer and winter, year in and year out, for over 50 years, there has never been a minute when it was not possible, by turning on a burner and striking a match, in the city of Janesville, to have this servant at your command. I wonder how many people realize the amount of human ingenuity, that it takes to devise the mechanical appliances necessary to produce this product, and the unswerving loyalty of the people employed in this business to bring about such a condition; in spite of delays in transportation from any cause, coal and oil and coke must always be on hand in sufficient quantities to produce the gas needed, and men must be on hand to convert this fuel into gas, and then through many miles of mains and service pipes and through your meters and through the piping of your homes, it must be conveyed in such a manner as to be ready for instant use when you wish it.

There is never an hour in the 24 when there are not employees of the Gas Company on duty to see that this service is being rendered, and this service of theirs, rendered as it is in spite of heat or cold, or storm, is not by any means altogether a matter of dollars and cents, but rather a matter of love of their work and a pride to keep unbroken the records of their occupation, and I think that I can justly say that there are very few lines of business that can point to such a record of unbroken service as can the Gas Company.

The thing that we sell is service; being ready to perform your work whenever you wish it done, and to this end every employee of the New Gas Light Company stands pledged.

I. F. WORTENDYKE.
Vice President.

2,400 Inspections Reported for '22 by Dr. Woodworth

Dr. Leigh Woodworth, for two years sanitary inspector for the city of Janesville, was active in 1922 in encouraging cleaner, more healthful conditions by rigid inspection of all stores and places handling food for sale. Considerable time was spent by the sanitary inspector in river clean-up which was conducted during the spring. In this, trees along the river bank were trimmed and the debris on the shore line moved.

He assisted the health officers in taking cultures of the nose and throat of children in the Adams school in the effort to detect diphtheria carriers. Inspections at the fair grounds were made by Dr. Woodworth to see that the food and grounds were in sanitary condition.

Under Dr. Woodworth the milk laboratory was installed and the milk ordinance enforced in the city. The report of this department for the year is as follows: Total number of inspections, 2,008; alley inspections, 350; complaints investigated, 341; interviews in regards to sanitation, 807; notices sent out, 264; quarantined cases, 11; cases in court for sanitary charges, 2; samples of water taken for analysis, 8; samples of ice for analysis, 2.

MARRIAGES SHOW DECREASE; DEAN RYAN SETS RECORD

Rev. Dean James F. Ryan, St. Patrick's church, is hailed as the "marrying parson" for 1922 with 15 marriages to his credit. For the preceding two years, Rev. Charles M. Olson, St. Mary's church, held the title, but in 1922 his record was 12. Statistics show that the "marrying business" has not been as prolific this past year as in 1921 and 1920 when Father Olson had 29 and 32 marriages respectively.

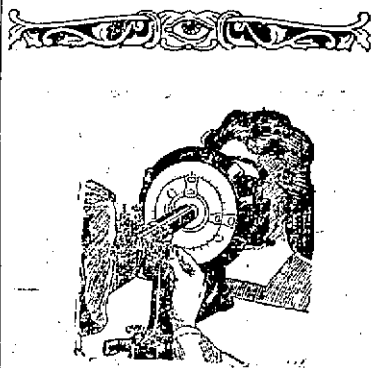

In most all churches marriages have been fewer than in the past two years. Even in the county the number of marriages has decreased noticeably.

Rev. Joseph Ryan, St. Patrick's church performed one marriage during the year and Rev. Francis Finnegan assistant at St. Mary's church performed eight marriages. Father Joseph was assistant to Dean Ryan.

Rev. S. W. Fuchs, St. John's Lutheran church has 10 marriages to his credit with the Rev. R. G. Pierson, First Baptist church, coming next with 9.

Others are as follows: Rev. Frank J. Scribner, Congregational, and Rev. E. A. L. Treu, St. Paul's Lutheran, 8; Pastor G. J. Muller, St. Peter's Lutheran and Rev. Henry Williamson, Trinity Episcopal, 7; Rev. J. A. Melrose, Presbyterian, 6; Rev. Leland Marion, First Christian, 5; Rev. T. C. Thorson, First Lutheran, 2; Rev. P. P. Case, Cargill Methodist, 2.

No statement could be obtained from Rev. Harvin Roop, pastor of United Brethren church, who was only appointed as permanent pastor a short time ago. Records at the Methodist church were incomplete due to the fact that the Rev. Charles Coon left no statement of the number of marriages which he had. For several months the Rev. T. C. Thorson, First Lutheran church was ill and these of his church who married had Rev. E. A. L. Treu or Dr. L. M. Gimmeslead, Orfordville, perform the ceremonies. Rev. Father Carroll performed one marriage at St. Mary's church during the year, that of his niece, Miss Esther Campion and Eddel Gunn.

$16,000 JUMP IN POSTAL BUSINESS

Need of Larger Building Emphasized More Than Ever in 1922.

Business done at the local postoffice during 1921 amounted to more than $114,000; that for 1922, just closed, amounted to more than $130,000, with that amount reached even before Christmas.

The local postoffice was built in 1902 as it now stands. In 1903, a $33,000 business was done, so that the building fitted for a business of this amount, is now doing business of four times it. In 1913 the business had doubled to $66,000, and in the next ten years, it is expected that a $250,000 business will be done.

The last three months at the local office have shown a greater increase of business than the first three months. Postmaster J. J. Cunningham reports, so that the per cent of increase in 1923 is expected to be higher than it was in 1922.

Greatest increase of business, Mr. Cunningham reports, was in the C. O. D. and insurance departments. Merchants and manufacturers are sending great quantities of C. O. D. parcels, and this a convenient and efficient way to do business. A large proportion of all mail—70 per cent, it is thought—now goes insured, while the registry department business increased 30 per cent.

The staff is practically the same as it was a year ago. Mr. Cunningham reports, the Christmas helpers not being included. There are now 15 city carriers, eight rural carriers and nineteen clerks at the local office.

Great Amount of Good Work Done, Among Boys by Y

One of the main features of the work of the Y. M. C. A. the past year was the development of boys' community work, made possible by the Allen Perry Lovejoy Memorial Fund, according to Secretary J. A. Steiner. Boys of all classes, regardless of membership in the association, have been benefited. Another feature of boys' work was the summer camp work and especially the conduct of Rotardale camp in cooperation with the Rotary club, and made possible by that organization of Janesville business men.

During the past year the association again filled a need in the community in many ways. Men and boys were served in many capacities, through the character building program. The business administration has been such that no indebtedness has been incurred on current expense and the association pays its bills promptly. During October, 100 men and boys were again organized into divisions and teams, and solicited memberships and contributions, so that the "Y" continues on a sound business basis.

Many city groups used the building for meetings of all kinds, and banquets. The cafeteria serves clean, well cooked food at moderate prices, and is proving its worth in service to the public every day, it being the only cafeteria in the city. It has added greatly to the social life.

The chief change in the staff was the securing of C. E. Clough to replace I. E. Jolly as boy worker. A number of improvements and changes were made in the building.

Apollo Club Is Active Again in Giving Concerts

The year 1922 was an inspiring one for those interested in the Apollo Club. After a year of apathy, when interest so lagged in the club because of many other musical events brought here by other organizations that all the activity stopped, the club held a meeting on November 6, at which there was an attendance of 40 and an enthusiastic spirit, resulting in reorganization, election of new officers, and the making of plans which assure the club one of its most prosperous seasons.

Previous to this general meeting in November, there had been a concert given under the club's auspices on October 6, when the Chicago Little Symphony appeared. Despite a moderately large attendance, the remaining funds of the club were exhausted by this venture.

At the club's reorganization, Mrs. J. M. Whitehead was chosen president, succeeding George S. Parker, president for more than 12 years, he accepting the vice-presidency. Frank Blackman was chosen secretary and William Bladon, treasurer.

The club sponsored the "Messiah" given here Dec. 20 at the Congregational church, as one of its four seasonal concerts. More than 900 people witnessed the singing of this oratorio by the Janesville Community Chorus and the Milton Choral Union.

The next concert of the club is to be the appearance Jan. 12 of Maier and Pattison, giving a double piano program.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL GROWING, FIGURES SHOW

The value of the city attendance department, connected with the city schools and conducted by Miss Rosemary Enright, is shown in the yearly report just made. The decrease in the number of days lost because of illegal and unnecessary absence during the year alone warrants such a department, while the work done along side-lines is almost as important an item. In the control of contagion, the report shows also the efficiency of the city health department.

Following is Miss Enright's report:

	1920-21	1921-22
Parental neglect	663	101
Care of babies	331	97

500 Increase in Library Patrons; 2,000 New Books

The Janesville public library has just closed its fortieth and one of its most successful years, successful in a way during the last few months that augurs well for the coming year.

In 1882 when the Young Men's association broke up, a large library was put up for sale. Until this time, while it had probably been the hope of many residents of this city to have a library, no active movement toward raising a fund had been started. But in the late months of that year, women of the city together, put in money of their own, and started out to raise a fund which would rent rooms and buy a few books and periodicals. An entertainment was given at the then famous Lappin's hall, with young men now prominent in business and young women now married and with grand-children, taking the leading parts. This entertainment raised considerable money, and with that raised by private subscription, rooms were rented in the Bennett block.

Then another campaign for pictures and chairs and a few months later the Janesville public library had become an institution.

Since then growth has been rapid, and with a succession of competent and judicious library boards and librarians, the local library is one of the best in the state, and is exceptional for the size of city.

Business done during 1922 kept up the record of increase made the year preceding, when circulation was abnormally big. During the year, 1,000 new borrowers have registered, making the total increase of readers 500. The moving from the city and dropping out of old borrowers resulted in the loss of the other 500.

Circulation in the children's department, Miss Jennie A. Hulce, librarian, reports, increased slightly and the adult department about held its 1921 average. A total of almost 2,000 volumes were added to the reference, adults and children's circulating departments. This including a majority of fiction, while a great deal of the year's best non-fiction was also purchased. The loss each year from books being worn-out is enormous, in spite of the work of one member of the staff in mending them.

The year brought many changes in the staff. Miss Fannie Cox, librarian, resigned in the spring and went to another library position in Atlanta, Ga. She has been replaced by Miss Hulce, a librarian of much experience in Chicago and other places. Miss Emily Moeser, for many years in charge of the children's department, left in the fall to take up library work in the Cleveland Public Library, and special training in the Western Reserve University library school there. She was succeeded by Miss Jessica George, Janesville, who is now head of this department.

While the budget for the past year had been cut some, by ordering fewer books, the year culminated a successful one, with bright hopes for the coming year.

LIMA CENTER HAS ELECTRIC LIGHTING

Lima Center.—A bungalow was erected by Jack Hale for $3,000 and W. F. Reese made $500 improvements on his home. Electric lights were turned on here Aug. 19, marking the most modern improvement for the village of the year. Injuries sustained by Mrs. O. B. Roe in the railroad accident here, June 21, when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by St. Paul train, proved fatal. Three others were injured. Mrs. William Armstrong, 23, died here Oct. 18.

Service—

I feel constrained to make what Elbert Hubbard used to call "A little Preachment," and take for my text, "Service."

I often wonder if people, when they light a gas burner, think what it means to have this convenience always at their command. Day and night, summer and winter, year in and year out, for over 50 years, there has never been a minute when it was not possible, by turning on a burner and striking a match, in the city of Janesville, to have this servant at your command. I wonder how many people realize the amount of human ingenuity that it takes to devise the mechanical appliances necessary to produce this product, and the unswerving loyalty of the people employed in this business to bring about such a condition; in spite of delays in transportation from any cause, coal and oil and coke must always be on hand in sufficient quantities to produce the gas needed, and men must be on hand to convert this fuel into gas, and then through many miles of mains and service pipes and through your meters and through the piping of your homes, it must be conveyed in such a manner as to be ready for instant use when you wish it.

There is never an hour in the 24 when there are not employees of the Gas Company on duty to see that this service is being rendered, and this service of theirs, rendered as it is in spite of heat or cold, or storm, is not by any means altogether a matter of dollars and cents, but rather a matter of love of their work and a pride to keep unbroken the records of their occupation, and I think that I can justly say that there are very few lines of business that can point to such a record of unbroken service as can the Gas Company.

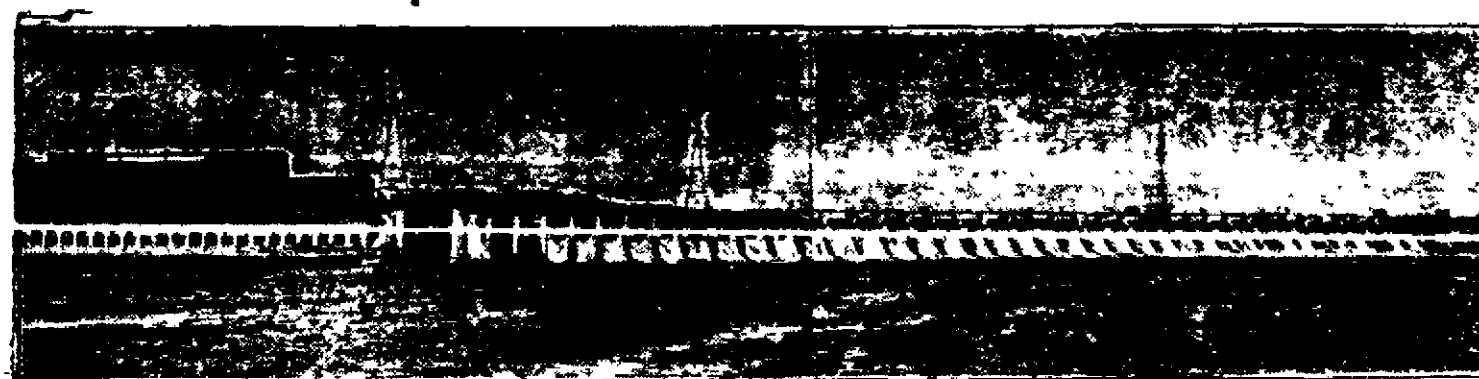

The thing that we sell is service; being ready to perform your work whenever you wish it done, and to this end every employee of the New Gas Light Company stands pledged.

I. F. WORTENDYKE,
Vice President.

500 Increase in Library Patrons; 2,000 New Books

The Janesville public library has just closed its fortieth and one of its most successful years, successful in a way during the last few months that augurs well for the coming year.

In 1882 when the Young Men's association broke up, a large library was put up for sale. Until this time, while it had probably been the hope of many residents of this city to have a library, no active movement toward raising a fund had been started. But in the late months of that year, women of the city together, put in money of their own, and started out to raise a fund which would rent rooms and buy a few books and periodicals. An entertainment was given at the then famous Lappin's hall, with young men now prominent in business and young women now married and with grand-children, taking the leading parts. This entertainment raised considerable money, and with that raised by private subscription, rooms were rented in the Bennett block. Then another campaign for pictures and chairs and a few months later the Janesville public library had become an institution.

Since then growth has been rapid, and with a succession of competent and judicious library boards and librarians, the local library is one of the best in the state, and is exceptional for the size of city.

Business done during 1922 kept up the record of increase made the year preceding, when circulation was abnormally big. During the year, 1,000 new borrowers have registered, making the total increase of readers 500. The moving from the city and dropping out of old borrowers resulted in the loss of the other 500.

Circulation in the children's department, Miss Jennie A. Hulce, librarian, reports, increased slightly and the adult department about held its 1921 average. A total of almost 2,000 volumes were added to the reference, adults and children's circulating departments. This including a majority of fiction, while a great deal of the year's best non-fiction was also purchased. The loss each year from books being worn-out is enormous, in spite of the work of one member of the staff in mending them.

The year brought many changes in the staff. Miss Fannie Cox, librarian, resigned in the spring and went to another library position in Atlanta, Ga. She has been replaced by Miss Hulce, a librarian of much experience in Chicago and other places. Miss Emily Moeser, for many years in charge of the children's department, left in the fall to take up library work in the Cleveland Public Library, and special training in the Western Reserve University library school there. She was succeeded by Miss Jessica George, Janesville, who is now head of this department.

While the budget for the past year had been cut some, by ordering fewer books, the year culminated a successful one, with bright hopes for the coming year.

LIMA CENTER HAS ELECTRIC LIGHTING

Lima Center—A bungalow was erected by Jack Hale for $3,000 and W. F. Reese made $500 improvements on his home. Electric lights were turned on here Aug. 19, marking the most modern improvement for the village of the year. Injuries sustained by Mrs. O. B. Roe in the railroad accident here, June 21, when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by St. Paul train, proved fatal. Three others were injured. Mrs. William Armstrong, 83, died here Oct. 18.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Of Milwaukee

Organized in Janesville—1857.

Its Policy Holders Repeat

The Janesville District closed the year 1922 with the largest amount of new business in the history of my agency and over one-half of it was on the lives of old policy holders.

Northwestern policy holders are satisfied policy holders as is evidenced by the experience of the company, nearly half of its new business each year coming from old members who increase their insurance. No other company can approximate this.

When you buy the rest of your insurance, look into what this grand old Company has to offer.

- Purely American.
- Purely Mutual
- Clean business methods.
- Low expense
- Splendid contract
- Low cost of insurance.
- Life insurance is a necessity, not a luxury.

They meet regularly and have re-elected officers for 1923. W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, distinguished itself in 1922 in the election at Eau Claire of J. H. Carle as state department commander. The cottage will be known as the Ladies of the G. A. R. cottage. Contributions have also been made toward a fund for non-pensioned veterans at the home.

The first annual convention for the state is to be held in January at Cuba City for the purpose of organizing a state court. Many new courts have been formed in the state and 14 new state courts with indications that soon all states will support this organization.

Catholic Knights of Wisconsin formerly active in this city organized a branch at St. Mary's church just before the holidays. The branch at St. Patrick's church is to be revived and a large membership is expected for the year.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians has had a tremendous gain in membership throughout the country in 1922. Locally the activities have been confined to the good of the order. Their motto is "Friendship, Unity and Christian Charity." Much money has been expended in caring for the sick and disabled. The national convention is to be held in 1923 at Montreal, Canada. Local officers are working to have the state convention held in Janesville. This is to be determined at the meeting of the state board in January. James J. DECLINE SEEN IN DIVORCES IN '22

Fewest in Four Years, Records Show — Many Cases Settled.

For the first time in recent years divorces in Rock county were not increased.

There were but 67 divorce actions started in the Rock county circuit court, considerably less than any other of the last four years. There were only a few cases started in the Beloit municipal court, which under legislative changes in 1922 has been authorized to grant divorces.

Court costs in Rock county have been materially reduced through the policy of Judge George Grimm to settle litigations instead of trying them before jury.

Reduce Court Costs.

Where before the calendar was cluttered up with trials and cases pending trial, there were less than 10 jury trials in the circuit court in 1922, for in several instances the case has been taken from the jury before the time for a verdict and settled.

There were 303 actions started in the Rock county circuit court, according to the figures of Jesse Earle, clerk. In addition to the decreased number of divorces there were 55 cases based on notes 20 or accounts, 15 on contracts, 44 foreclosure proceedings on real estate, 13 on foreclosing on land contracts, 15 foreclosure on mechanic's lien, four damage actions of auto accidents, four on personal injury suits, six for services, seven appeals from municipal or justice courts, eight for discharge of mortgages, eight for partition of real estate, seven to quiet title and the schedule shows but few cases listed for such cases as slander, malpractice, ejectment and alienation of affections.

One Murder Trial.

During the year the biggest criminal trial was that when Henry Vermeesch, Beloit Belgian, was tried on a charge of murder. The case was dismissed without going to the jury.

In Rock county circuit court cases have resolved down to a process of stipulation settlement preventing trial and court expenses and better satisfaction between the litigants, attorneys and the court.

City Manager Plan, County Sanatorium, Health Work, Pushed by Women in '22

The organized women of Janesville and throughout the county had a busy year and the record shows an unusually creditable list of achievements.

Women's organizations were a big factor in the campaign which resulted in the adoption of the city manager form of government at the election in April. Through efforts of the County Federation of Women, the retention of Miss Anna Luetscher, as county nurse was made possible by a salary increase wrested from the county board at their meeting in January. The campaign carried on by the women for ten years in behalf of a tuberculosis sanatorium was rewarded when the county board took favorable action in November. Through the initiative of the health committee of the City Federation, an infant and maternal hygiene center was equipped in the city hall, Janesville for monthly conferences under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner national maternity act.

Rural women's organizations received much help during the year from the University Extension division, Miss Sadie McNulty home economics instructor, reaching about 400 women through group meetings. A successful farm women's luncheon was held in Janesville in November and a movement has been launched to obtain a home demonstrator for Rock county.

Rest Room Maintained

The City Federation has maintained Janesville Centre as a women's rest room and comfort station, raising the money needed for its support above the sum appropriated by the city council. The dental clinic has continued under the general supervision of the Federation, though funds for its support are now appropriated by the city. The rest room has had a change of matrons, and continues to render a distinctive service as lunch hour headquarters for an average of fifty girls per day.

Mrs. C. A. Sanborn is president of the Federation, which has dues-paying membership of 645 women.

League of Women Voters

The League of Women Voters has promoted the cause of citizenship education in various way throughout the year. Questionnaires were sent by the Rock County League to all county candidates and replies considered at a candidates' meeting prior to the primary election. State and national meetings during the year. At a meeting held in December, plans were discussed for an educational campaign among women voters in connection with the spring election when the commissioners who are to hire the city manager will be elected. Mrs. O. D. Bates is county chairman and Mrs. Percy Munger is chairman of the Janesville league.

D. A. R. Active

Americanization work in connection with the naturalization court, contributions to worthwhile memorial projects, and the awarding of medals to pupils doing the best work in American history are outstanding achievements of the D. A. R. during 1922. The sum of $74 was given toward the Wisconsin room in Continental Memorial hall at Washington, D. C. $50 was given to the Roosevelt Memorial fund, $55 to the school for mountain whites at Sneedsville, Tenn.; and $20 was used for local civic work. The citizenship committee headed by Mrs. F. E. Clark, distributed cards to each man receiving citizenship papers at both the June and September sessions of the naturalization court and at the suggestion of the committee, each man was asked by the judge to repeat the oath of allegiance himself, instead of merely assenting to it as had been the plan previously. Miss Mattiea Atkins is regent of the local chapter.

W. C. T. U.

Candidates received much attention from W. C. T. U. organizations of Janesville and Rock county. The Janesville union meets on the third Thursday of each month. Scientific temperance instruction is promoted through an annual essay contest in the schools, for which five prizes were awarded in 1922. Mrs. C. W. Allen has this department in charge. Observance of Frances Willard day in the schools is encouraged. During 1922 under the leadership of Miss Lucy Granger, superintendent of welfare work, 210 garments were made and given to the needy. Mrs. O. W. Athon is president of the Janesville union, and Mrs. Cora Johnson is county president.

Catholic Women's Club

The Catholic Women's Club is in its second year and is growing in membership and usefulness. Educational and social features are enjoyed at meetings held twice a month, the club bringing many out-of-town speakers of note to the city. Much attention is given to philanthropic and civic work. Mrs. J. J. Cunningham is president.

Art League

with a fund of $500 left to the League by Mrs. George Osgood several years ago. Mrs. T. W. Nuzum is president for 1922-23.

Service Star Legion

Extensive ministry to ex-service men and their families is recorded in the varied list of activities of the Service Star Legion for 1922. Food and fuel have been provided in a large number of instances, while flowers, delicacies and reading matter have been sent to the sick in homes and in various hospitals. Patriotic holidays were observed by appropriate programs. Philanthropic work has not confined to ex-service men and their dependents but included many others among the needy of Janesville and cooperation in the making of garments for the Salvation Army Home League.

In May a banquet was given for Co. M., members of G. A. R., Spanish War veterans, and all ex-service men. Ladies auxiliary of the F. O. E. assisted. Fresh air children from Chicago were given a party in August and children of ex-service men, members and from a number of needy homes were entertained at a Christmas party. Boxes were sent to hospitals at Thanksgiving and Christmas time. One unique piece of service was the purchase of a room for a bedridden mother and nurse. A Junior branch with 17 charter members was organized in November. Mrs. Sadie Carman is president.

O. E. S. Study Class

Excellent programs dealing with topics of vital interest have been given by the O. E. S. study class the past year. Philanthropic work included an infant layette shower for the city nurse and a jelly donation for tubercular sanatorium patients. Mrs. Dora Stevens is the 1922-23 president.

History Club

The History club brought a number of able speakers here for lectures during the year. Lectures are open to the general public, this custom having been adopted two years ago. The Janesville organization is the oldest history club in the state. Mrs. Charles Sutherland was the 1921-22 president. Her successor for 1922-23 is Mrs. H. H. Faust.

American Legion Auxiliary

The Woman's Auxiliary of Richard Ellis Post, American Legion, was reorganized in May, 1922, with 36 members and has promoted a program of patriotic education and service. Flowers have been sent to hospitals and other places done to bring sunshine to ex-service men and their families. The Auxiliary cooperates heartily with the Legion and on Armistice day gave a supper and entertainment for World War, Civil and Spanish-American war veterans. Mrs. Louis Amerpohl is president.

MacDowell Club

The MacDowell club made some distinct contributions to the cause of community music during the year 1922. The series of free concerts begun in the latter months of 1921 were continued during the first months of 1922 and were attended by appreciative audiences. Several out-of-town artists were brought here for paid concerts. A Junior MacDowell club has been organized with Adelheid Fuchs as president. Mrs. Eber Arthur was president for 1921-22. Mrs. H. H. Faust is the 1922-23 president.

Shurtleff Has Big Ice Cream Output

Although business in general in the manufacture of ice cream showed a decrease throughout the country, the Shurtleff Ice Cream company of Janesville had an output for the year that compared favorably with 1921.

By the middle of January, this company expects to enter the milk business by putting the Gold Band Dairy products, a trade mark of their own, on the market. The latest pasteurized milk and cream of the same high standard as their ice cream is now being installed.

During the last year, the Shurtleff company established metropolitan delivery routes for its popular delectable ice cream in refrigerator trucks. This was done to give customers assurance of getting their ice cream in perfect condition at all times.

"The outlook for Janesville in 1923," says Charles G. Tontin, president of the firm, "certainly is bright. Everyone should look for Janesville and prepare for the increased business to be done in 1923."

SCHOOL BUILT AT AVON DURING YEAR

Avon.—The building of the first school for this community completed during 1922 was the Avon school for District 16, completed Feb. 14. Other buildings erected were: kitchen, Maria Welsh home, W. B. Chesney, $2,700, who has completed home; and home for Mrs. Maria Welsh and Jean Jones.

The community dance Jan. 2, under the auspices of all Avon schools was the largest attended event of the year.

All Lodges in City Have Greatest Year in History

Lodges report in all instances, a banner year with increase in membership and worthwhile activities fostered. Each has had a lively program of social affairs.

Exemplifying the ideals of the order, the Elks conducted the Flag day exercises, June 14, in court house park and Dec. 4 observed their annual memorial services at Myers theater. Charity, another symbol of the organization, was materialized in the first annual Charity ball, Dec. 3, at Armory hall at which more than $2,000 was raised for the needy. The Elks cared for many families during Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays sending baskets of food. Rev. Henry Wiltmann, Mayor T. E. Welsh and O. C. Homberger represented Janesville lodge No. 354 at the 1922 national convention at Atlantic City.

Odd Fellows Flourish.
Odd Fellows organization flourished. Wisconsin lodge No. 14 took in many new members and a complete regalia and outfits have been purchased for lodge work. Of special significance was the election in June at Eau Claire of George Waterman as grand master, the highest office in the state. Mr. Waterman has been a member of No. 14 for many years and was given a reception and presented with a rocking chair by the lodge.

Janesville City lodge No. 90, organized in 1856, has a membership of 300. The lodge hall at 23 and 25 West Milwaukee street, was purchased in 1912. Social activities of this society are among the leading in the city.

Janesville Canton No. 9 has just completed its most progressive year. Its social features have been unusually successful and its membership increased one of the highest in the state. "Ladies Night," a new feature recently inaugurated, has proved a success. They meet regularly and have re-elected officers for 1923. W. H. Sargent, Post No. 20, distinguished itself in 1922 in the election at Eau Claire of J. F. Carle as state department commander. Mr. Carle and the local commander, L. B. T. Winslow, attended the national encampment at Des Moines, Ia., in September.

The Women's Relief Corps, an auxiliary to the G. A. R., has just closed a successful year with 144 members. Five members died during the year. Forty-six dollars was given to non-pensioned widows at the soldiers home at Waupaca and much child welfare work was done. Flowers were sent to deceased members and Regular meetings were held semi-monthly in Janesville Center by Gen. John F. Reynolds Circle No. 41. Ladies of the G. A. R. A memorial program and services were held in May. Catholic Daughters of America, formerly the Daughters of Isabella, added zeal in their campaign for membership. Much had been done generally by way of progress in the state and country. The first annual convention for the state is to be held in January at Cuba City for the purpose of organizing a state court. Many new courts have been formed in the state and 14 new state courts with indications that some all states will support this organization.

Marquette court was active in social and charitable work. Many needy families were given food and fuel. Money raised by socials was put into the reserve fund for welfare work.

Branch 15 of the Catholic Woman's Benevolent society of Wisconsin was organized in this city May 16, one of the first to be founded in the state. The society has 121 members and Mrs. J. J. Catholic Knights of Wisconsin formerly active in this city organized a branch at St. Mary's church just before the holidays. The branch at St. Patrick's church is to be revived and a large initiation held the first of the year.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians has had a tremendous gain in membership throughout the country in 1922. Locally the activities have been confined to the good of the order. Their motto is "Friendship, Unity and Christian Charity." Much money has been expended in caring for the sick and disabled. The national convention is to be held in 1923 at Montreal, Canada. Local officers are working to have the state convention held in Janesville. This is to be determined at the meeting of the state board at January. James J. Sheridan of the local lodge is state president and John P. Heffernan, state secretary.

Al Brolin, David Reese and Charles Newton were delegates to the state association and Mr. Reese attended the national convention at Mooseheart, Ill., in July. At this meeting he was named honorary past director.

All Masonic lodges report a banner year with marked increase in membership. Janesville lodge No. 50, F. & A. M. with C. J. Jelliman as W. M. has a membership of 340. This branch was organized in 1855. Western Star No. 14, F. & A. M. has about 250 members with J. M. White as W. M. Dr. A. Robertson heads Janesville chapter No. 5 with a membership of 280. M., the head officer.

The largest year for members has just been passed by Janesville chapter No. 69, Order of Eastern Star. Much credit is due the O. E. S. for serving all Masonic suppers during the year. Meadames John Dower, E. C. Dinneen, George Drummond, Edward Hyzer, and A. S. Wright represented the local chapter at the grand chapter meeting in Milwaukee at Scottish Rite cathedral in October. Mrs. John Dower, for many years prominent in O. E. S. work and a member of the local order, attended the general grand chapter meeting in Washington D. C. last year. Mrs. George Drummond was worthy matron for 1922.

MEMBERS ADDED BY COUNTRY CLUB

The Janesville Country club added many new members in 1922 and made a number of improvements in the clubhouse, on the golf course and on the entrance by widening the drive. Golf rose to greater popularity and the weekly dances and entertainments were well attended. The clubhouse was used for several private parties and the annual Thanksgiving day party was given in Apollo hall.

DECLINE SEEN IN DIVORCES IN '22

Fewest in Four Years, Records Show — Many Cases Settled.

For the first time in recent years divorces in Rock county were not increased.

There were but 67 divorce actions started in the Rock county circuit court, considerably less than any other of the last four years. There were only a few cases started in the Beloit municipal court, which under legislative changes, in 1922 has been authorized to grant divorces.

Court costs in Rock county have been materially reduced through the policy of Judge George Grimm to settle litigations instead of trying them before jury.

Reduce Court Costs.
Where before the calendar was cluttered up with trials and cases pending trial, there were less than 10 jury trials in the circuit court in 1922, for in several instances the case has been taken from the jury before the time for a verdict and settled.

There were 308 actions started in the Rock county circuit court, according to the figures of Jesse Earle, clerk. In addition to the decreased number of divorces there were 55 cases based on notes 20 on accounts, 15 on contracts, 44 foreclosure proceedings, on real estate, 13 on foreclosing on land contracts, 16 foreclosure on mechanic's lien, four damage actions of auto accidents, four on personal injury suits, six for services, seven appeals from municipal or justice courts, eight for discharge of mortgages, eight for partition of real estate, seven to quiet title and the schedule shows but few cases listed for such cases as slander, malpractice, ejectment and alienation of affections.

One Murder Trial.
During the year the biggest criminal trial was that when Henry Vermeesch, Beloit Belgian, was tried on a charge of murder. The case was dismissed without going to the jury. In stock county circuit court cases have resolved down to a process of stipulation, settlement, preventing trial and court expenses and better satisfaction between the litigants, attorneys and the court.

City Manager Plan, County Sanatorium, Health Work, Pushed by Women in '22

The organized women of Janesville and throughout the county had a busy year and the record shows an unusually creditable list of achievements.

Women's organizations were a big factor in the campaign which resulted in the adoption of the city manager form of government at the election in April. Through efforts of the County Federation of Women, the retention of Miss Anna Luetscher, as county nurse was made possible by a salary increase wrested from the county board at their meeting in January. The campaign carried on by the women for ten years in behalf of a tuberculosis sanatorium was rewarded when the county board took favorable action in November. Through the initiative of the health committee of the City Federation, an infant and maternal hygiene center was equipped in the city hall, Janesville for monthly conferences under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner national maternity act.

Rural women's organizations received much help during the year from the University Extension division. Miss Sadie McNulty home economics instructor, reaching about 400 women through group meetings. A successful farm women's luncheon was held in Janesville in November and a movement has been launched to obtain a home demonstrator for Rock county.

Rest Room Maintained

The City Federation has maintained Janesville Centre as a women's rest room and comfort station, raising the money needed for its support above the sum appropriated by the city council. The dental clinic has continued under the general supervision of the Federation, though funds for its support are now appropriated by the city. The rest room has had a change of matrons, and continues to render a distinctive service as lunch hour headquarters for an average of fifty girls per day.

Mrs. C. A. Sanborn is president of the Federation, which has dues-paying membership of 645 women.

League of Women Voters

The League of Women Voters has promoted the cause of citizenship education in various ways throughout the year. Questionnaires were sent by the Rock County League to all county candidates and replies considered at a candidates' meeting prior to the primary election. State and national workers have addressed meetings during the year. At a meeting held in December, plans were discussed for an educational campaign among women voters in connection with the spring election when the commissioners who are to hire the city manager will be elected. Mrs. O. D. Bates is county chairman and Mrs. Percy Munger is chairman of the Janesville league.

D. A. R. Active

Americanization work in connection with the naturalization court, contributors to worthwhile memorial projects, and the awarding of medals to pupils doing the best work in American history are outstanding achievements of the D. A. R. during 1922. The sum of $74 was given toward the Wisconsin room in Continental Memorial hall at Washington, D. C. $50 was given to the Roosevelt Memorial fund, $55 to the school for mountain whites at Sneedville, Tenn., and $20 was used for local civic work. The citizenship committee headed by Mrs. J. E. Clark, distributed cards to each man receiving citizenship papers at both the June and September sessions of the naturalization court and at the suggestion of the committee, each man was asked by the judge to repeat the oath of allegiance himself, instead of merely assenting to it as had been the plan previously. Miss Mattella Cillins is regent of the local chapter.

W. C. T. U.

Campaign work in behalf of dry candidates received much attention from W. C. T. U. organizations of Janesville and Rock county. The Janesville union meets on the third Thursday of each month. Scientific temperance instruction is promoted through an annual essay contest in the schools, for which five prizes were awarded in 1922. Mrs. G. W. Allen has this department in charge. Observance of Frances Willard day in the schools is encouraged. During 1922 under the leadership of Miss Lucy Granger, superintendent of welfare work, 210 garments were made and given to the needy. Mrs. O. W. Athon is president of the Janesville union, and Mrs. Cora Dickinson is county president.

Catholic Women's Club

The Catholic Women's club is in its second year and is growing in membership and usefulness. Educational and social features are enjoyed at meetings held twice a month, the club bringing many out-of-town speakers of note to the city. Much attention is given to philanthropic and civic work. Mrs. J. J. Cunningham is president.

Art League

with a fund of $500 left to the League by Mrs. George Osgood several years ago. Mrs. T. W. Nuzum is president for 1922-23.

Service Star Legion

Extensive ministry to ex-service men and their families is recorded in the varied list of activities of the Service Star Legion for 1922. Food and fuel have been provided in a large number of instances, while flowers, delicacies and reading matter have been sent to the sick in homes and in various hospitals. Patriotic holidays were observed by appropriate programs. Philanthropic work has not confined to ex-service men and their dependents but included many others among the needy of Janesville and cooperation in the making of garments for the Salvation Army Home League.

In May a banquet was given for Co. M., members of G. A. R., Spanish War veterans, and all ex-service men. Ladies auxiliary of the F. O. E. assisted. Fresh air children from Chicago were given a party in August and children of ex-service men, members and from a number of needy homes were entertained at a Christmas party. Boxes were sent to hospitals at Thanksgiving and Christmas time. One unique piece of service was the purchase of a violin for a bereft world war nurse. A Junior branch with 17 charter members was organized in November. Mrs. Sadie Carman is president.

O. E. S. Study Class

Excellent programs dealing with topics of vital interest have been given by the O. E. S. study class the past year. Philanthropic work included an infant layette shower for the city nurse and a jelly donation for tubercular sanitarium patients. Mrs. Dora Stevens is the 1922-23 president.

History Club

The History club brought a number of able speakers here for lectures during the year. Lectures are open to the general public, this custom having been adopted two years ago. The Janesville organization is the oldest history club in the state. Mrs. Charles Sutherland was the 1921-22 president. Her successor for 1922-23 is Mrs. H. H. Faust.

American Legion Auxiliary

The Woman's Auxiliary of Richard Ellis Post, American Legion, was reorganized in May, 1922, with 36 members and has promoted a program of patriotic education and service. Flowers have been sent to hospitals and other work has been done to bring sunshine to ex-service men and their families. The Auxiliary cooperates heartily with the Legion and on Armistice day gave a supper and entertainment for World War, Civil and Spanish-American war veterans. Mrs. Louis Amerpohl is president.

MacDowell Club

The MacDowell club made some distinct contributions to the cause of community music during the year 1922. The series of free concerts begun in the latter months of 1921 were continued during the first months of 1922 and were attended by appreciative audiences. Several out-of-town artists were brought here for paid concerts. A Junior MacDowell club has been organized with Adelfeld Fuchs as president. Mrs. Eber Arthur was president for 1921-22. Mrs. H. H. Faust is the 1922-23 president.

Shurtleff Has Big Ice Cream Output

Although business in general in the manufacture of ice cream showed a decrease throughout the country, the Shurtleff Ice Cream company of Janesville had an output for the year that compared favorably with 1921.

By the middle of January, this company expects to enter the milk business by putting the Gold Band Dairy products, a trade mark of their own, on the market. The latest pasteurized milk and cream of the same high standard as their ice cream is now being installed.

During the last year, the Shurtleff company established metropolitan delivery service in Janesville, delivering ice cream in refrigerator trucks. This was done to give customers assurance of finding their ice cream in perfect condition at all times.

"The outlook for Janesville in 1923," says Charles G. Tonton, president of the firm, "certainly is bright. Everyone should boost for Janesville and prepare for the increased business we are bound to get."

SCHOOL BUILT AT AVON DURING YEAR

Avon.—The building of most importance to this community completed during 1922 was the $6,000 frame school for District 10, completed Feb. 16. Other buildings erected were: garage, Martin Welsh; barns, W. B. Giesey, $1,500, who also remodeled home; and hog houses, Martin Welsh and John Hines.

The community picnic held June 2, under the auspices of all Avon schools was the largest attended event of the year.

20TH ANNUAL REVIEW AND DAILY RECORD OF EVENTS FOR 1922

TURKS BOLT FROM LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

DAHL AS SPEAKER

Edgerton Man Opposes Munson for Chief Clerk of Wisconsin Senate.

By Associated Press. The organization of the Wisconsin legislature, which convenes here Wednesday, January 10, will be considered by conferences of political factions here Tuesday before the legislative leaders are called on at caucus Tuesday night.

Another meeting of senators affiliated with the Blaine-La Follette faction will be held Jan. 9, to discuss organization plans and agree upon its action in the caucus that night. Opposition senators are planning to hold a similar meeting in order to get their forces aligned.

Control of the senate for its organization remains in doubt, although the administration leaders claim that they will be able to select the committees, which names the upper house members for the session. The assembly will be controlled by the administration men.

Dahl for Speaker.

John L. Dahl, assemblyman from Barron county, and administration leader in the last session of the legislature, appears to have a clear field for endorsement by the republican caucus for speaker. His election is practically assured, according to politicians.

C. E. Shaffer, for years chief clerk of the assembly, will be returned again this year without opposition, while it appears that T. W. Bartingale, former assemblyman from Chippewa county, will be chief clerk for the republican caucus.

In the senate, the contest for chief clerk is assuming an important aspect, with W. W. Schoenfeld of Edgerton and Col. O. G. Munson of Wisconsin.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Population alone—a great moving, teeming mass—does not make a city. It takes more than a census count. Back of a city must be a spirit of loyalty, a determination to go forward, a belief unswerving and unyielding in the city itself.

The year of 1922 will be remembered in Janesville as one of distinctive achievement. There has been no great influx of population. The deaths and births remain about the same. The health of the city has been better than the average of the past. General business has been better and more substantial and business houses show gains. Industry has been about normal in the older plants of the city since the last six months of the year. We have had no epidemics and no great disasters. There have been more fires than in many years and they cost more and that necessitates further, continuous education in fire prevention. The city itself has been going along in a routine fashion. Much has been waiting upon the new plan of government voted for in April and which will go into effect about May 1.

Banks of the city show healthy growth in resources and deposits. Savings accounts have increased. There have been large investments in outside bonds and notes and as a general thing since the early months of the year money has been easy. One bank has liquidated and through the cooperation of another local bank what might have been a disturbing financial crisis in the city was passed through without a tremor of trouble.

Women of the city have been more than usually active. They have demonstrated here that they are as deeply interested in public affairs as the men could ever be and they have asserted their power at two elections most decidedly. Schools of the city and county and the surrounding counties as well, have generally improved. We are looking more to the betterment of educational facilities in the rural schools than ever. In Janesville the completion of the new high school, now approaching, is a tremendous step forward in educational advantages. The time will come when the skeptical and those who have doubted the advisability of so expensive a building will be more than satisfied that Janesville has acquired a great asset in the new building.

The park of 133 acres is more than anyone in Janesville has ever expected but had long dreamed about. One by one the dreams come true; one by one the things patiently fought for come to us here. It may be hard to get out of the old beaten path of yesterday but that must come eventually, just as the lumber wagon of the farmer with which he used to bring the family to the city once in a summer, has given way to the automobile and a wider and broader vision of life and what it holds is unfolded.

When one has looked over the landscape spread out in a panorama of beauty, of hill and dale, of great houses and barns, of pasture and meadow and field of grain and corn; when one rides over the smooth highways and along the streams of Southern Wisconsin, he would be unappreciative indeed were he to desire anything better on earth. Almost every village has its industry and in 1922 they have been more than ordinarily active. Neighboring towns report many improvements and the countryside has its history of civic betterment, of new buildings and improvements. There has been a general revival of community spirit and much of this has been due to the organization of the farmers in the several towns. To them the whole nation owes much. They have fought a year of depression, have seen prices fall and profits disappear, but they have gone steadily on and taken steps to protect themselves against a continuance of the difficulties they have had to encounter in the past year.

The annual review of 1922 does not go beyond the section in which the Gazette is a welcome daily visitor. But as a general proposition the nation is better off today than in 1921. The whole world has been upset by the aftermath of war. Jealousy and envy and hate seem to rule the spirit of the other nations. We have gone ahead aiding the starving and the sick, giving succor to children and aged in far off stricken countries, while the peoples in power have quarreled over governmental trifles and points of diplomatic nicety. Ireland has become a free state, the Turk has once more come into power, the Greek has revolted and thrown out a king, Russia has declared for a government of the Soviet republics based on the plan of the United States, China has had a revolt and continues to be in semi-anarchy, Japan withdrew from Shantung, and India after turmoil has quieted down for a time. In most of these things we are onlookers only, interested by contrast with the general peace here at home. We have passed through two disastrous industrial strikes—coal miners and railroad shopmen. We have seen unemployment situation with 5,000,000 persons out of work change to a shortage of labor within a year. These are some of the outstanding things in the life of the nation in the past year.

In another article in the review section the change in the industrial situation in Janesville has been commented upon. Here we have one of the greatest plants with which a city may be blessed. It is getting into action in an orderly and commanding fashion. Quietly and without boast or trumpeting the second greatest automobile concern in point of sales—the Chevrolet company has come here. It has with it the additional plant for the making of automobile bodies—the most stupendous industrial concern of its kind in the world, the Fisher Body Corporation, and we will soon be able to chronicle the fact that automobiles are being assembled and driven away to customers from the new and old plants erected or taken over by these two organizations.

These things have stimulated Janesville and given the people a new spirit of activity. It has done more than that—it has commanded national attention. It has made others look to Janesville as a manufacturing center with shipping facilities seldom equalled by any city of its size and we may expect additions to our factories. It may be well to mention the impetus given in the last year to the pen manufacturing plant here which, as an employer of labor and as an advertiser of Janesville has no rival.

Yes, 1922 was a good year. 1923 gives hope and promise of being better. There are other problems to solve, other things to achieve, other hills to climb. If we have faith, faith in our own town, in our own community and believe in the ultimate accomplishment of whatever is for the betterment of the whole community we shall win even more victories to that end in Southern Wisconsin than in 1922.

GERMANY WILL BE GIVEN HEARING ON COAL DELIVERIES

REPARATIONS BODY WILL CONSIDER BEFORE TAKING ACTION.

DEFAULT CLAIMED

French Invasion of Ruhr Would Draw U. S. Into War, Says
Lowden in Talk.

By Associated Press. Paris.—Germany will be given a hearing by the reparations commission, before any action is taken on the French proposal to have her declared in default on coal deliveries, the commission decided Saturday.

When the question came before the commission it approved the German request for a hearing. Berlin was immediately notified and asked to send experts so they can be heard by the commission next Monday.

Sir John Bradbury, the British member, attended the session. There was no discussion of the merits of the case. The Germans are entitled under the treaty of Versailles to present their arguments and Louis Barthou of France, the proponent of the default measure, offered no objection to granting the hearing.

Peters' body was found in a well at the farm where he lived. The coroner ordered an investigation and his wife's story was sent to Madison for examination to see if he had been killed by poison.

SOCIALISTS ALIGN WITH LA FOLLETTE

Prepared to Aid Administration in State Senate, They Announce.

By Associated Press. Madison.—The three socialist state senators from Milwaukee Saturday sent word to Governor Blaine that they were prepared to aid the administration forces in their effort to organize the upper house of the Wisconsin legislature when it convenes Wednesday, it was learned.

This offer may solve the difficulties of the La Follette faction in the senate, where the alignment of factions is extremely close. Politicians pointed out. At present, 15 anti-administration republican senators are lined up against 14 administration men.

There is talk here in political circles that the Blaine senators will refuse to attend the republican caucus Tuesday night unless they are able to swing over one additional of the opposition senators to their side and be assured of control. This question will be decided Tuesday at a conference.

By staying out of the republican caucus they would be able to depend on the socialist votes when the organization is made Wednesday, and gain control of the senate offices due to their combined strength.

The new evidence that will be presented in the habeas corpus proceedings is in the nature of a deed, executed by the slain man five days before his death, transferring all his property, valued at several million dollars, "personal and real," to his wife. The deed was discovered in the county clerk's records at San Augustine.

START GUERNSEY JUNIOR CALF CLUB

Guernsey Association Joins in "Rock County First" Program.

Resolved to join in the "Rock County First" livestock development program, Guernsey breeders held an enthusiastic meeting in the office of Dr. W. A. Munn, Friday evening. It was one of the best meetings ever held by the Guernsey breeders of the county for when they adjourned they were resolved that their breed not "take a back seat" to the other breeds of cattle being developed in the county.

"We have been laying down on the job," declared W. J. Dougan, Beloit. "There is big things going on in Rock county and its about time we Guernsey men get into the same boat and moved along before we are forced to do so to stand by the good Guernsey cow. This county program does not mean to root out the other breeds. Rather, it means to plan carefully and put the Guernsey to the position the breed merits."

Breeders pledged support to the Guernsey calf club being organized by Mr. Dougan and a number of names were secured of juniors anxious to join the club. Members were warned only to "distribute calves that are a credit to the breed to the club work."

Man Show Here

In addition the Guernsey association will stage a fair demonstration, both of cattle and Guernsey dairy products. They intend to demonstrate the merits of the Guernsey milk as an economical producer of rich milk and good butter-fat. An exhibit of grade Guernsey with cow testing association records will be put on at the fair to show the value of obtaining production records and the necessity of using only high quality sires.

A Guernsey show herd will be formed among the toppers at the Rock county fair to be taken with the Rock county livestock display to the state fair. Dr. W. A. Munn was named as leader for the fair demonstration and show herd.

Assisting W. J. Dougan in the calf club work will be Ted Overton, son of R. K. Overton, and Otto Uehling. The Guernsey breeders expect to have more than 25 boys and girls in their club.

The officers elected for the coming year were: President, Dr. W. A. Munn; vice-president, Marcus Kelling; secretary-treasurer, Dr. W. A. Munn; Alex. Knudson, Dr. L. Berg and W. J. Dougan as directors.

Apparently the Rock county Guernsey association is going to adopt the "team work" spirit through their county association for the coming year to develop their breed to the deserved position.

ELKHORN PLANTS ENLARGED IN 1922

New Engine Bought by City; Sanitary and Storm Sewers Are Laid.

Elkhorn—Among the improvements made here in 1922 was the purchase of a 100-horsepower Fairbanks Morse fuel oil engine at the beginning of the year, used to drive an air compressor for pumping water out of the well. This replaced electric motors formerly used and the engine paid for itself in nine months.

Other city improvements were the laying of 26,000 feet of main sanitary sewer and 1,411 feet of storm sewer.

Two new business organizations were enlarged during the year; these being the Schmidt ice cream factory and the Elkhorn laundry. Starting on a small scale with few hundred gallons of cream a year, the output of the Schmidt ice cream factory was increased to 35,000 gallons. A 30 per cent increase in business was noted in 1922. A new building in 1920 was built and an addition was built in 1922 with a garage of hold seven trucks and new machinery electrical. This year's additions are planned this year.

Installation of new machinery, washers, and a general overhauling of the Elkhorn laundry took place in 1922 and due to the growing popularity of Walworth county as a summer resort, business was increased.

PIONEER IN DAIRY INDUSTRY OF STATE

G. D. Harrington

Elkhorn—"When I came to Wisconsin, farming consisted of raising grain, sheep and hogs. A cheese factory was in operation in Sharon that had been built by H. H. Bent and Robert Peterson, of Antwerp, N. Y. the former a partner and the latter an employee of my father. But dairying was an unknown quantity. In 1878, cheese sold for 4 cents a pound and milk brought 30 cents a hundred." This is the statement of John H. Harris, president of the Wisconsin Dairymen and Cheese company.

Mr. Harris came to Clinton from Jefferson county, New York, in 1878.

John Harris belongs in the same class with former Gov. Hoard and the other pioneers who have made this section of the dairy country of the world; men who have seen a depleted soil replenished and brought back to fertility. They have been largely instrumental in increasing the dairy industry of the state from a few scrub cattle with a nominal value to 55,000 grade milk cows with a value of approximately $3,000,000. These men have had a large part in promoting an industry that has grown from almost nothing to the state's leading resource.

Pythians Complete Home in Clinton

Clinton—Next to the completion of the Deloit-Clinton road, the greatest event in 1922 in Clinton was the completion of the Pythians home. The housewarming was held Nov. 30. The Knights of Pythias lodge has a membership of 300 and is said to be the largest in the state for a village of its size.

WOODSMAN FOUND DEAD

Over 1,340,000 Ford Cars and Trucks Sold Last Year - 106,352 In November - Approximately the Same Number Delivered in December - Sales Prevent "Stocking," This Year's Sales Will Be Still Greater.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

This volume of deliveries to actual owners is entirely unprecedented for this time of the year—

It has taxed the manufacturing ability of the Ford plants working at full capacity.

It indicates a volume of business during the rapidly approaching months of "heavy demand" which will be far beyond the maximum production schedule which the Ford Motor Company has set—

And that means a Ford shortage even more acute than the one which existed last Spring and Summer.

Dealers' stocks all over the country are low—there are no reserves to draw upon to meet the demands for delivery—

There is no way in which dealer reserves can be built up, as deliveries have been made to customers as fast as Cars could be manufactured since last April.

The only way you can protect your desire to obtain prompt delivery of a Ford even at this time is to place your order immediately.

THIS EMPHASIZES MORE STRONGLY THAN ANYTHING WE COULD POSSIBLY SAY THE NECESSITY OF YOUR MAKING PROMPT ARRANGEMENTS WITH US FOR THE LISTING OF YOUR ORDER, PARTICULARLY IF YOU ARE CONTEMPLATING THE PURCHASE OF A FORD CAR OR TRUCK FROM US THIS SPRING OR SUMMER.

The above facts should convince you that the Ford is the best buy. The reduced prices below to the enormous production.

If I Could Remodel Dresses—

THAT well-dressed look isn't always dependent on brand new clothes. Several of my friends are considered very good "dressers," and do you know that they spend less for clothes than the average woman? Here's the secret—they remodel their old dresses. Sometimes they combine one or two, or remodel a suit and turn it into a dress.

Every one can't remodel clothes skillfully. There are many women who have dresses in which the material is perfectly good, but which are not adapted to changed styles. They're the secret—they remodel their old dresses. Sometimes they combine one or two, or remodel a suit and turn it into a dress.

If I could remodel dresses, I'd advertise it in a Gazette. I'd add and start building up a trade right away.

AT THE BEVERLY.
Sunday through Tuesday—"The Bond Boy," with Richard Barthelmess, and a Hall-Boys comedy.
Wednesday and Thursday—"Divorce Coups," starring Griffith, and "Nine Points of the Law," with Helen Gibson.
Friday and Saturday—"The Crossroads of New York," Mack Bennett production, and "The Timber Queen," with Ruth Rogers.

AT THE APOLLO.
Monday through Thursday—"The Beautiful Liar," Katherine MacDonald, and vaudeville.
Friday and Saturday—"Vaudeville and comedies."
Sunday through Thursday—"The Bond Boy," with Richard Barthelmess, and a Hall-Boys comedy.

AT THE MYERS.
Monday through Thursday—"The Bond Boy," with Richard Barthelmess, and a Hall-Boys comedy.
Friday through Sunday—"Singed Wings," Debe Danilevsky and Conrad Nagel, and vaudeville.

Crowds which jammed the theaters at the two mid-night shows New Year's eve have assured at least two, and probably more, for next year. Last year's first one was successful, and those of 1923 passed all expectations.

Audiences were large all during the holiday week, and for the first houses that were suffered the week or two preceding Christmas. Good pictures were offered, and many more are on the books for the coming months.

AT THE BEVERLY.
Richard Barthelmess goes back to the Virginia mountains, the location of his unforgettable "To-able David," for his most recent "First National" picture, "The Bond Boy," which will be shown at the Beverly theater next week.

Joe Newbolt, impoverished son of aristocratic parents, is forced to bind himself out to Isom Chase to work until he is able to pay his debt. How Chase is accidentally killed in an unfortunate marital tangle, how Joe is arrested for murder and condemned, how he effects his thrilling escape, solves the mystery and brings about his own freedom and happiness—these incidents are dramatically woven into a charming love story in this screen version of George Washington Ogden's fascinating tale.

The production is headed as a screen sensation. With Barthelmess appearing in an imposing cast, including Mary Thurman as "leading lady," Charles Hill as "Isom," George Virginia Mages as the ingenue, Mary Alden as the star's screen mother, Lawrence O'Brien, Robert Williams, and other well-known players, the Thomas McGuire and Lucia Bickus Segen.

The Corinne Griffith picture for the mid-week is a society tale of the girl who married a wealthy man, intending to get a divorce in a few years. How she comes to love him forms the theme of the picture. "Nine Points of the Law" is a western story of the fight of a girl to keep the child which had been placed in her hands.

"The Crossroads of New York," contrary to the Beverly's usual policy of having western features on week-ends, is said to be the funniest of the series of five-reel comedies that Mack Bennett made. A travesty of the old "mollie" drama, it has its exciting as well as amusing parts and altogether proves an evening's good entertainment. George O'Hara, Noah Beery, Ethel Grey Terry, William J. Ryan, Kathryn McGuire, Mildred June, all well-known players, have parts. The climax is usually exciting.

AT THE APOLLO.
"Rags to Riches" is a picture that will be universally liked. Every boy who goes to it will want to cheer at the exciting climaxes when Wesley Barry, playing the part of Marmaduke Clarke, captures burglars and performs many thrilling feats, and all older people will admire it for the good moral it carries, for the interesting love story that saves the production unity.

"Rags to Riches" pleurizes the dreams of many young boys and girls of today and will bring back to boyhood and girlhood dreams of older people. Tomorrow night you used to dream of what you would do if you had a million dollars? Perhaps buy candy stores in every town and go around visiting them, or perhaps buy up all the talking dolls and pretty clothes that the shops had. In "Rags to Riches" Wesley Barry shows that the riches are not half as enjoyable as the rags.

A connected story of the adventures of Marmaduke and the supposed burglar, who turns out to be a Secret Service agent, furnishes opportunity for a variety of scenes and adventures, while the love affair of the agent, played by Niles Welch, and an orphan girl, played by Ruth Renick, furnishes a romantic thrill which makes every picture complete.

Wesley Barry in "Penrod" and other pictures proved his abilities and he is now the leading actor of his age. There are others younger, below the age of self-consciousness, but Wesley Barry is the only one who has overcome the thoughts of his hands and feet and expression with which that age is obsessed, and has proven himself a real actor. No others are needed as long as "Freckles" keeps up his present record.

In "The Beautiful Liar," Katherine MacDonald has another of the adventurous parts which she plays with such ease and grace. This time she has a double part—that of the noted film actress who promises to appear at the Timber Queen with Ruth Rogers.

Lila Lee in the "Paramount Picture" "Ebb Tide." A George Melford Production AT THE MYERS.

One of the main points of interest connected with "Ebb Tide," to be seen at the Myers next week, is that it was taken from the story of the same name by Robert Louis Stevenson, and closely follows the plot of that famous story.

A picture of love and adventure in the South Seas, "Ebb Tide" is finding much favor in the short run. It has had. There is a great deal of romance, of fights with pearl divers, of fenders, octopuses and the flames of a burning ship. Action is rapid, and all the factors combine to make an excellent cast should make an exception, but who fails to do so, and of the little office girl who takes her part, wins fame and a husband. Charles Hill plays opposite Miss MacDonald.

tionally good picture. James Kirkwood plays the part of the adventurer, in love with Ruth Arwater (Lila Lee), daughter of a severe father who did not permit her to see any man. She seeks refuge with Penrod, played by the attractive Jacqueline Logan. Raymond Hatton is the unscrupulous London clerk located in the South Seas and George Fawcett and Noah Beery also have parts. Location is at Fepene, Hawaii, the famous South Sea island around which so many romantic tales are written.

"Singed Wings" will be popular if only for the two stars that have the leads—Debe Danilevsky and Conrad Nagel. These two, who have been captured together before, are among the most popular of the Paramount players, with a reputation for acting that makes their characterizations far from the uninteresting ones when an actress of many years' experience attempts to play the "flapper" parts.

"Singed Wings" is the story of a cabaret singer's romance with a young American. Scenes are laid in sunny Spain, where the passions are hot and killing. The picture is a dance with a white roas typifying purity, and the resolve of the hero's uncle to secure the girl's hand. The picture is a dance which is worked out in a way that causes a happy ending.

In addition to the leading characters, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Brown, Ernest Torrence and Mabel Tunnelle have parts. Scenes of Spain are said to be beautiful, and interior sets are equally elaborate.

Freckles Barry will be remembered by everyone who saw him in "School Days," "Penrod" and several of his other pictures, but "Rags to Riches" is one of the funniest pictures in which he has ever appeared. We dare to say that it is just as funny as Harold Lloyd in "Dr. Jack."

"FOOL PROOF" AMERICA.

We are fed up on the immigrant who comes to America and having lived a life of poverty and squalor in his own home country, existed there also in fear and trembling for the future, and has realized that in that home land he was always peasant or victim of caste; and then after landing, begins at once to denounce, arraign, criticize and pick flaws in and about America and her immigration systems.

So when we find a contributor to a magazine telling us some of the good things about our system we are as puzzled as Punch. Here comes Maria Moravsky—she has the simplest name encountered in a long time for one of these Slavic people—and says in "Our World" that this is a "fool-proof country" for the immigrant. Maria likes us and the tender way we look after the immigrant. It makes us feel better to think we have not gone to all the trouble which has impressed Miss Moravsky, to no purpose.

"Everything is so comfortably fool-proof in your country," Miss Moravsky says.
"The maps of the city on every larger station; the black hands pointing to entrances and exits, the push-pull and in-out combinations, the automatically opening railroad gates; the signs crying DANGER! on every freshly dug ditch."
Looking at all the signs guarding your every step, I often wondered why Americans did not cease to be good explorers—they have no longer any opportunity to develop the sense of direction.

The protesting of immigrants is at times carried to extremes, but always with the best of intent, Miss Moravsky reports.
There is a fundamental difference between the treatment of foreigners in America and in other countries, Miss Moravsky holds.
Here you are considered a potential citizen while in Europe, Asia and South America—you are but a visitor. It is the great tradition of the United States to open her gates to anyone considered worthy of her hospitality, and to open them permanently. Everything is tried to make you feel at home, once you have passed the purgatory of the customs house.

Those artists who draw 1923 as a pink baby, should have taken the weather more into consideration. This one garment style might stunt the growth of even so lusty an infant.

MONTENEGRO, NEVER VANQUISHED.

The editor's mail is filled with appeals from organized propagandists in every part of the world:
Europe and Asia, Hindu and Mussulman, Czech and Filipino, Russian and Palestine Jew—all ask for aid, not always money but generally so from America, the world's cash register. Now comes at this late hour the prayer of the land of the Black Mountains—Montenegro—for help.

This little kingdom, set in the mountains south of Jugo-Slavia remained unconquered by the Moslems when all else about these fastnesses in the rugged Balkans had been assimilated or made tributary to the empire of the Turkish Mohammedans. It is claimed that 200,000 Christian people there are on the verge of starvation and need aid at once. With funds furnished by the Pope and also from the Methodist missions, the little kingdom has begun a series of appeals to the people of America for further aid. There are some naive arguments. "You have fed the Bosnians," they exclaim—and therefore why not us?
"We had grain but the merchants were profligate and asked so much for it that the people could not buy." One is moved to suggest that the hanging of a few of the profligate and that time would have aided and consoled would have been better than appealing for charity. But to the reader of the romantic history of Europe and the Balkans the story of Montenegro is fascinating. Even its banditti in the old days when travel was unsafe without a military escort through the land, had an appeal. There is another place for the saving of life through the American system of cash donations. One feels like saying of all these—"Poor, helpless children."

There seems to be less red rash and pink fever among the radicals as we enter the new year.
It is hard to work up a scarlet climax when everybody is able to get a job.

Can the prohibition law be enforced? If you

Relics of Amateur Journalism

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN
Washington.—The little red schoolhouse and the old winning hole have been eulogized exhaustively. But it has remained for a single group of men, the Fossils, to keep green the traditions of the boy's printing press and the silver-penned boy editors of 30 years ago.
According to the dictionary, a fossil is a person or thing antiquated or out of date. The Fossils is a club composed of men who were once, in their boyhood days, amateur journalists. Amateur journalism is known to the boys of from 30 to 50 years ago, certainly is antiquated and out of date. So some years back the ex-amateurs banded themselves together and humorously dubbed themselves the Fossils.
So far as amateur journalism is concerned, they may be fossils, but the name does not seem to describe them otherwise. Thomas A. Edison is a Fossil. So are Governor Sprout of Pennsylvania, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, Cyrus Curtis, Charles Scribner, Josephus Daniels and some 300 other men who are still marching along with the times.

One and all, however, they are proud of being the fossils of amateur journalism. They like nothing better than to gossip about the days when each was an editor and helped to mold public opinion. One Fossil says that when Edison was invited to join the club the inventor went upstairs and came back with faded copies of his paper that he had kept since boyhood among his most valued possessions.
There are almost no amateur papers of this sort printed today. But between 1870 and 1890 there were at least 600. Almost all of them were the projects of boys in their teens. The boy's printing press was comparatively new, and to own a press was the great ambition of many a boy in those days. The happy owner of a press went into the printing business, generally combining the printing with a literary career in order to have something to print. Most often one boy would be the entire staff of a publication.
The little sheets, some of them containing eight and even 10 pages, were almost always published monthly.

A paper of this type enjoyed a small and select circulation except when some unusual feature caused a run on an issue. A story of one recent issue is told by George M. Huss, who is now assistant director general of the railroad administration, and who also is known as the man who surveyed the Syria-Ottoman railway from Haifa to Damascus and built a bridge across the River Jordan.

Mr. Huss says one memorable month his paper, the "Buckeye Boy," sold to a most gratifying extent. While Newsboy Huss was busily filling orders, Editor Huss was proudly reflecting that his home town had at last recognized his literary genius. But a friend explained the sudden demand for the "Buckeye Boy," and the young editor's faith in a discriminating public dwindled.
One item in the paper had read: "It is a curious phenomenon of an instinct that every morning Dr. Purson's dog runs around the schoolhouse."

The reason for this phenomenon, as the entire town well knew, was that the doctor had been courting the school mistress, and for a time he had made a practice of visiting the schoolhouse each morning and walking around it. The doctor had discontinued those pilgrimages, but the dog still visited the school at the accustomed time.
The tale of the doctor's dog, so innocently printed by the boy editor, was one which more mature editors of the community lacked the nerve to print.

That was the "Buckeye Boy's" high water mark.
For the most part the editors of the amateur papers had to depend on other youthful editors of the country for appreciation, criticism and interest.

In those days, Mr. Huss says, there was a post office ruling by which newspapers could be weighed and postage paid per pound at second class rate. Under this ruling a great many papers could be sent to the four corners of the country for a few cents and the boy editors used to exchange their publications. There was no profit in this, but the amateurs were not in the game for profit and exchanging papers was one of the most absorbing interests of the business.

Since money was scarce with the boy editors, they did not buy many contributions. Generally an editor could easily write enough copy, including editorials, poems, local items, serials and jokes to fill his own sheet. But the amateur journalists watched one another's publications closely, and it is a boy's keenest work on his rhymes or his plots, he was apt to receive numerous offers of copy submitted at the usual rates by more versatile writers.

Twenty-five or 50 cents was the usual price for a contribution.

Most of the struggling editors were more anxious to dispose of their own surplus copy than to purchase material from their fellow journalists.
Thus, Mr. Huss has in a scrap-book a post card from Josephus Daniels offering to sell him a story for 30 cents. Mr. Huss ran across this piece of unanswered correspondence not long ago and decided to write to Mr. Daniels about it. He wrote that he regretted his delay in replying, but that he would be glad to accept the story at the price quoted by the author.

Mr. Daniels replied in equal seriousness that he believed according to the statute of limitations, he could no longer be held to his offer and that he would be obliged to withdraw it.

Mr. Daniels is one of the few amateur journalists who have become professionals. One of the Fossils estimates that about one-third of the boys who were so eager for literary fame are now connected with literary work of some sort, but not many are successful.

The one year the Fossils publish a Fossil magazine for their own enjoyment, and they gather for occasional meetings and for the annual banquet.

One of the topics of conversation when Fossils get together is why the amateur journalist has become extinct. The change in post office rulings which prevented the papers being mailed in large lots cheaply was a fatal blow to the amateur publications. Yet other less obvious causes have had something to do with the decline of amateurism.

The chief explanation offered is that the boy of today has more money, more pleasures and more interests. If a boy has literary leanings, he writes for his school paper.
The high school or college paper is not the same type of publication as the old amateur sheets, the Fossils say. The school paper is governed strictly by school policies and it contains chiefly school news. The amateur papers, on the other hand, were written entirely according to the taste of the editor or group of editors.

as the world says, "A ginger ale night" and then proceeds to cry about it. Chicago could do the same if it had a police force with less of the hooch smell on its breath.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
"THE PHRASES OF EARLY DAYS."
In earlier days when dawn and day
Saw down to pen and ink and day,
Time, the taskmaster of today,
Dictated not what they should say,
There was no haste to scribble the line,
Each sentence by general design
Must wear its flourishes, polite,
It was a gracious art to write.
Thus they began, throughout the land:
"I now take up my pen in hand."

"Excuse, I pray, the pen I use,
I have none other I may choose;
The point is bad, but it will do
To send a word of love to you.
Today good health is mine to claim,
I trust this finds you all the same."
So down the page the phrases rolled,
Normal and quaint but never cold.
To reach at last that badge of haste:
"Pardon the errors due to haste!"

Sometimes the heart had more to tell,
Than one small page could carry well,
And all the space, and couldn't stop,
And so it wrote from base to top,
Hoping the letter wouldn't fall
To travel by the soonest mail.
Never the writer then forgot
To leave a portion for a blot.
And at the last, thus came the line:
"Your humble servant, I remain."

Letters are brief and terse today,
The phrases have passed away;
Seeking the goddess of success,
We've swept aside much loveliness.
Time is too dear to waste in phrase,
Letters have lost their gentle ways,
And a new and sterner age,
Yellowed and worn and lined by age,
But I can see some kindly face
Giving his thoughts a touch of grace.

For, while they're chic and charming,
They cost us a lot.

An eminent dramatic critic makes the remarkable original assertion that even the oldest dramatic stars suffer at times from stage fright.
That is easily understood, but did you ever hear of typewriter fright? Some of the oldest writers in the profession are afraid of their own machines. The subject was given, as well as the method of treatment and several suggestions were offered as to situations and scenes. We started this article on that very day and it still lacks about 50 per cent of completion. The cost of paper and type has run up to such a point that time has been lost. It is the poorest job of writing we have ever done and typewriter fright is the sole cause. It happens only once in awhile but when it happens, it packs a terrific wallop.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

How to get rid of "corns" between the toes. (C. M.)
Answer.—Apply the same remedy as for hard corns—solution of 30 grains of salicylic acid in half an ounce of flexible collodion—each night for a week or more. The corn must be kept separated by pieces of gauze or cotton, and these pieces changed as they become moist or discolored.

Feeding Things.

When one is eating out a meal a day in order to be necessary to eat cat fattening things at the other two meals? (Mrs. Y. F. J.)
Answer.—Nothing gained, or rather lost by skipping a meal if you increase the intake at the other meals.
Feeding a cat on a regular basis is omitted, but moderation or temperance should be exercised in eating everything in excess in reducing as attained, not by eating less and may not eat that regimen, but by eating a little less of everything.

Q. How did the continents get their names?
A. The origin of the name Asia is obscure. It is believed to have originated in the Greeks, or to have been borrowed by them from some other source. The word Europe, meaning sunset, or west, is derived from the Latin word Europa, meaning southern. The word America is derived from the name of the explorer, Christopher Columbus.
It was first proposed by Vesputilus, a teacher of geography in the College of St. Diego, in the treatise called "Cosmographia," published in 1492.

What is meant by the statement that railroad rates are fixed on a basis of "what the traffic will bear?" A. Z.

A. Fixing railroad rates at what the traffic will bear means the establishment of tariffs at the point which will yield the largest revenues in the long run, and tend to encourage the development of the country.
Q. How big is Alaska-Terraine?
W. J. W.
A. Alaska-Terraine from north to south is 132 miles; its breadth varies from 22 to 105 miles; its area is 6,580 miles.

Q. In the moon brighter in the first quarter than in the third? A. The casual observer would probably notice no difference in brightness between the first and third quarters, but measures by Stebbins and Ford show that the moon is brighter at the first quarter. A glance at the full moon shows there are more dark areas on the eastern limb than on the western half. Q. Who called some country the sick man of Europe? F. F. W. A. The expression "The sick man of Europe" was used by Czar Nicholas of Russia in connection with the British ambassador, Seymour, in 1841, in allusion to the decay of the Turkish empire.

Q. How long would it take for a train to travel from Boston to Janesville? A. The postoffice department says it would take four days to carry a letter from Boston to Seattle and four days from Seattle to Skagway. It would be difficult to determine the exact time it would take for mail to be sent from Skagway to White Horse, but they are of the opinion that a letter from Boston to Dawson City would arrive within two weeks. Heavy snows and other local con- ditions are important factors in follow- ing up mail in this part of the coun- try.

Q. Certain theories are said to be fundamental in the Declaration of In- dependence. What are they? F. M. S. A. The five fundamental theories of the declaration are: The doctrine of equality—"all men are created equal"; the doctrine of inalienable rights; that the origin of government was in a consent of the governed; "governments are instituted"; that powers of government rest on the consent of the governed; the right to throw off government that is the right of revolution or resistance.

Q. What and where is the Gun- nison tunnel? J. W. S. A. The Gunnison tunnel is part of the Thompson valley project, an irrigation enterprise in southwestern Colorado, and pierces the divide which separates the Gunnison river from the Uncompahgre river. It is 20,692 feet in length.

The Calfskin Trunk

Being the Unsolved Mystery of Edwin MacFarland as told by Manuscripts found after the Hyatt House fire in Janesville; to which is added a few incidents by Peter B. Western, late of the C. S. A. of Missouri.

Written for the Janesville Gazette and copyrighted by the Gazette Printing Company, 1922. All rights reserved.

Synopsis of the story.—When the Hyatt House burned in Janesville January 12, 1887, a calfskin trunk was rescued from the hotel and taken away by a drayman who afterward moved to Nebraska. In this trunk lived a hotel-keeper, Peter B. Western, who hid in the trunk at an auction sale of the drayman's effects and in his room prior to the fire. The trunk was found in the room of a man named Redmond, a young jacket which had a gasp over the wearer's heart, was blood stained and he recognized it as having been worn by a union soldier named Redmond. There was a bundle of manuscript papers in the trunk, and Western was the diary of the author. On September 27, 1861, a man wearing the uniform of a union soldier visited Camp Treadway, Janesville. Later two men of striking resemblance registered at the Hyatt Hotel, Janesville. The first signed his name Edwin J. MacFarland, the second George H. Watson. Peter B. Western, who was much disturbed over the fact that he could not tell one from the other. Later Western saw the one he called MacFarland leave the hotel and he himself fled under threat to punish him as a secessionist. In the morning the body of a dead man supposed to be Watson is found in room 32.

VI—Guerillas and Jayhawkers.

It was three weeks later that the man who had come from the Hyatt Hotel on the evening of September 27, tied his horse to a tree in a clump of bushes, so as to be well concealed, and looked long at the winding Meramec river at his feet. It is a turbid stream from its source up in the foothills of the Ozarks to the very mouth at the Mississippi, south of St. Louis. It has always been a fatal stream—its summers filled with drownings and its winters many. It finds its end in the hills, and for miles it comes from the mountains into the lower levels. It beats against these year after year, until here and there a new channel is made and the course of the stream deflected far out of the original channel.

MacFarland had, a few days after his return from Wisconsin, ridden over here from the north, pleasant as it was, but no soul appeared to welcome him. The old mansion was still there, but as no soul appeared to welcome him, he remained only a short time and made the journey at night to this part of the Meramec along on quite another mission.

He came out of the skirt of woods along the stream and looked across at the old stone house. It stood a good way back from the river, and about an old stone house. It was old even in the days of the Civil war. From the river bank it was approached by a road winding among heavy grape vines. They had been planted by a Belgian whose home had been close to the Champagne of France, and in whose vineyards he had been a worker before he came to America. The house had been divided and the estate had been partly divided and the home was owned by the Joplins, brothers. One had gone to war early in the days of secession, the other remained here.

Above and to the right of the house, as one stood, he might see another garden—acres of rose bushes and vines trained and cared for with evident tenderness. It was upon this that MacFarland had his eyes as he trailed along the road toward the buildings in the early morning. The sun was just rising—the eastern rays lighted up the windows in the stone house where they were not concealed by the heavy trailing rose vines or the wild cucumber and morning glory, now dead or dying from the touch of the October frost. There was a sharp tang in the air and MacFarland moved fast. The stables were beginning to show signs of life from within. A cow lowed and a few sheep ran scurrying about the barnyard.

MacFarland went to the porch on the side of the house overlooking the valley and sat down on a heavy bench. A few sounds came from the interior and then the door opened and a man came forth. He stretched his arms above his head, breathing in a vast quantity of air and was in this position when he saw MacFarland.

One might have been amazed at the quickness of so large a man. He was thick and heavy, his hands were enormous and his head crowned with a mass of graying hair was also large. But his face was that of a tragedian portrayed in the pictures of Edwin Forrest and the early actors of Old London. When he had seen MacFarland he leaped like a tiger and with outstretched hands and spread fingers seemed about to crush the life from him. His face was the picture of insane rage. His mouth opened and from it came an inarticulate cry.

MacFarland made a quick leap, swung to one side and when the enraged man looked at him again he confronted the same revolver that figured in the Hyatt House, room 32, a few weeks before.

"Calm yourself Mr. Joplin," he said in a low tone. "You are at a disadvantage. Let us walk to the stables where we can talk without disturbing anyone."

Joplin ran his hand over his forehead and wiped away the beads of perspiration gathered there.

"There is no one to disturb," he answered gruffly. Then his voice grew high and angry. "You have killed my wife, stolen my girl, run off my horses, driven away my colored boys, and now you come here. What for? Have you come to die?"

He fell heavily to the bench and bowed his head in his hands.

MacFarland let the revolver fall to his side and came nearer. He caught sight of a negro's face in the half opened doorway and was on the keen watch for treachery.

"If you are going to kill me because I stole Gertrude, you are wasting time. I was here, yes. But that is all. If I told you what happened you would not believe. The man who took Gertrude from St. Louis will speak no more. He is gone forever."

"What is your name?" asked Joplin suddenly.

"What do you think it is?"

"MacFarland."

"Then let it remain MacFarland."

"I thought so, but Redmond the Jawhawker, said it was 'Dick Littleton.' You had better go. I remain here to fight. I have guns and I am prepared to give anyone who comes now a hot battle. I shall stay, for it is as you say—she might write."

He turned with sudden gleam in his eye and entered the door. MacFarland walked from the porch and down through the terraces of the rose garden, halting a little and then clambered down the ridge to the vine filled fields.

A bullet whizzed by his head, he heard the report of the rifle and looking back saw Joplin standing in the door, just lowering the weapon.

He cautiously approached the place where he had concealed his horse. On the ground were many tracks, all fresh.

The horse was gone and sound of beating hoofs on the road across the flat came to his ears.

VII—In the Service of the U. S. A.

Since the man who visited the Joplin farm was the same person who came from the Hyatt Hotel in Janesville and there called himself MacFarland, and after that was generally known by that name, though frequently taken for Richard Littleton, he will be thus referred to hereafter. Whether it was his right name or not the reader must eventually judge, and whether Richard Littleton or Edwin J. MacFarland died in room 32 of the Hyatt Hotel under the alias of George H. Watson must be determined also by the facts as they are disclosed by the diary found in the calfskin trunk and the investigations afterward made by Peter B. Western. There was bitterness in the heart of the man who left the Joplin home and he found that it was impossible to make himself understood, for he had loved Gertrude Joplin and, on the night she was taken away from her home, he had gone there to save her from the clutches of Redmond, who afterward had the effrontery to go to the father with plausible falsehoods. He had one less enemy in the world when he had left the Hyatt Hotel alone, as he had declared he would have, and now he inwardly swore that he would rid this world of the other who had contributed to the disturbance in the Joplin home and perhaps wrecked his own happiness for eternity.

That was the feeling in his soul when he came to the place where he had left his horse and found the animal gone. One glance was enough and he crashed back into the brush and threw himself on the ground for he was certain there must be watchers. Still he heard the pounding of those hoofs along the road leading to the Joplin home and slowly dragged himself through the undergrowth to where he could see the buildings. There were a group of men on the porch. Suddenly flames shot from the stables where they had evidently been ignited. He heard shouts, loud cries, and then feeling his own helplessness, waited. The house too was set on fire and after that came the pounding of hoofs and the riders dashed down the road across the flats and passed close to where he lay concealed. His horse was in the troop. At its head he saw a rider whom he remembered as a leader of the guerrillas and one of the southern sympathizers who wore the uniform of the Confederacy, the better to steal and rob. These were not Union men, but Secesh.

Needless of the danger, he ran to the house. It was a good quarter of a mile. He had reached the first ridge when from a small clump of bushes he saw Joplin and a colored boy emerge from the very earth. He remembered then that this was the tunnel he himself had used some weeks before on his trip there to forestall the attack by Redmond.

"They got me that time," said Joplin with the calmness of desperation. "He held a rifle in his arms. They got me but I'm going to get you. You lied to me again and you see how clear it is. Before the other said you came ahead. Now you come again to spy the place and to see that no guards are here and the guerrillas arrive on your heels. First the Jawhawkers and—suddenly he had thrown the rifle to his shoulder but MacFarland was quick enough to drop to earth and the bullet sped past him. He would remain longer of the guerrillas and one of the southern sympathizers who wore the uniform of the Confederacy, the better to steal and rob. These were not Union men, but Secesh.

He would have to defend himself with his own revolver, he fled across the flat toward the river. He heard the negro boy laughing loudly at the speed he was making but no more shots were fired. At the edge of the wood along the river, MacFarland looked back and saw the old man and the boy disappear in the brush concealing the tunnel.

MacFarland ran to the river, forced a flat bottomed boat loose from its moorings and started down the stream. What his thoughts were no man can tell, but it is to be said that after that he was a different man to all who had known him before.

"This seems to be a war of revenge," he has written in the diary. "If that is so I shall have my share. From this time I shall have small mercy."

In the dark of that night his figure came to a brick house on Poplar street in St. Louis and after giving a few staccato raps, evidently a signal, he was let into a hallway. Before him was darkness and in his face was thrust a pistol.

"You are to keep silence," said a voice.

"I am MacFarland," was his answer.

He felt a hand on his arm and he was led down the hall and into a room where a candle fluttered dimly. It was thrust into his face and after scrutiny was led again, this time to a room on the second floor where he was placed in a chair, gas lights turned on and he saw before him a thin, wizened old man with sparse white whiskers concealing a skeleton face.

"Why, it's MacFarland," said the wizened one.

"I am back here and have come for orders."

"Where did you leave the girl?" Did you find a nice place for her up in Wisconsin? That was a good job on your brother Dick. So you want orders. God bless me there is enough to do. They are getting the boys every day. It is harder and harder to get the lines and Old Fremont has a spy system that is beating ours. Have you seen that brother of yours—Littleton? We want news of what is going to happen. Can't you make out you are Littleton and get inside the Fremont headquarters? That's what we want. It's a risk, for if they find you are Dick you will be hung up like a dead steer."

MacFarland kept watch of this little man with his own black eyes betraying nothing. He had not even winced when the name of Gertrude was mentioned. This old man was Peter Bangert, head of the Confederate secret service in St. Louis where about half the population was on the rebel side of the war and families were divided and brother, in truth, fought against brother.

"I am ready for any service," was the reply.

"Well, you have grown amazingly calm since you went away. You are to get out of here as soon as possible, find out what that man Zagoni is to do, follow him and then communicate with the commander at Springfield and report to Price as soon as possible. But first you will have to know what is going on at headquarters. Get that information at once."

"I am ready. I will go and begin at once."

"You will need money. Here is a handful," said Bangert, reaching a number of gold pieces.

"No, I have some I got from you when I went away north," and MacFarland fished some coins in his pocket.

"I made quite a stake up north. They are easy and it was what you would perhaps call a 'killing' but I must not remain here a moment longer. Good night."

He went out into the street. A few steps from the door he encountered Peter Western. The former clerk gave a start and would have spoken but MacFarland after giving him a look, went on as though there had been no recognition. Western would have followed, but he too, had business inside with Bangert and before morning was on his way out of the city and along the high road to Springfield.

OLD SMOBILE

U. S. TORSY TURVY OVER REPARATIONS

Weird Senate Alignments Develop on Question of Representation.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1922 by Janesville Daily Gazette

Washington—Things may be upside down in Paris as a result of the breakup of the conference of the primary, but they are also topsy turvy here.

Of all the strange alignments which have ever been evolved in the history of the world, the one that is the strangest is about to be disclosed. During the past few days the Senate has been in session, and the Republicans in favor of the Robinson resolution proposing American membership on the reparations commission are many republicans of the farm bloc. Such a coalition is powerful enough to alter the entire aspect of American foreign policy. It is strong enough to pass the Robinson resolution if indeed the administration should attempt to take the measure.

Senator Borah, a Republican, proposed an economic conference was easily killed by President Harding's letter declaring an economic conference at this time would be embarrassing, but he cannot say that about American membership on the reparations commission, for he himself has gone on record publicly declaring such membership for the United States.

So has Secretary Hughes. From the viewpoint of tactics, Mr. Harding's position today would have been stronger if he had formally asked the senate for passage of a resolution, permitting American membership on the reparations commission. As it is, there is no such formal action, and the senate is in the hands of Mr. Lodge which was never acted upon.

Wants America There.
The administration wants America represented on the reparations commission—and now it has no official observers in attendance at the meetings. But if the Robinson resolution is passed the republicans will be getting the necessary power from a coalition of democrats and the farm bloc.

The senators from farm states have developed an intense interest in foreign policy and especially the settlement of the reparations question. They see at last the argument made here and there that the reparations commission will be a clearing house of the whole reparations controversy.

The administration may throw its support to the Robinson proposal in which case it would go through with an almost unanimous vote. It may even afford the way out to the European powers. That is because the reparations question was originally taken out of the hands of the reparations commission for separate handling by the president and it can easily be referred back to the commission upon which, of course, each of the allied and associated powers is represented.

See Hughes' Proposal.
The proposal of Secretary Hughes that a commission of financiers be appointed to examine the reparations question would not necessarily conflict with the work of the reparations commission because any loans to be floated must be recommended by the private bankers, and a means of easing Germany's payments and the whole reparations question depends upon the burden finally imposed upon Germany. It was the reparations commission itself which invited J. P. Morgan and other international bankers to furnish advice on how the German reparations payments might be financed for the next few years.

Another phase of the reparations question is the American membership on the reparations commission is that the United States would be able to vote and would not doubt exercise considerable influence in the meetings of the commission. The American member would be subject to instructions from President Harding and Secretary Hughes, just as any member of the American delegation is particularly familiar with the reparations controversy.

With the break up of the conference at Paris, the next step depends upon the interpretation of the Versailles treaty clauses relating to reparations. Those clauses were embodied in America's separate peace treaty with Germany. The United States is a party to the reparations dispute and is just as much a partner in any readjustment of reparations made by the Paris peace conference as it is in the distribution of the other spoils of war, namely the mandated territories.

Any cancellation or reduction of Germany's war debts must be approved by unanimous vote of the reparations commission. This gives the United States an important voice, but until America is officially represented her influence is only relative. The framers of the Versailles peace conference intended to give the United States an important voice in the reparations commission and it is contended by some critics that if America had been attending the meetings and urging a settlement, the reparations question might have been solved.

American membership on the reparations commission may be delayed through the introduction of a substitute proposal emanating from the republican side of the senate but it is much nearer than it has been since the "irreconcilables" first objected upon the idea as an entangling alliance.

Gazette Good Times Club

FOR ALL SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS

Those who participate in the music memory contest in the rural schools are expected to familiarize themselves with the compositions listed as to recognize them when all or any part of the piece is played. Give names of composition and composer with correct spelling of each and state the nationality of the composer. Pupils will, however, be interested in learning more about each composition.

Information will be given in the Gazette from week to week concerning the contest and the music memory contest list. It is suggested that these compositions be preserved in a section of the Good Times club scrap books or in separate booklets which may be referred to as the contest progresses.

Following are descriptions of two selections:

First Movement, from "Unfinished Symphony," Schubert.
Schubert, the great song writer, wrote nine symphonies and left others in manuscript when he was overtaken by typhoid fever when he was only 35 years old. His work was appreciated during his life and was brought forward by Schumann, Mendelssohn and Rubinstein after his death.

The lovely "symphony," usually known as the "Unfinished," was written by Schubert in 1822. The first and second movements were written in full, but only a few measures were written of the Scherzo.

Frans Schubert was born in 1797 and died in 1828. He was one of the world's greatest composers and an instrumental composition. Schubert

Camp for Boys and Girls, Big Work of Rotary

Throughout the world, the chief aim of the Rotary International has been to show their desire for practical service in interesting themselves in work beneficial to youth, and so it has been with the Janesville Rotary club during 1922.

Among club members, $800 was raised for boys' work and the camp, which was used by several scores of boys for the first time, cost $300, each boy paying $6 for the vacation. A. C. Preston, a Rotarian, conducted the camp for the third year. The Rotarian was chairman of the club committee. A total of $100 was spent in permanent improvements.

Many children enjoyed other affairs presented by the Rotary club. These were the entertainment of the June high school graduating class, the graduates and orchestra of the school for the blind, and the high school football team, which was presented with a football. A campfire was held at the fairgrounds for the senior class and the 7th and 8th grades.

A $100 scholarship was created by the Rotary club for the high school boy showing himself to be the best all around student.

Rotary International, which listed over 400 clubs four years ago, now reports 1,200 clubs.

President Charles L. Fifield was appointed a special representative of the district governor to organize the Delavan Rotary club, whose charter was presented Sept. 17. The Delavan club was the first to be organized in the 10th district, composed of Wisconsin and northern Michigan.

The Rotary members showed themselves no shirkers in community activities, with their members enlisted in every financial campaign for charity, the Kiwanis club, the Huron Festival and other projects. It cooperated with the Kiwanis club in the establishment of the tourist camp.

Robert J. Cunningham was sent to Los Angeles to deliver a lecture. The club lost H. K. Beall, C. M. Fuller, George C. Olin, and C. J. Smith by removal from the city, and took in George McKay and A. C. Preston as new members.

The club's membership is now 61 and has the following officers: Judge Charles L. Fifield, president; H. S. Loveloy, vice-president; Francis Grant, secretary; and Maurice L. Vetrick, treasurer.

ELECTRIC COMPANY EXTENDS SERVICE

Two Villages Get Power in 1922—Both Dams Here Rebuilt.

Improvements costing $100,000 in all departments and branches, stand out as the biggest achievement in 1922 of the Janesville Electric company, together with the introduction of service to the villages of Orfordville and Footville.

A cost of $28,000, a 13,200-volt transmission line between Janesville and Orfordville and Footville, was built and put into operation, the village of Orfordville, light and power company.

Extensive improvements were made at the Monterey plant, the head gate structure, including new gates, being built and trash racks added new floors for the waste flumes laid, increasing the available power. Modern type of water wheel and generating equipment will be installed later, it is planned.

Changes in the switchboard were made at the central Janesville plant, making provision for increasing capacity of outgoing feeders, and facilitating switching operations.

The largest expense came in construction of a substation near Edgerton and improving service there.

Considerable work was done on the local distributing lines where lines were changed, and new telephone wires, and also to provide further capacity for overloaded lines.

Dam Is Improved.
Power from the company's plants of Janesville, Indian Ford and Fulton and that received from the Wisconsin River Power company is now being sold to Footville, Orfordville, Edgerton, Appleton, Emerald Grove, Milton and Milton Junction, Fulton and the Cambridge-Albion Electric company which furnishes electricity for Lake Ripley, London, Cambridge and Albion.

In Janesville there are 4,000 homes and a total of 1922 there were 3,100 wired for electrical current, 300 more than a year ago. The concern has 4,298 customers, a gain during the year of 376.

Forty-six are employed by the company, and the chief engineer, Manager William R. Schmidley of Janesville. Mr. Schmidley is closing his second year in that capacity. Earl Metcalf is assistant to the general manager, and George Blakesly, commercial manager.

One-Half Mile of Storm Sewer Laid by Street Forces

Aside from regular maintenance of all streets and general repair and improvement work, the street forces of the city street department in 1922 was construction of 1,382 feet of storm sewer on Prospect avenue, from North Bluff street to Milton avenue, and the Cambridge-Albion drainage for the Second ward. This big job was carried out under the direction of Street Commissioner Thomas O. Olson, having been completed in 24-inch tile and the balance 30 and 36-inch monolithic concrete.

Three other storm sewer projects were completed, making more than one-half mile laid in 1922, as follows:

1. 112 feet of 36-inch monolithic in ravine south of Court street at Clarence street.

2. 230 feet of 24-inch tile on Grove street, south of South Third street.

3. 322 feet of 18-inch tile on South Third street, across Grove to Ringold street.

Mr. McKane reports the following as being the most important of the many other activities of his department:

4 to 5 miles of streets gravelled.
44 blocks of streets cleaned and oiled.
210 blocks swept and rolled.
Much time spent in fixing streets left in poor condition by contractors.

SUPERVISORS VOTE 4 NEW BUILDINGS

Passage of Sanatorium and County Farm Projects, Big Work of 1922.

Despite the persistent policy of the state administration to usurp powers vested in county boards, the Rock county board of supervisors did much to advance the county in 1922. Conservative in its administration, especially in matter of appropriations of tax funds, the supervisors have finished the year with a quarter of million in the credit side of the ledger.

Not have money been allotted in county public improvements. The supervisors have authorized the building of a $150,000 sanatorium, including property, and have authorized the building of two additional buildings at the Rock county farm and an improved heating plant to cost $75,000 and a policy of building permanent roads that should give Rock county, with 150 miles of concrete and gravel trunk lines highways, the best in the state.

Adopt Big Budget
The budget passed for 1923, including all state county and school money, amounts to $749,844.40—the largest in history. The state tax raised within the county amounts to $170,022.22 of which amount, except $3,175.32 is raised for school purposes, including approximately $50,000 for the state university. The balance of the state tax is $126,846.90.

The county built more concrete roads than any year in the past, due to the fact both the county machinery was used and in addition the Beloit and Rock county road was built in contract.

One of the biggest problems of the year has been in the settlement of the road program. Each district and each township bloc is anxious to be on the concrete schedule as early as possible.

Liberal appropriations have been made for the county school system. The county school tax amounts to $66,045.35.

At the coming session, starting next Tuesday afternoon, the supervisors will hear a report on whether it is best to remain under the present county system or to adopt a new system back to the old township system whereby each district raises money to build its own roads.

Danville Given Assistant
In last matter there was a time when it looked as if a re-assessment would be made in the county. A hearing was held and an adjustment made to spread over alleged inequities. The first time in recent years the county last year adopted the equalization report without a stormy debate.

Due to the increased number of cases in court for violation of the prohibition laws, the county last year established the office of assistant district attorney, by hold by W. S. Randall, Beloit. The county also has provided for the county nurse and agricultural agent.

Danville—A writer in Freeman's Journal proposed the republicans store their arms and ammunition in three depots, under a mixed guard of free state and republicans, during a final truce while peace was negotiated.

The carp fishers at Lake Koshong report heavy catches. The fish are smaller than usual.

The city treasurer and treasurer of Koshong will not start collecting taxes until Jan. 15, the delay being caused by the number of special assessments that have had to be entered into the tax roll.

OPERATIONS ARE ALWAYS DREADED

and it is a good thing for the human race that this fear exists. It is not a natural thing to have the body, which we live in, mutilated and dismembered. In the present age, when operations are daily occurrences, some force must restrain us. Nature has endowed us with a natural fear.

More than half of all operations performed are entirely unnecessary—if we only knew how to prevent them. Chiropractic adjustments will prevent operations. No matter how nearly imminent an operation seems you should not submit until you have given Chiropractic a chance to prevent it. How much more pleasant to go to the Chiropractor for a few minutes daily than to undergo the ordeal of the operating table, the long days of convalescence, the almost unending expense, the fear and dread and doubt. Chiropractic is truly a blessing to the afflicted.

The Chiropractor is always glad to explain to you all of the details which enter into the science of Chiropractic. It is bound to appeal to you as being the logical, human and natural way of eradicating disease. The more you know about it the greater your enthusiasm will become.

REVIEW OF A GRICULTURE DURING 1922—FARM NEWS AND VIEWS

By LEWIS C. FRENCH

Rock county made its greatest progress in livestock development during 1922 and has laid a foundation to make Rock the leading livestock county in the United States by the end of 1923.

The livestock program to advance Rock county as the outstanding district in the United States for good dairy and beef cattle, swine, sheep and horses is not founded on an idle dream, unwarranted facts nor dubious foundation. Rather the county-wide effort to produce increased revenue among the farmers of the district with better livestock is based upon the long time development of the livestock, the natural richness of the soil to produce the best feed for the stock, the good roads at the county's doors and the progressive rural citizenship.

Authorities agree that no other county can now compete with Rock when it comes to championship cattle, sheep or swine. Having the foundation animals that represent the "toppers" of the breed, the main livestock development program is to distribute this quality stock over a greater number of farms within the county and organize the livestock business with the county's goods and services.

Lead With Livestock
Livestock is now considered as the leading "article of merchandise" in Rock county. It is an article that the world must have to supply meat, dairy products—the world's best food—clothing and leather. The crop values in Rock county amount to $5,571,424 and livestock values in 1922 estimated at $8,838,172. Consequently livestock breeding and raising is "big business." It is going to be handled and treated as such under the 1923 Rock county agricultural policy.

Every farm in Rock county represents an average investment of $16,000. The county now is a district without city or village "limits." Good roads, the many miles of permanent concrete roads, consolidated schools, rural telephone lines have brought the country closer and the municipality has extended its boundaries to the townships. The urban resident because of necessity has interested himself in the rural and livestock products of the county. Every dollar added value on the stock of the county directly reflects on the financial income of the city residents.

Increase Farm Income
The bulk of the farmer's income is attributable to livestock. Realizing this fact the county development program has been based on the community problem of increasing the values on all stock within the county. The start made in 1922 was remarkable, the results pleasing but the passing year is but a stepping stone to the cooperative work to be undertaken in 1923.

Future development in Rock county is based along three major lines, when livestock is considered:

1—Clean livestock—the testing of all cattle on the county-wide basis to guarantee the stock is sound in health. Favoring the county-wide test, it is planned to go further to adopt methods to prevent reinfection and keeping at least 2,000 heads within the county on the fully accredited list. This would place the county in a commanding lead over any other district in the United States for clean cattle.

2—Known production ability—the testing of dairy cattle for butter-fat and milk production. Six cow testing associations have been formed and at the end of the county-wide tuberculosis test, it is planned to have at least 10 associations working to cull out poor producing animals and present official records on a vast number of Rock county cattle.

3—Correct breed type—the combination of clean stock, known production ability, ranks but little above the need to have correct type livestock. To prove that the Rock county breeders have this foundation type, county show herds were selected for the first time to meet the test of the judging ring at the county state and national exhibitions for prize livestock. Rock was the first county to ever send a county show herd to the Chicago International Livestock Exposition. Also Rock county was the first to organize a cow testing association limited to dual purpose Shorthorns.

Advertise Rock County
There are no misadventures "agriculturalists" in Rock county. Rather it is "dirt soil" farmers whose income comes from their herds and flocks and fowls. Business interests in the cities united with a pool to help these farmers prove they had as good show ring type stock as have breeders who make a steady practice of advertising the stock in the show ring. As a result Rock county is talked of in many states as "the home of good livestock." County show herds are representative of the entire county, not individuals or outstanding herds. Such a policy gives the small breeder an opportunity of showing one or two animals that otherwise would never attract attention outside a small local zone.

By banners, booklets and blankets the stock was displayed with the view of bringing out the county and not the owner. Results sought were to be county-wide and not limited to a few.

Show Herds a Success
The show herds decided success, despite the newness of the plan and lack of experience on the part of the promoters. Formed after the Janesville fair, the show herds were taken to the Dane county fair where the Rock county stock won 25 championships, then to Milwaukee where the herds won 1 royal purple ribbon and the gilt was the International where cattle and sheep won for Rock county more premiums than was collected by any other district.

The 1923 plans are for an enlargement of the show herds to completely represent the county. A fund of $1,000 is to be sought to promote the Rock county agricultural display at the fairs and national exhibitions. Through no other medium can the community become so nationally known.

The coming year will find many farmers starting selecting and fitting their prize animals for the Rock county show herds. They will be culled over better than ever before selected from among animals that stand the tests of fitting, and then sent out on a larger circuit of fairs. Every popular breed of cattle, swine and sheep raised in Rock county, as well as horses, will be shown in 1923 in the event the "Rock County First" farm program is carried out.

The showing of livestock is but one phase of the program. Rock county does not lack good stock, both purebreds and well bred grades. The chief weakness of the county in an agricultural way, is the lack of distribution of the good stock over all parts of the county. There are many farms raising poor stock that will not pay dividends or profits either as dairy animals, or as beef, pork or mutton. The program is based around the fundamental idea of having more good livestock, not necessarily registered animals, on all farms in Rock county.

This means the elimination of all scrub sires, since the sire is "more than half the herd." It means interesting and profitable farmers into establishing better herds and improving flocks.

The market is demanding good livestock. It is good business to develop what the market desires and is willing to pay premium prices to obtain all farm interests in Rock county. Reasonable time be made the chief buying center for livestock. The average value of all cattle in the county is estimated to be $80 and this can be raised through development work to double this amount.

The area test, the production records and show type ribbons means that added value is placed on every animal raised and kept in Rock county.

Centralize Efforts
There is a move started to form an effective organization to represent all farm interests in Rock county. Centralizing of the agricultural business of the entire county is sought to bring direct action and results to all farmers, to the benefit of service, too much attention being paid to unimportant projects and to give better service to both the buyer and seller.

In short it means putting Rock county's agricultural business on a "real, definite and organized" business basis. What the Farm Bureau and other agencies want to do most is to help the farmer sell his products well at the true values, to put cash in the pockets of the farmers, especially during a time when farmers are not obtaining a fair return on their investments.

The county will be asked to support this central farm office or bureau in establishing improved sales methods for all livestock, field products and farm products in the entire district.

Breed Associations
Much credit for Rock county's advance is due to the breed associations and organizations. The Farm Bureau has been the organized force behind every move to advance Rock county to the front.

The livestock breeders have shown remarkable results through their active association of 120 paid members. They more than put over their 1922 program and have outlined a progressive program for 1923 that will make other counties nod to the black and whites "step some" to keep up with the association here.

The short-horn association has had a successful year both in the matter of sales, extension work and herd results. The association has kept alive interest in the red, whites and roans and probably scored more hits and show victories than any other association in the state.

The Duroc-Jersey swine association provided a prize trophy litter competition, organized a show herd that won a creditable amount of honors and backed a winning junior club. The Duroc men have put Rock county as the leading county in Wisconsin in the breeding of red swine.

Farm Bureau Meeting
The executive committee of the Farm Bureau will meet next Tuesday morning in the court house and the directors during the afternoon.

Sell Milk Company
The Consumers Milk Co., Beloit, which went into bankruptcy was sold Friday to Clayton Kenale and S. J. Shrousen.

Poland-China association has been formed less than a year ago and will make an organized drive for county development this year. The association will hold a county sale in the stock county pavilion.

The Guernsey breeders are expected to follow in line through their association to develop this wonderful breed of cattle move in Rock county. It is planned to organize a Guernsey show herd and develop more interest in the junior club.

While there are no county associations to represent the Jerseys, Brown Swiss and Herefords, breeders of these cattle are steadily pushing their herds forward. There is no bred prejudice in Rock county. No attention is made to favoring one breed over another, rather attention to having farmers improve their stock regardless of the breed.

Direction of a county livestock and judging pavilion was finally accomplished through the cooperation of the cities and farmers. Such a building has been needed for years but with one faction pulling this way and another a different route, the county went without a pavilion. The United Rock county farm spirit however has put the pavilion over.

Its use will be increased with time. There will be at least eight hog sales in the pavilion in 1923. These prize cattle sales, in addition to being used as a farm demonstration place and for judging at fair time.

"In no other year has Rock county brought into the limelight for having good livestock as during 1922."

The county is becoming known. The livestock and farm have been subjects for numerous articles in national publications. Visitors at the fair and exhibitions talk "Rock county" for they see and hear of its victories and success.

Proper cooperation between the agencies that go to make up a successful agricultural community will see "Rock County First" without a bit of dispute by the end of 1923.

For the time the city organizations have interested themselves in rural problems. There is harmony between the men and organizations who are interested in the county's development and not individual men or organizations.

The old individual spirit has been crumbled and brushed away to make way for the new communistic cooperative spirit of "Keeping Rock County First!"

Are Trucking Milk
Due to the break over organized milk marketing, about 10,000 pounds of milk which has been going to the Burlington Dairy company, Avon, produced by members of the marketing company, is now being trucked to Burlington.

May Walker Ollie Homestead, champion butter producer of the U. S.
FRENCH, countesses and prima donnas have nothing on May Walker Ollie Homestead, when it comes to high sounding names. May Walker is a queen in her own right. May is a Holstein breeder of Janesville, Minn., and in a year's official test produced 1,230 pounds of butter and 31,610 pounds of butter-fat and 31,610 pounds of milk.

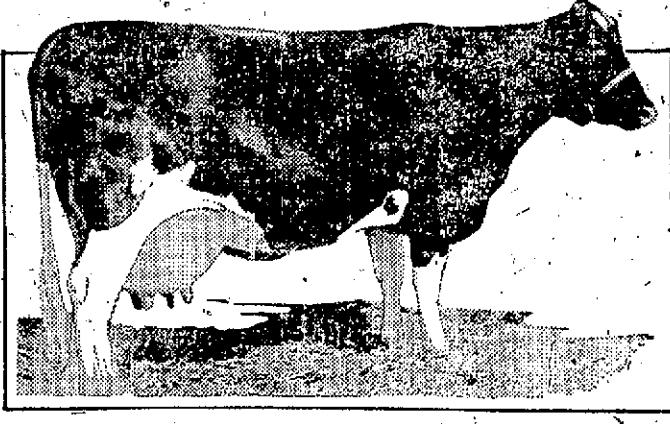

Outside of that May took things easy and mothered her calf. This is a new world's record for production. In addition to her production ability the photograph shows the new champion to have show ring type.

Rock county has a prospect in grade Holstein cow—KIT—owned by Rockwell and Katterhenry, Beloit, to set a new production mark for Wisconsin cow testing work. KIT will finish up her year's run in the near future. They are the kind that pay dairy dividends. And now-a-days farm dividends are scarce as hen's teeth. As compared to record of May Walker the average cow gives less than 200 pounds of fat a year. The average cow does not pay, the good ones do.

PLAN CHESTER-WHITE ASSOCIATION IN CO.
Swine breeders of Rock county are rapidly organizing for development through active county associations. Having the foundation stock within the county, the breeders are resolved to push their breeds through county co-operation by various means—fair exhibits, show herds, pig clubs, and individual work.

The Duroc-Jersey breeders have been organized for some years and

DUROC TYPE

Rock County Durocs

Experienced swine breeders advise the farmer just starting to improve his herd with blooded stock in this manner: "Buy two good bred glits or sows for the start. When only one is purchased poor luck may disappoint you at the start. Two will give the farmer a reasonably fair chance to see the difference in profits."

The photograph is of a good type head of Rock county Duroc-Jersey glits. Carefully breeding and selection of stock adds weight to swine that are being fattened for market.

PLAN CHESTER-WHITE ASSOCIATION IN CO.
Swine breeders of Rock county are rapidly organizing for development through active county associations. Having the foundation stock within the county, the breeders are resolved to push their breeds through county co-operation by various means—fair exhibits, show herds, pig clubs, and individual work.

The Duroc-Jersey breeders have been organized for some years and have one of the most effective associations in the state. The Hampshire breeders in the county have organized the first Hampshire association in Wisconsin.

The Poland-China association, organized a year ago, is showing renewed life with extensive plans for promotion work, including their first county sale in the livestock pavilion, Janesville, Feb. 26.

The Chester-White breeders of the county are now planning a county association for the same branch of work.

A Solid Farmer Front

A new year is just ahead for Rock county Farmers. It will be to a large extent just what we make it.

Let us all sit down quietly, calmly, and take stock—an inventory of our Agricultural prospects. Let us examine our farm situation and find out where we have fallen short and seek to correct our mistakes and build a better foundation.

Then hook up the old suspenders another notch and plow through the coming year with better plans and even more effective results than last year.

ROCK COUNTY has advanced during the last year. With this start we can all do a fair share in pushing and boosting our county to the peak position and bring direct results to all farmers in increased revenue.

ROCK COUNTY FARMERS are interested in making more money. The problem is to create ADDED VALUES by having QUALITY FARM MERCHANDISE that buyers are seeking and pay real money to obtain.

ROCK COUNTY should be in a position to supply a big demand for quality livestock, quality seeds and field products, quality products of the orchards and beekeepers' lots. Such a policy demands county-wide action.

ROCK COUNTY farmers should receive more for their products by producing those things that bring more money.

There is a seed time and harvest-time in every business including farming. You cannot run the mower and reaper all the time. You have to use the plow and disc and the cultivator building up for a crop that will bring results.

Rock county has planted wisely in the last year. We have made progress in bringing the county to the front. The foundation has been laid. Let's have a solid county all joined and cooperating to "Keep Rock County First!"

The organization through which county-wide projects are put over and established, is the—ROCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

BUILD THE BUREAU IN YOUR TOWNSHIP, YOUR COUNTY!

The Rock County Farm Bureau, George Hull, president.

Hugh C. Hemmingway, Sec'y., court house, Janesville, Wis.

THE HUDSON SUBMERGED Tank Heater

The Hudson Tank heater is by far the most popular manufactured. Its sales exceed that of all other types combined. It heats the water in half the time and with half the fuel required by others. It has a hinged cover in which is the draft slide. It holds the fire. Ashes are quickly removed with ash shovel furnished with the heater. It need not be removed after installation. No tank is too large for satisfactory results. The heating surface is entirely under water. Requires only 11 inches of water to cover the Heater. Will burn wood 30 inches long, rubbish or soft coal.

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST

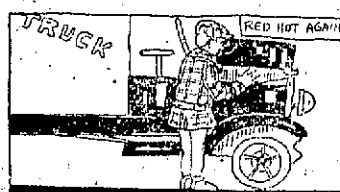

ALBERT L. CLOUGH

Keeping Tabs On Radiator Temperature

This Is Especially Necessary During Cold Weather

IF YOU USE a radiator cover and button down its front curtain when the car is started on cold mornings, how do you know when it should be rolled up and the radiator put on its job of keeping the engine cool, unless you have a radiator thermometer? If the radiator is kept shielded too long, that expensive alcohol, which you put in, will go up in vapor and will have to be replaced, or protection against freezing will be sacrificed. If the radiator front is exposed too soon, the engine will run too cold, gasoline will be wasted and the engine will take longer to get to running right. If either a hand operated shutter front or a manually operated choke-valve in the circulation is used, the same troubles are bound to be experienced and loss of alcohol, possible damage through over-heating and waste of fuel and oil will be the almost inevitable penalties. The radiator thermometer warns the operator when his radiator shielding should be removed, but allows him to retain it and thus promote engine efficiency right up to the time when his engine reaches the maximum safe temperature. Even though water temperature control is automatic, by thermostatic action, the radiator thermometer is highly desirable as a check upon the self-regulating device which, like every other contrivance, is fallible.

SPARK-PLUG OVERHEATS

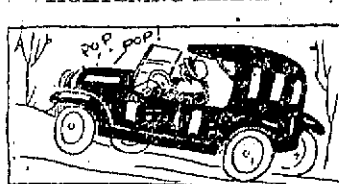

F. H. writes: The second cylinder spark-plug of my Ford truck engine gets red hot, at times. Can you tell me what causes this?

Answer: If this plug makes a leaky joint in its hole, so that there is considerable escape of intensely hot gas between its shell and the metal of the cylinder, during the explosion stroke, it will become greatly overheated. From what you say, we assume that you see the outside part of the plug in a red hot state, which is a very extreme condition. We should expect this cylinder to knock very severely before this condition was reached. You may find a crack in the engine casting, through the plug hole or some other defect to account for the escape of hot gas at the plug. Is this plug just like the others or is it one with a long shell that enters the cylinder much further than the others? If the latter is the case, some overheating would result, but we believe you will find there is a blow-by around the shell that explains this overheating. Put some oil around the plug shell and see if it is not blown away, when the engine is run.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

ENGINE MISSES AFTER TIGHTENING BEARINGS

G. S. M. writes: After having my engine block re-bored, new pistons and rings put in and all new bearings fitted, my car ran fine for three months, when I took up the bearings a little. Right after this it was taken out and the engine stopped dead, but we got it started again, by adjusting the breaker points. Ever since, it has missed and backfired badly when pulling, but much less so when running idly. The bearings are not over-tight, for the engine cranks over easily. What do you make of this?

Answer: We doubt if the tightening of the bearings has anything to do with your trouble. You better check up your spark first, by running the engine and seeing if the discharge will jump unflawingly from the detached end of each plug cable through a distance of 1-16 inch to the engine block. If it is uncertain or weak, you better have your coil, condenser, wiring and other ignition elements tested out. If the spark is perfect, you better examine to see that the engine gets its full supply of gasoline at the carburetor jet. As your trouble developed suddenly, we have a feeling that there is some ignition defect.
